BLIZZARD HITS CALGARY HARD

CALGARY, Jan. 4.—An old fashioned blizzard, driven by a 30-mile-an-hour wind, enveloped many southern Alberta districts today.

In Calgary it was 30 above at 7 a.m., but 15 minutes later the mercury had dropped 20 degrees as snow swirled along city streets and pedestrians sought shelter from the icy blast.

The blizzard was sweeping the Gleichen district, east of here, where a 30-mile wind roared over the prairies.

SNOW DRIFTS BLOCK ROADS

The Alberta Motor Association road and weather reports are incomplete for Saturday owing to stormy weather and strong winds causing continual drifting. Latest reports show that throughout the province strong winds are causing heavy drifting.

Chauvin, Provost, the Peace River district and the Vauxhall district are partially or completely closed. The Jasper highway, Wainwright and Hughenden roads are drifting and in bad shape.

BRITONS VIEW U.S. NEUTRALITY WITH CONCERN

President's Dictum Attracts Attention—Sanctions Involved

By BEN ROBERTSON

Copyright 1936, by Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The United States neutrality course attracted close European attention today, with a general belief growing that if the Roosevelt administration restricted exports of oil as a war material, the League of Nations would follow suit.

Interest in Washington's action, heightened by President Roosevelt's internationally - broadcast message to the joint session of Congress last night and introduction of new neutrality measures, was increased further by a sense of a rapidly returning European crisis.

EARLIER TENSION

Earlier tension, arising from proposals for extension of League sanctions against Italy to include an oil-coal-iron-steel embargo, quieted with the advance of the abortive Franco-Britain proposals for peace in Ethiopia.

The question of an oil embargo against Italy is to be revived in Geneva in about two weeks.

FORMER WIFE MAY REQUEST MAINTENANCE

Mrs. Cora McPherson May Also Ask Divorce Decree Be Varied

An application under the Domestic Relations Act for maintenance by Mrs. McPherson, divorced wife of the former Minister of Public Works, is under contemplation, states Geo. H. Van Allen, K.C., M.L.A., who has acted as counsel for Mrs. McPherson during recent efforts to have the divorce set aside. It is probable also that an application will be made to vary the divorce decree to enable Mrs. McPherson to have access to her children. At present she is living on city relief and is debarred access to her children.

Explaining the effect of the recent Privy Council decision in the McPherson divorce appeal, Mr. Van Allen said:

"Two points were involved in Mrs. McPherson's appeal to the Privy Council:

THE SECOND POINT

"1. Was the divorce trial really held in open court or was it not?

"2. If not held in open court, what is the result?

"Mrs. McPherson's legal advisers both in Canada and in England contended that the divorce trial was not held in open court and as a result the divorce decrees were void. In making these submissions, her legal advisers relied on a decision of the British House of Lords in 1913, in the case of Scott v. Scott, in which case Viscount Haldane, the Earl of Halsbury, Earl Loreburn, Lord Atkinson and Lord Shaw of Dunfermline, held that an English divorce court has no power either with or without the consent of the parties, to hear a nullity suit or other matrimonial suit in camera. The Alberta Courts held that this case was tried in open Court. The Privy Council has now decided that the case was not tried in open court. Thus the first point was decided in Mrs. McPherson's favor as contended by her counsel.

"As to the second point, the Privy Council's decision is that the divorce not having been obtained in ADDIS ABABA, Jan. 4.—An Ethiopian government communique said today a fleet of Italian planes bombarded heavily the region of Makale, on the northern front, killing 10 persons and wounding 15.

The official announcement said Fascist fliers dropped 3,000 bombs on the sector where Emperor Haile Selassie's armies have been reported encountering the Italian invaders in the first general Ethiopian offensive.

ITALIAN PLANE FALLS, 4 DIE

The communique stated the plane caught fire over the Cafta region, and its occupants—two officers, an observer and a non-commissioned pilot—were killed.

MAN HANGS, IS SHOT, FREEZES

WESTLOCK, Jan. 4.—With mute evidence of the dual method by which he ended his life: the body of Christian Fredericksen, 34, of Manola, was discovered today in his shack, with a .22 bullet hole in his forehead, hanging frozen from a lasher in his lonely shack.

The location of the suicide is historic in this district, the being the same farm on which the Macdonald children were found tragically murdered years ago.

The body was discovered by neighbors, Coroner Miller from Westlock, who, accompanied by Constable Wilkins and J. E. Hunter, undertaker, to the scene, found the body hanging by a flimsy rope tied to a ladder, with a rifle lying alongside. Fredericksen came from Denmark several years ago and has no known relatives in this country.

Premier Given Challenge On Savings

Alberta Holders Certificates In Want

Pointing out that many of the holders of Alberta Savings Certificates are in great need at the present time and are unable to get the money that is rightfully theirs, W. R. Howson, K.C., Alberta Liberal leader, today challenged Premier Aberhart to make a full and frank statement in regard to Alberta government savings certificates.

"If dividends can be paid to Alberta on the security of the natural resources of the province, and Mr. Aberhart has said hundreds of times 'it can and will be done,' why not try it out on those who now need the money and who are entitled to it?" asked Mr. Howson, who added that many of the depositors have stated to him that they are in actual need of the money.

"They are actually in want, while having money on deposit with the government, so why not give them at least a dividend of their own money? Others tell me they have had to default in their life insurance premiums because they cannot obtain their deposits. Why not give them a dividend

PUBLIC-OWNED BANK LOOMING FOR DOMINION

Legislation is Required to Make Changes—Premier To Fulfil Pledge

OTTAWA, Jan. 4.—Change of the Bank of Canada from private to public ownership, a plank in the Liberal party's platform in the recent general election campaign, is receiving active consideration.

Graham Ford Towers, governor of the bank, Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Finance Minister Charles Dunning, conferred Friday at the prime minister's office, but no indication was given of the government's immediate plans.

Legislation will be required to amend the Bank of Canada Act and it is assumed this will be one of the features of the legislative forecast in the speech from the throne to be read Feb. 6. To achieve nationalization of the Central bank would require a calling in of the $5,000,000 capital stock in the hands of the public and the question would arise as to whether it would be redeemed at par ($50) or at current market value which, today was about $33.

Practically the only opposition to the Bank of Canada when legislation was pushed through the House of Commons was directed against

U.S. MESSAGE CRITICIZED BY PARIS, BERLIN

Geneva, However, Pins Hopes States Applying Oil Sanctions

BERLIN, Jan. 4. — President Roosevelt's references to the war-making propensities of European dictatorships in his message to congress last night found a disagreeable echo in this country where his remarks were considered an unmerited warning to Hitlerite Germany. No one can question the Reich's desire for peace, it was asserted.

Mr. Roosevelt's charge that European "autocracies" were dragging their countries into war in the interests of territorial expansion was linked here to the recent speech of Stanley Baldwin, British premier, who referred to authoritarian regimes as "generators of war."

It was learned the 16 jurors believe the comedienne committed suicide by carbon monoxide gas poisoning. A few clung to the theory of foul play. Virtually none of the jurors now holds that she lost her life accidentally. They said unofficially that no new evidence had appeared but that the first-hand knowledge of the premises had crystallized the individual opinions they already had.

The Ethiopian communication created a sensation here, as it secondarily indicated affairs are reaching a crisis in the war.

PRESIDENT URGES COUNTRY BE KEPT OUT WAR MENACE

U. S. President in Message to Congress Unsparing in Condemnation Against Foreign Autocrats Bent Upon War

RAPS CRITICS OF THE NEW DEAL

By The Canadian Press

A new movement for oil sanctions against Italy emerged today as the major international result of President Roosevelt's message to the United States Congress last night, in which he denounced warlike dictatorships and called for further neutrality measures.

Friday night at Washington President Roosevelt of the United States, presented his annual message to Congress in the unusual setting of a specially assembled night session of the Senate and the House of Representatives. His speech has been eagerly awaited in all parts of the world with an interest not shown in such utterances since 1918.

The Edmonton Bulletin therefore, realizing the great importance of the President's message, especially his stand on the question of United States neutrality and his definition of the attitude of critics of the New Deal, publishes for its readers the full text of the speech.

By RICHARD L. TURNER

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—In sharp language, President Roosevelt, last night, made his annual message into a call upon Congress to protect the United States against foreign autocrats bent upon war and against such autocrats at home as seek to "gang up" on the people's liberties."

Delivering the historic outline on the "State of the Union" in the unusual glitter of a specially assembled night session, the President urged that the country be kept clear of war by a "well ordered neutrality" and an adequate national defence.

He spoke in ringing terms before a joint session of the Senate and the House of Representatives—and before the nation through the medium of a nation-wide broadcast—as he condemned those nations "which today must bear the primary responsibility for jeopardizing world peace."

Reverted to Law of Sword

"Those who seek selfish power," he declared, have reverted to the law of the sword "or to the fantastic conception that they and they alone are chosen to fulfill a mission and that all others must be subject to them."

He found encouragement in the "good neighbor" policy existing among the 21 American republics and the Dominion of Canada. The spirit of understanding in the new world, he said, was greater than at any time in the 4½ centuries of modern civilization.

He counselled that the United States and the rest of the Americas, through a well ordered neutrality, must do nothing to encourage contests of aggression in other parts of the world.

Two-Fold Neutrality Policy

The President pointed out that the United States is presently following a two-fold neutrality policy today all countries which engage in wars not of immediately concern to the Americas. He outlined the policy in these words:

"We decline to encourage the prosecution of war by permitting belligerents to obtain arms, ammunition or implements of war; we seek to discourage the use by belligerent nations of any and all American products calculated to facilitate the prosecution of a war in quantities over and above our normal exports to them in time of peace."

Plan New Neutrality Bill

He voiced the hope that Congress will co-operate in order that these objectives may be carried forward. The present neutrality bill expires February 29. Plans are afoot for another to take its place.

Of domestic problems, again, he said the United States was approaching a balanced budget; that treasury revenues were increasing; relief burdens diminishing; and increased taxation neither advisable nor necessary.

He quickly challenged his critics to seek "complete repeal" of the long list of New Deal enactment.

"The way is open to such a proposal," he added.

Let Critics Define Issue

"Let these challenges be met. If this is what these gentlemen want, let them say so to the Congress of the United States. Let them no longer hide their dissent in a cowardly cloak of generality. Let them define the issue. We have been forced to accept affirmative action. Let them be specific in their negative attack."

They themselves, he added, do not want to return to "that individualism of which they prate, even though the advantages under that system went to the ruthless and the strong." They realize, he said, that in 34 months the New Deal has "built up new instruments of public power."

"In the hands of a people's government," he added, "this power is wholesome and proper. But in the hands of political puppets of an economic autocracy such power would prove shackles for the liberties of the people. Give them their way and they will take the course of every autocracy of the past —power for themselves, enslavement for the public.

Only Weapon is Fear

"Their only weapon is the weapon of fear. I have said: 'The only thing we have to fear is fear itself.' That is as true today as it was in 1933. But such fear as they distil today is not a natural fear, a normal fear; it is a synthetic, manufactured, poisonous fear that is being spread subtly, expensively and cleverly by the same people who cried in those other days: 'Save us, save us, else we perish'."

Mr. Roosevelt was unsparing in his condemnation of the leaders of foreign peoples, who, he said, seem bent upon war, not upon peace. He accused them of going counter to the wishes of peoples which have no access to a change in rulers. And, he pointedly added:

Words Not Popular

"I recognize that these words which I have chosen with deliberation will not prove popular in any nation which chooses to fit this shoe to its foot."

In a war-threatened world, he continued, the United States has sought to play the part of the "good neighbor," discourage mounting armaments, and encourage the peaceful solution of disputes among all nations.

"We have sought by every legitimate means to exert our moral influence against repression, discrimination, intolerance and autocracy and in favor of freedom of expression, equality before the law, religious tolerance and popular rule.

"In the field of commerce we have undertaken to encour-

Positions Carry Salaries and Provision Must Be Made Exempting Them From Automatically Losing House Seat.

OTTAWA, Jan. 4.—Appointment of parliamentary undersecretaries announced by Premier King soon after he took office, will be delayed until parliament passes the necessary legislation, it was learned definitely Friday.

The positions, which will go to the younger men in the Liberal party as a stepping stone to cabinet rank later, will carry salaries. If a private member of the House takes a government job carrying a salary he automatically loses his House seat.

Because of this, it will be necessary to introduce legislation exempting under-secretaries from this provision of the law before they are appointed in the same way as cabinet ministers are exempted.

USUAL GOSSIP

Although parliament will not open for another month, the usual pre-session gossip is going the rounds.

It is taken for granted here the Social Credit group, 17 strong from Alberta and Saskatchewan, will make at least one formal attempt to place their financial theories before the House in a full-dress debate.

It probably will originate in a resolution moved by John Blackmore of Lethbridge, leader of the group.

Pensions for the blind, a perennial subject in parliament will be advocated by Dr. T. F. Donnelly, Liberal member for Wood Mountain, Sask.

now which will protect them and their families.

"These savings certificate holders have been very patient, but many of them are now undoubtedly in great need and should be given some relief. The time has arrived when the government should make a frank statement to them telling them when and how they will be paid.

"We have already had too much camouflaged blather from the premier, and it is time we were getting action."

TIME OVERDUE

In this connection Mr. Howson said that the time is overdue for some definite statement from the government as to when the money will be paid out.

"Almost every day I have people coming to see me asking when they may expect to obtain their money," he said. "The government has defaulted and yet it goes merrily along refusing to give any information as to when payment will be made or even as to when payment may be expected.

"Is the government in any different position from any other debtor? Have the banks of Canada lost faith in Alberta to the extent that they refuse to take over these deposits and pay them back to those who need them?

"There are many people who deposited their savings with the government believing that they could obtain repayment on demand and when the money was required.

SOME HAVE "PULL"

"There are others who deposited trust funds and these moneys are now being demanded from the depositors. The government's default has placed these trustees in a most unfortunate position. In some cases the owners of the money have taken steps to obtain judgment against such depositors, yet not one word can be obtained from any government official.

"It is even alleged by some that favoritism has been shown in some cases. It is said that some people who have enough influence at the Parliament Buildings have been able to obtain payment, but those who have no drag are simply told, 'I have no idea when, if ever, you will obtain payment.'"

COUNTRY DOCTOR RISES FROM SICKBED, MAKES HIS USUAL ROUNDS, COLLAPSES AND DIES

AMHERSTBURG, Ont., Jan. 4.—A country doctor who rose from his own sickbed to make the usual visiting round of his patients collapsed and died at his home here Friday after completing his calls. Dr. W. Fred Park, well-known throughout western Ontario as a general practitioner, died of heart failure at the age of 64.

Two days ago he attended his close friend, Dr. J. T. Park, in his fatal illness. Thursday night he was stricken himself with a heart attack.

open Court, were voidable, not absolutely void, and inasmuch as she delayed attacking the proceedings until after the time for appeal had gone by the decrees have become unassailable. Their lordships point out that in the present case it was open to the Attorney General of Alberta, Hon. J. F. Lymburn, or the King's Proctor on his behalf, to move by way of appeal, or before the time for appeal had expired, to move the trial Judge himself to discharge the impugned orders on the ground that the trial, from which both resulted, had not been held in open Court. The former Attorney General, however, did not do this. No intervention having taken place and no appeal made, their Lordships hold that because of the delay, the decrees can not now be attacked."

FREELY DISCUSSED

The judgment of the Privy Council—especially where it held that Mrs. McPherson's right of appeal had been lost through the failure of the Attorney-General and the King's Proctor to intervene—has been freely discussed by the legal fraternity in the city.

One eminent K.C., who followed the case closely, but who declined to allow his name to be used as he was not officially connected with the case, said: "If you want to get the significance of the reference to the Attorney-General and the King's Proctor, look up your files for the letter which the law firm of which the then Attorney-General, Mr. J. H. Lymburn, K.C., was head, sent to the Saskatoon hotel clerk. You will find that the letter of Lymburn, Reid and Cobbledick sent a couple of weeks before the hearing, informed the hotel clerk that arrangements had been made to have the suit heard in the judge's private room and that there would be no publicity whatever."

"It is obvious that the Privy Council in dismissing Mrs. McPherson's case because the attorney-general did not protect against the private hearing, was not aware that the attorney general was head of the law firm that arranged with the trial judge for the private hearing.

"Look up the letter to the hotel clerk and you will see how Mrs. McPherson was made a victim of the circumstance that the attorney general's private firm appeared in the case. It would take a very scrupulous chief law officer to intervene against an improperly arranged by his own law firm."

Here is the letter referred to which was written exactly one week before the date of the private hearing:—

leader, informed sources said, would be influenced by the American attitude in determining its own stand on the controversial question.

HOPEFUL FEATURE

In Rome, where reliable sources had said denial to Italy of the oil supplies much needed by its mechanized armies might spread the East African warfare to Europe, the "elasticity" of the Roosevelt neutrality policy was regarded by some as its most hopeful feature.

Apprehension was expressed in informed Italian quarters, however, lest the United States program, in practice, should be susceptible to the "influence of Great Britain and fanatical sanctionists."

Informed Italian sources pointed out further that limitation of United States oil exports to peacetime levels, under congressional proposals for permanent neutrality legislation, would supply Italy with only six per cent of its normal consumption.

TO STOP WAR

The British public listened in on President Roosevelt's annual message to congress with an anxious earnestness such as has not been lent to any similar occasion since the Great War year, 1918.

Should the United States restrict its oil exports, the Daily Herald said, discussing the international situation, "an oil embargo becomes a certain means of stopping the Ethiopian war."

"Should the league powers refuse to use similar means, they would be deliberately allowing continuation of the conflict," this newspaper asserted.

President Roosevelt's address was the leading news in virtually all British newspapers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Forty-one days of silence have passed since the Soviet airplane radio of Lincoln Ellsworth and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon sputtered and died as they flew over Antarctica's frozen wastes.

Coroner Dr. L. S. Dendrew decided an inquest was not necessary.

onio missionary, who heads the Ethiopian Red Cross.

The message gave no details of the reported bombardment.

Rumors were widely current here that Harar, in Eastern Ethiopia, was being bombed, but the government had no word of this. The city is second only to Addis Ababa in size in Ethiopia.

The Addis Ababa correspondent of the Reuters News Agency received an unconfirmed rumor that an Egyptian Red Crescent (Red Cross) ambulance had been bombed at Daggah Bur.

One of the Swedish Red Cross workers wounded during an Italian air raid last Monday on the southern Ethiopian front has died, it was announced.

VICTIM SUCCUMBS

The Swedish Red Cross representative Dr. Hanner, who flew to Dolo yesterday to investigate the incident, returned today and said Gunner Lundstrom, a Swedish male nurse whose jaw was torn away, succumbed to his wounds the day after the bombing.

Dr. Fried Hylander, chief of the Swedish Red Cross unit in Ogaden province, was brought to Addis Ababa by plane to undergo an operation for removal of fragments imbedded in his right side.

Dr. Hylander described the Fascist air raid as an "utterly deliberate act."

TORNADO OF BOMBS

"The morning of the bombing, I was in the operating theatre when a perfect tornado of bombs and machine gun bullets suddenly rained down on us. I had just time to see two lines of three planes each enfilading the ambulance when I was hit and lost consciousness. When I opened my eyes again, it was to see the most terrible scene of carnage imaginable.

"There was absolutely no excuse for the raid. The ambulance had Red Cross emblems prominently displayed, in accordance with the international convention." Dr. Hylander, lying on a cot in the Swedish hospital told the Associated Press.

BLOWN OFF BEDS

"The 28 Ethiopians killed were blown a distance of ten metres (about 20 yards) off their beds in our camp. It was an awful sight.

"There is no doubt the Italians intentionally attacked. Three days previously they flew over the camp. On the second day, they dropped a circle of bombs ten metres around the camp."

MUST AVOID AUTOCRACY IN DOMESTIC POLICIES

ROOSEVELT'S RAPS DOMINATION BY MONIED GROUPS

age a more reasonable interchange of the world's goods. In the field of international finance, we have, so far as we are concerned, put an end to dollar-diplomacy, money-grabbing and speculation for the benefit of the powerful and rich, at the expense of the small and the poor.

"As a consistent part of a clear policy, the United States is following a two-fold neutrality towards any and all nations which engage in wars not of immediate concern to the Americas. First, we decline to encourage the prosecution of war by permitting belligerents to obtain arms, ammunition or implements of war in the United States; second, we seek to discourage the use by belligerent nations of any and all American products calculated to facilitate the prosecution of a war in quantities over and above our normal exports to them in time of peace.

"I trust that these objectives thus clearly and unequivocally stated, will be carried forward by co-operation between this Congress and the President."

The President divided the nations into two categories—those bent upon peace and those pursuing a policy of aggression. Of the latter he said:

Must Bear Responsibility

"Within those other nations—those which today must bear the primary responsibility for jeopardizing world peace—what hope lies?" he asked. "To say the least, there are grounds for pessimism. It is idle for me or for others to preach that the masses of the people who constitute those nations which are dominated by the twin spirits of autocracy and aggression, are out of sympathy with their rulers, that they are allowed no opportunity to express themselves, that they would change things if they could.

"That unfortunately is not so clear. It might be true that the masses of the people in those nations would change the policies of their governments if they could be allowed full freedom and access to the processes of democratic government as we understand them. But they do not have that access; lacking it they follow blindly and fervently the lead of those who seek autocratic power.

The full text of President Roosevelt's annual message follows:

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Members of the Senate and of the House of Representatives:

We are about to enter upon another year of the responsibility which the electorate of this United States has placed in our hands. Having come so far, it is fitting that we should pause to survey the ground which we have covered and the path which lies ahead.

On the fourth day of March, 1933, on the occasion of taking the oath of office as president of the United States, I addressed the people of our country. Need I recall the state of the national circumstances attending the occasion? The crisis of that moment was almost exclusively a national one. In recognition of that fact, so obvious to the millions in the streets and in the homes of America, I devoted by far the greater part of those address to what I called, and the nation called, critical days within our own borders.

You will remember that on that fourth of March, 1933, the world picture was an image of substantially peace. International confidence and widespread hope for the betterment of relations between the nations gave to all of us a reasonable expectation that the barriers to mutual prosperity, to commerce in trade, and to the peaceful settlement of disputes could be progressively removed. In fact many, with reference to the field of world politics in that address was in these words: "I shall dedicate this nation to the policy of the good neighbor—a neighbor who resolutely respects himself and, because he does so respect the rights of others —a neighbor who respects his obligations and respects the sanctity of his agreements in and with a world of neighbors."

SENTIMENT HAS REMAINED

In the years that have followed, that sentiment has remained the dedication of the nation. Among the nations of the great western hemisphere the policy of the good neighbor has happily prevailed. At no time in the four and a half centuries of modern civilization in the Americas has there existed—in any year, any decade, or any generation in all that time a greater spirit of mutual understanding, of common helpfulness, and of devotion to the ideals of self-government than exists today in the 21 American republics and their neighbor, the Dominion of Canada.

This policy of the good neighbor among the Americas is no longer a hope—no longer an objective remaining to be accomplished—it is a fact, active, present, perfected and effective. In this achievement, every American nation takes an understanding part. There is neither war, nor rumor of war, nor desire for war. The inhabitants of this vast area, two hundred and fifty million strong, spreading more than eight thousand miles from the Arctic to the Antarctic, believe in, and propose to follow, the policy of the good neighbor; they wish with all their heart that the rest of the world might do likewise.

The rest of the world—Ah, here is the rub. Were I today to deliver an inaugural address to the people of the United States, I could not limit my comments on world affairs to one paragraph. With much regret I should be compelled to devote the greater part to world affairs.

TEMPERS SHORTENED

Since the summer of that same year of 1933, the temper and the purposes of the rulers of many of the great populations in Europe and in Asia have changed. Not only have peace and good-will among men grown more remote in those areas of the earth during this period, but a point has been reached where the people of the Americas must take cognizance of growing ill-will, of marked trends towards aggression, of increasing armaments, of shortening tempers—a situation which has in it many of the elements that lead to the tragedy of general war.

On those other continents many nations, principally the smaller ones, if left to themselves, would be content with their boundaries unchanged, willing to solve problems themselves and in co-operation with their neighbors their individual problems; both economic and social. The rulers of those nations, deep in their hearts, follow these peaceful and reasonable aspirations of their peoples. These rulers must remain in power; vigilant against possibility today or tomorrow of invasion or attack by the rulers of other peoples who fail to subscribe to the principles of bettering the human race by peaceful means.

Within these other nations—those which today must bear the primary, definitive responsibility for jeopardizing world peace—what hope lies? To say the least, there are grounds for pessimism. It is idle for me or for others to preach that the masses of the people who constitute those nations which are dominated by the twin spirits of autocracy and aggression, are out of sympathy with their rulers, that they are allowed no opportunity to express themselves, that they would change things if they could.

That, unfortunately, is not so clear. It might be true that the masses of the people in those nations would change the policies of their governments if they could be allowed full freedom and full access to the processes of democratic government as we understand them. But they do not have that access; lacking it they follow blindly and fervently the lead of those who seek autocratic power.

PATIENCE LACKING

Nations seeking expansion, seeking the rectification of injustices springing from former wars, or seeking outlets for trade by population or even for their own peaceful contribution to the progress of civilization, have demonstrated that patience necessary to attain reasonable and legitimate objectives by peaceful negotiation or by an appeal to the finer instincts of world justice.

They have therefore impatiently reverted to the old belief in the law of the sword, or in the fatalistic conviction that they, and they alone, are chosen to fulfill a mission and that all the others must be conquered, and a half of human beings must aid and learn from and be subject to them.

I recognize that these works which I have chosen with deliberation will not prove popular in any nation that chooses to fit this shoe to its foot. Such sentiment, however, will find sympathy and understanding in those nations where the people themselves are honestly desirous of peace but must constantly align themselves on one side or the other in the kaleidoscope jockeying for position characteristic of European and Asiatic relations today. For the peoples of those nations, and there are many of them, find that their very identity depends on their moving and moving again on the chess board of international politics.

WILLING TO DISARM

I suggested in the spring of 1933 that 85 or 90 per cent of all the people in the world were content with their boundaries and with their respective nations and were willing further to reduce their armed forces if only others would do likewise. The world would agree to do likewise.

That is equally true today, and it is even more true today that world peace and world good-will are blocked by only 10 or 15 per cent of the governments of mankind. That is why efforts to reduce armies have thus far not only failed but have been met by huge increased armaments on land and in the air. That is why even efforts to continue the existing limits of naval armaments into the years to come show such little current success.

But the policy of the United States has been clear and consistent. We have sought with earnestness in every possible way to limit world armaments and to attain the peaceful solution of

ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE IS CHALLENGING

Demands Statement Of Purpose From Opponents of New Deal

By RODER WINGET

Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—President Roosevelt's message last night to congress was regarded in certain financial centers as both challenging and reassuring.

Challenging, because it demanded a statement of purpose from opponents of the New Deal.

Reassuring, because it opened the vista of an extension of the famed "breathing spell" for business.

Definition of the opposition to the New Deal —"entrenched greed" and "unscrupulous money changers" and "discredited special interests"—made it difficult for candid observers to pin an identification tag on the enemies of the new Roosevelt economic order.

BUSINESS ADVANCED

Authorities of whatever political faith agree with Roosevelt that business and industry have advanced under the Roosevelt days of the bank moratorium. At the same time, numerous associations, business organizations and individuals have stated the progress would have been greater without the "hindrance" of the New Deal.

Many analysts believe there has been no concerted opposition to repeal of New Deal legislation in toto from those groups or interests which might oppose the entire Roosevelt definition. Modification has been the precominate proposal of anti-New Deal organization.

BUSINESS REASSURED

It was felt that a great bloc of business would be reassured by the absence of any proposals for new legislation in the Roosevelt speech and the statement that no new laws are immediately sought acknowledgement that present laws are strong enough to gain the New Deal goal.

disputes among all nations.

We have sought by every legitimate means to exert our moral influence against repression, discrimination, intolerance and autocracy and in favor of freedom of expression, equality and before the law, religious tolerance and popular rule.

ENCOURAGE TRADE

In the field of commerce we have undertaken to encourage a more reasonable interchange of the world's goods. In the field of international finance, we have, so far as we are concerned put an end to dollar diplomacy, money grabbing and speculation for the benefit of the powerful and rich, at the expense of the small and the poor.

As a consistent part of a clear policy, the United States is following a two-fold neutrality towards any and all nations which engage in wars not of immediate concern to the Americas. First, we decline to encourage the prosecution of war by permitting belligerents to obtain arms, ammunition or implements of war, from the United States; second, we seek to discourage the use by belligerent nations of any and all American products calculated to facilitate the prosecution of a war in quantities over and above our normal exports to them in time of peace.

I trust that these objectives thus clearly and unequivocally stated will be carried forward by co-operation between this Congress and the president.

I realize that I have empnasized to you the gravity of the situation which confronts the people of the world. This emphasis is justified because of its importance to civilization and therefore to the United States. Peace is jeopardized by the few and not by the many.

Peace is threatened by those who seek selfish power. This world has witnessed similar eras was in the days when petty kings and feudal barons were changing the map of Europe every fortnight or when great emperors and great kings were engaged in a mad scramble for colonial empire.

We hope that we are not again at the threshold of such an era. But if face it we must, then the United States and the rest of the Americas can play but one role. Through a well-ordered neutrality to be sought in concert by the contest, through adequate defense to save ourselves from embroilment and attack, and through loyalty and all legitimate encouragement and assistance to persuade other nations to return to the ways of peace and good-will.

AUTOCRACY ENDANGERS PEACE

The evidence before us clearly proves that autocracy in world affairs endangers peace and that world trade is suffering from those nations devoted to the democratic ideal. If this true in world affairs, it should have the greatest weight in the determination of domestic policies.

Within democratic nations the chief concern of the people is to preserve democracy, or where the rise of autocratic institutions that beget slavery at home and aggression abroad. In the United States, as in the world at large, popular opinion is at war with a power seeking autocracy.

This is no new thing. It was fought out in the constitutional convention of 1787. Over a long time since then the battle has been continued, under Jefferson, Jackson, the older Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson.

More recently we have witnessed the destruction of government by financial and industrial groups, numerically small but politically dominant in the 12 years that succeeded the world war. The present group of which I speak is indeed numerically small, and while it exercises a large influence and has much to say in the world of business, it does not, I am confident, speak the true sentiments of the less articulate but more important elements that constitute real American business.

In March, 1933, I appealed to the Congress and to the people in a new effort to restore power to these to whom it rightfully belonged. The response to that appeal resulted in the writing of a new chapter in the history of popular government. You, the members of the legislative branch, and I, the executive, contended for and established a new relationship between government and people.

What were the terms of that new relationship? They were an appeal from the clamor of many private and selfish interests, yes, even an appeal from the clamor of partisan interest, to the ideal of the public interest. Government became the representative and the trustee of the public interest. Our aim was to build up on essentially democratic institutions, seeking all the while the adjustment of burdens, the help of the needy, the protection of the weak, the liberation of the exploited and the genuine protection of the people's property.

HAD TO BUILD

It goes without saying that to create such an economic constitutional order more than a single legislative enactment was called for. We had to build, you in the congress and I, as the executive, upon a broad base, now, after thirty-four months of work, we contemplate a fairly rounded whole. We have returned the control of the federal government to the city of Washington.

To be sure in so doing, we have invited battle. We have earned the hatred of entrenched greed. The very nature of the problem that we faced made it necessary to drive some people from power and strictly to regulate others. I made that plain when I took the oath of office in March, 1933. I spoke of the practices of the unscrupulous money changers who stood indicted in the court of public opinion. I spoke of the rules of the unscrupulous money changers who stood indicted in the court of public opinion. I spoke of the rules of the ruthless trader who had callously taken unto himself the power to govern his fellow men.

And I spoke of the task of the government in putting people to work as a matter not of charity but of right.

In all of these matters the standard that we have applied has been the standard of the greatest good for the greatest number.

This standard has been persistently assailed. The principles of democracy have been persistently derided by the very people who have benefited by democracy.

For history has proved that privilege seeks always to regain power whether that power be exercised directly as in the days of the Stuarts or indirectly through the control of government by a few financial groups.

Against the destruction of democracy by private greed, the government of the United States has clearly and definitely pledged its power.

The power of government over finance and business, as well as over agriculture and labor, is necessary only to the degree that it may be required to prevent autocracy in private affairs from destroying democracy in public affairs.

The legislative and executive record of the past three years shows conclusively that the government has used its powers to assure fair play for all groups and to prevent any one group from becoming overbearing and dominant.

The principle that they would instill into government if they succeed in seizing power as well shown by the principles which many of them have installed into their own affairs; autocracy toward labor, toward stockholders and toward consumers. Autocrats in smaller things, they seek autocracy in bigger things. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

If these gentlemen believe, as they say they believe, that the measures adopted by the present and its predecessor, and carried out by this administration, have hindered rather than encouraged recovery, let them be consistent. Let them propose to this congress the complete repeal of these measure. The way is open to such a proposal.

POSITIVE ACTION

Let action be positive and not negative. The way is open in the congress of the United States for an expression of opinion by Yeas and Nays.

Shall we say that values are restored and that the congress will, therefore, repeal the laws under which we have been bringing them back?

Abdicated? Yes, in 1933, but now with the passing of danger they forget their damaging admissions and withdraw their abdication.

They seek the restoration of their selfish power. They offer to lead us back round the same old corner into the same old dreary street.

TRUE CHARACTER REVEALED

Yet there are still determined groups that are intent upon that very thing. Rigorously held up to popular examination their true character reveals itself. They steal the livery of great national constitutional ideals to serve discredited special interests. As guardians. As guardians and trustees for great groups of individual stockholders they wrongfully seek to carry the property and the interests entrusted to them into the arena of partisan politics. They seek—this minority in business and finance—to control and often do control and use for their own purposes legitimate and highly honored business associations; they engage in vast propaganda to spread fear and discord among the people—they would "gang up" against the people's liberties.

The principle that they would instill into government if they succeed in seizing power as well shown by the principles which many of them have installed into their own affairs; autocracy toward labor, toward stockholders and toward consumers. Autocrats in smaller things, they seek autocracy in bigger things. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

If these gentlemen believe, as they say they believe, that the measures adopted by the present and its predecessor, and carried out by this administration, have hindered rather than encouraged recovery, let them be consistent. U.S. CONGRESS ALREADY ACTS ON NEUTRALITY

Three Measures Introduced, and Fourth is in the Making

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—With an apprehensive eye on the United States shores, President Roosevelt asked congress last night to set forth a United States neutrality policy that would be discouraging to war.

Even as he spoke, congress already was moving toward this end. Three neutrality measures were introduced during the day and a fourth was in the making. Each sought to accomplish the purpose outlined by the president —that of declining "to encourage the prosecution of war"—but in a variety of ways presaging disputes in debate to come.

Under a bill by Chairman McReynolds of the house foreign affairs committee, the existing president found quota restrictions would be revised to promote neutrality. Then "he shall so proclaim." This, McReynolds contended, made his measure mandatory while that of Senator Nye, discretionary.

The most drastic bill came from Rep. Ludlow of Indiana. Upon the outbreak of war between foreign nations, United States exports or loans of any sort would be forbidden them. Then, the president would restrict American travel on the vessels of belligerents.

FOURTH BILL MONDAY

A fourth bill, to be introduced Monday by Senators Nye and Clark, respectively of North Dakota and Missouri, is reported, drastically restricting shipments to belligerents, would be rigidly mandatory upon the president.

Shall we say that because national income has grown with rising prosperity, we shall repeal existing taxes and put the burden of the day of approaching a balanced budget and of starting to réduce the national debt?

Shall we abandon the reasonable support and regulation of banking?

RESTORE THE DOLLAR?

Shall we restore the dollar to its former gold content; shall we say to the farmer—"The prices for your products are in part restored, now go and hoe your own row?"

Shall we say to the home owners and the debtors—"We have reduced the rate of interest—We have no further concern with how you keep up your payments, pay for your money, that is your affair?"

Shall we say to the several millions of unemployed citizens who face the very problem of existence —of getting enough to eat—"We will put you in part relief, now, we will turn you back to the charity of your communities and to those welfare agencies which have known you that perhaps they will employ you if the government leaves them alone?"

Shall we say—Your problem is a local one, except that perhaps the federal government will, for relief of more generosity, will be willing to pay to you day or two more quarters a few grudging dollars to help maintain your soup kitchens?"

CHILD LABOR ISSUE?

Shall we say to the children who have worked all day—"Child labor is a local issue and so are your starvation wages, nothing to be considered or left unsolved by the jurisdictions of forty-eight states?"

Shall we say to the laborer—"Your right to organize, your relations with your employer haven't anything to do with the public interest; if your employer will not even meet with you to discuss your problems, that is none of our affair?"

Shall we say to the unemployed and the aged—"Social security lies not within the province of the federal government, you must seek relief elsewhere?"

Shall we say to the men and women now living in conditions of squalor in country and city—"The health and the happiness of you and your children are no concern of ours?"

REPEAL OF LAWS?

Shall we expose our population once more to the evils of laws to protect them against the loss of their honest investments and against the manipulations of dishonest speculators?

Shall we abandon the splendid efforts of the federal government to raise the health standards of the nation and to give youth a decent opportunity through such agencies as the civilian conservation corps?

Let these challenges be met. Is this what the democratic system wants? Let them say so to the congress of the United States. Let them no longer hide their dissent in a cowardly cloak of generality. Let them define the issues. We have been specific in our affirmative action. Let them be specific in their negative attack.

But the challenge faced by this congress is more menacing than merely a return to the past—but as that would be. Our resplendent economic autocracy does not want to return to that machine age in which they prate, even though the advantages under that system went to the rulers and the strong. They realize that a thirty-four months we have been building up new instruments of public power. In the hands of a people's government this power is wholesome and proper. Give them their way and they will take the course of every autocracy of the past—power for themselves, enslavement for the public.

Their weapon is the weapon of fear. I have said: "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself.' That is as true today as it was in 1933. But such fear as they distill today is not a natural fear, a normal fear; it is a synthetic, manufactured, poisonous fear that is being spread publicly, expensively and cleverly by the same people who cried in those other days: "Save us, save us, else we perish."

I am confident that the congress of the United States well understands the facts and is ready to wage increasing warfare against those who seek a continuation of the spirit of fear. The carrying out of the laws of the land as enacted by the congress requires protection until final adjudication by the highest tribunal of the land. The congress has the right and can find the means to protect its own prerogatives.

We are justified in our present confidence. Restoration of national income, which shows continuing gains for the third successive year, supports the normal and logical policies under which agriculture and industry are returning to full activity. Under these policies we approach a balance of the national budget. National income increases; tax receipts, based on that income, increase without the levying of new taxes. That is why I am able to say to this, the second session of the seventy-fourth congress, that, based on existing laws, it is my belief that no new taxes, over and above the present taxes, are advisable or necessary.

REDUCTION IN JOBLESS

National income increases, employment increases. Therefore we can look forward to a reduction in the number of those citizens who are in need. Therefore also, we have an anticipate a reduction in overappropriations for relief.

In the light of our substantial material progress, in the light of the increasing effectiveness of the restoration of popular hope, I recommend to the congress that we advance; that we do not retreat. I have confidence that you will not fail the people of the nation who have faithfully and already so faithfully fa'thfied.

I repeat with the same faith and the same determination, my words of March 4, 1933.—"We face the arduous days that lie before us in the warm courage of national unity; with a clear consciousness of seeking old and precious moral values; with a clean satisfaction that comes from the stern performance of duty by old and young alike. We aim at the assurance of a rounded and permanent national life. We do not distrust the future of essential democracy."

I cannot better end th's message on the state of the Union than by repeating the words of a wise philosopher at whose feet I sat many, many years ago:

"What great crises teach all men when the courage and counsel of the brave inspire is the lesson: Fear not, view all the issues of life as sacred, have faith in the triumph of the ideal, give thanks that it is given to you to be loyal and rejoice whenever you find yourselves part of a great world endeavor. In such a moment, have the honor to belong to a generation whose lips are touched with fire, to live in a land that now enjoys the blessings of peace. But let nothing human be wholly alien to you. The human race now passes through one of its great crises. New light has been given—a new call for men to carry on the work of righteousness, of charity, of courage, of guidance and of loyalty

However, memory brings back this message to your mind, let it be able to say to you that was a great moment. It was the beginning of a new era. This world in its crisis called for volunteers, for men of faith in the power to give support, of charity and of insight. I responded to the call however I could. I volunteered to give myself to the master—the cause of humane and brave living. I studied, I loved, I labored, inspired by the vision gratefully, to be worthy of my generation."

How I Keep My Figure

By JEAN HARLOW

Jean Harlow

I AM a great believer in simple diet. I feel so much better if I eat simple foods, and not too much of them. I think that heavy foods and a too-full diet not only ruin one's figure but one's health as well. I study the correct combinations of foods, which I think very necessary. For instance, I cannot eat starches at the same meal with meats—they simply do not agree with me. For some people they no doubt are perfectly all right, but each person should make a study of the things that agree and the things that do not, and adjust her diet accordingly.

I have the same thing every morning for breakfast. First thing when I get up I have a glass of warm water with lemon juice. My breakfast consists of a cup of coffee and a glass of orange juice. If I have more than this, I feel stuffy. Luncheon usually is a raw vegetable salad, crisp toast and some sliced fruit for dessert. In the winter I often have soup instead of salad. Dinner is my largest meal. I do not always have meat—only about three or four times a week. Always three vegetables and a very simple dessert and coffee.

Exercise, especially swimming, and a normal diet are the main points that I watch in keeping my figure where I want it.

Tomorrow—Joan Crawford.

Roosevelt Highlights

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. — Here are highlights of President Roosevelt's message to the United States congress:

The policy of the "good neighbor" amongst the nations of North and South America, is no longer a hope, "but a fact, active, present, perfected and effective."

"At no time," Mr. Roosevelt asserted, "in the 4½ centuries of modern civilization in the Americas has there existed—in any year, any decade, or any generation in all that time a greater spirit of mutual understanding, of common helpfulness and of devotion to the ideals of self-government than exists today in the 21 American republics and their neighbor, the Dominion of Canada."

The temper and the purposes of the rulers of many of the great populations in Europe and in Asia, have not pointed the way either to peace or to good-will among men.

A point has been reached where the people of the Americas must take cognizance of the growing ill-will, of marked trends toward aggression, of increasing armaments, of shortening tempers—a situation which has in it many of the elements that lead to the tragedy of general war.

The United States and the rest of the Americas can play but one role. Through a well-ordered neutrality to do naught to encourage the contest, through adequate defence to save ourselves from embroilment and attack, and through example and all legitimate encouragement and assistance to persuade other nations to return to the ways of peace and good-will.

QUEBEC, Jan. 4.—Priests will not be allowed to vote in the next civic elections because they do not pay taxes, the municipal board of revisors ruled today.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 4

WATCHFUL WAITING

Premier Aberhart says many people in British Columbia are watching Alberta's experiment with deep interest. No doubt about that. People all over Canada, all over the world for that matter, are doing the same.

They are not only watching; most of them are hoping the experiment will succeed, while doubting that it can. Twenty-five dollars a month sounds good to anybody. Seventy-five sounds more than three times as good.

If there is any hitherto overlooked plan by which everyone can be enriched by even the smaller amount, in cash or negotiable credit, without an increase in prices or taxation that would gobble it up, well—"The world is waiting for the sun-rise." And ready to applaud the man who shall bring the marvel to pass.

INCOME TAXATION

Ottawa sends out the cheering news that income taxation for 1935 brought in $18,000,000 more than in 1934, a total of more than $73,000,000.

Cheering, that is, for the great majority who have no incomes large enough to be taxed, and also for that small but worthy group of wealthy men who, like Mr. Bennett, are "always glad to pay income taxes."

Not so cheering for those super-patriots in Toronto and Montreal who a few months ago flooded the country with propaganda pamphlets calling for the creation of a "National Government," the amalgamation of the railway systems—and the abolition of the income tax. Their little world of dreams has crumbled about their ears.

Income taxation has come to stay, though only one of our multiple taxing authorities should be allowed to collect it, preferably the Dominion. For the revenue is needed after a while, when we get to using the public credit in the public interest, and not for the enrichment of a few, money from the income tax will not be needed to pay interest on Government bonds.

Then it can be used for such things as to provide pensions for those who have got beyond the employable years and have not the means for a decent livelihood.

HIGHWAY FRIGHTFULNESS

Plans to reduce automobile fatalities on United States highways by 25 per cent this year got away to a bad start. On New Year's day 98 persons were killed in motor accidents, as against 98 last year, a drop of only 5 per cent.

But at least our neighbors seem to have made up their minds pretty generally that it is time to do something to stop the slaughter, and they are going about the organization and propaganda work with characteristic energy.

Last year 36,000 persons were killed on the highways of the republic. Of these it is said the "accidents" due to speed, recklessness, drunkenness or other folly. Machine guns and bombs may have taken more American lives oversea in a unit of time, but the war came to an end, while motor traffic continues and its casualties multiply.

There are fewer killings in Canada, perhaps because there are fewer people, fewer cars, and more highway miles per car. But the tragedies are far more numerous than they need be.

The federal Minister of railways and representatives of four of the provincial Governments joined the other day in an appeal to motorists—and others—to make the highways less "frightful" this year. The appeal was timely, and there is no uncertainty about what will be the consequences if it is ignored. The agony columns carry that information.

TAXES OVER-PAID

Edmonton taxpayers over-paid last year. They were asked for $3,750,000, and handed over $3,910,000. Not from generosity of course; the extra money was to reduce arrears and avoid confiscation of some of the 4000 homes and business properties which are under caveat.

Payments were 104.4 per cent of the year's levy. The sum total of arrears was thus cut down by 4.4 per cent of $3,750,000. Enough perhaps to offset the penalties which were imposed for the year upon those who had fallen behind.

In two former years the taxpayers have over-paid by larger margins. In 1928 they paid 115.47 per cent of the year's levy, and 110.49 per cent in 1929. Since then they have been paying less than the levy for each year, and the arrears and the caveats have been piling up.

Last year thus marks a halt in the taxpayers' march toward extinction. They as a body held their own, perhaps made some headway toward cutting down their net arrears after paying the penalties for the year.

This encouraging change did not come about because more tax-money was paid in, but because the levy was smaller, and left something to apply on arrears' account. In point of fact payments in 1934 were substantially more, $3,969,000. But that was only 90.02 per cent of the year's levy, and on balance arrears went up about 10 per cent, or $390,000.

The conclusion is plain. The hope of getting tax arrears cleared off lies in keeping down the levy in 1936 and succeeding years. The taxpayers are obviously paying as much as they can. Of the amount they pay, so much as council does not spend will go to reduce arrears. There is no prospect they will or can be reduced in any other way.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

A despatch from Berlin announces an order issued last Monday barring Jews from teaching music.

That's a bit of "protection" for the Aryan music-teachers against the unfair competition of the Jews. Nazidom thinks a race that can boast of a long line of first-rank musicians from Mendelssohn down to half the leading concert performers of today ought not to be allowed to use its natural advantage.

It recalls the story, for the telling of which, many a man has been thrown into a German concentration camp as an enemy of the Nazi state. Hitler is supposed to be addressing a huge audience at an Armistice day meeting. He is declaring that Germany was never defeated on the field of battle but owed her defeat to the machinations of the Jews.

Among those who applaud is a man of Hebraic appearance.

"I see a Jew applauding," says Hitler. "I would like our Jewish friend to tell us exactly how the Jews brought about the defeat of Germany!"

"There were too many Jewish officers," the man calls out.

"No, my friend," says Hitler. "That is not the correct answer. There were no Jews among the officers of our army."

"I mean there were too many Jewish officers in the French and American armies," the Jew explains.

Tell that story to your neighbour 'if you want to, but forget it if you make a visit to Germany. It's a jail matter, not a laughing matter to tell the story there.

A British Jew who rose to vice-regal heights, becoming Viceroy of India, passed away a few days ago, and British public life is the poorer by his going. Lord Reading—or Rufus Isaacs, as he was known to an earlier generation—had a career that reads almost like a story out of Arabian nights. He rose from being a bare-footed sailor boy, swabbing decks on a sailing ship, to become Lord Chief Justice of England, Ambassador to Washington, Minister of Foreign Affairs and one of the greatest of the Viceroys to administer the Indian Empire. From ships-boy he rose to be a King's Counsellor, a knight and a British peer, rising in the peerage to become viscount, earl and marquis.

Rufus Isaacs must have been born with a love for adventure, for he ran away to sea to avoid having to enter the office of his father, who was a prosperous London merchant. It was as a cabin-boy he first saw the river Hoogli; the second time he saw it was when he visited Calcutta as Viceroy.

One of the stories told about Lord Reading and Lord Birkenhead, in a time during the war when together they crossed to France on a British destroyer. A destroyer in a sea-way, running at speed has a motion something like a bucking bronco. Balfour early succumbed to sea-sickness; Reading, with his sea training, still kept the deck.

Thinking to show sympathy for his brother peer, Reading went below to enquire of Balfour if there was anything he could do for him.

Balfour smiled a greenish-sickly smile. "You might signal for a German submarine," he said.

When he quit the sea, Rufus Isaacs tried stock-broking. Though he decided after a year or two to leave stock-broking for the study of law, his experience as a stock-exchange clerk proved of great value to him in his legal career. He appeared as counsel in many important civil and criminal cases involving knowledge of stock exchange procedure, including the prosecution of Whitteker Wright. The conviction of Wright was a triumph for Isaacs, because the law officers of the Crown had reported against prosecution, believing that Wright had conducted his affairs within the law. Wright did not live to serve out his seven years term. He cheated the law by drinking a phial of cyanide of potassium as the sentence was pronounced. He died two minutes afterwards.

Called to the bar in 97, the reputation which Rufus Isaacs attained by his deadly skill as a cross-examiner and as a tireless worker, led to a K.C. ship 11 years later. It is sometimes said of lawyers that they are divided into two major classes—those starving to death and those who are being worked to death. Isaacs summed it up as tersely. At first, he said, it was a bed and no roses, and then roses and no bed. He used to retire at 9 p.m. to be up at 4 next morning and "break the back of the day's work" before breakfast. It was by such stern discipline and hard work that he backed up his natural genius for law.

There never was an idle moment in the 75 years of Lord Reading's life. If as the poet says, "We live in deeds, not years," then he lived more than three or four ordinary men's lives ere the call came to him. A list of his activities could not be condensed into this whole column. He had presided as Lord Chief Justice at the trial of Sir Roger Casement for treason. After the war was over he lent his aid to heal the wounds of war. He had been president of the Anglo-German Association since its inception, until he resigned in 1933 as a protest against the persecution of the Jews in Germany.

The Germans by their new policy may prevent a Mendelssohn, a Spinoza, a Meyerbeer, a Disraeli, a Reading—or a thousand of them—from developing their special talents. But where is the gain?

Rufus Isaacs was a beneficiary of British liberties. Such liberties institutions were many fold the gainer by the talent and public service of this great British Jew.

In describing the Dubats of Italian Somaliland, who make up part of the forces campaigning against Haile Selassie, a newspaper correspondent says they live only to fight. They let their wives tend cattle, plough and do all the work, while they sit and wait for war. The Dubats should be a fine civilizing influence in Ethiopia, if and when their side wins.—Montreal Gazette.

Gallstones

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

A gallstone is a small, hard stone forming in the gall bladder. The disorder rarely occurs before the age of 25 and is most likely to develop between the ages of 40 and 50. The majority of cases occur among women. When only one stone is present it is likely to be round in shape and may attain considerable size. One large stone will usually cause the patient less distress than several small ones, as the large single stone may float in the bile stored in the gall bladder.

The symptoms of gall stones are such that it is by no means possible to arrive at a correct diagnosis solely from a judgment based on symptoms alone. The most marked symptoms are seen during period of digestive distress, when either the patient is likely to believe is due to stomach trouble. The patient may experience a dull aching sensation in the upper right portion of the abdomen or may describe a sensation of heaviness or fullness, or mention a pain which localizes under the right shoulder blade. However, it is entirely possible for the gall bladder to carry one or more gall stones over a period of many years without any symptoms whatsoever.

The most outstanding symptom resulting from gall stones is a sharp colicky pain which develops when the stone attempts to pass out of the gall bladder. If the stone is large it will induce enough stretching of the duct to cause severe pain, although I have seen many cases where a large gall stone has successfully travelled through the ducts without the typical gall stone colic being produced. I am convinced that colic is not present in many cases and that a serious blocking of the cystic duct or the common duct may occur without any pain.

The pain seen in gall stone colic is produced by the passage of the stone through the cystic duct or the common duct and when pain is present, it will be of such a nature that the patient can readily understand that it is different from the ordinary dull ache to which he has become accustomed by previous experience. When the escaping stone lodges in the common duct, the flow of bile from the liver will be obstructed, and jaundice may become noticeable.

Gallstones are caused by stasis in the gall bladder which means that the flow of bile through the gall bladder is slowed down. The bile flow will become stagnant for several reasons: for example, it may be sluggish because of inflammation of the gall bladder itself, or because of sedentary occupations where the patient sits down during the day. Such occupations call for a leaning-forward position of the upper part of the body which position favors sluggishness of the liver and gall bladder. The inactive patient who does not secure sufficient vigorous exercise is in greater danger of gall stone formation than one who is physically active.

It has been my experience that in practically every case the patient has over-indulged in starches and sugars, without taking enough exercise to take care of the excess. Gallstones occur almost entirely among those living a sedentary life, who are eating a large quantity of those foods which only vigorous exercise would necessitate.

Once the presence of gall stones has been verified by the X-ray examination, it is important that the patient understands that rich foods, greasy foods, or fried foods. When the tenderness over the gall bladder area is marked, the use of hot applications will help to make the patient more comfortable.

The treatment of gall stones must be left to the doctor in charge who will make the final decision as to whether conservative treatment or operative treatment is advisable. If you know that you have gall stones, do not try to treat yourself at home—call in expert help.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—Mr. Max A. inquires: "I had the left kidney removed several years ago and seem all right at the present time outside of a few nervous symptoms. Do you believe I am in any particular danger of developing Bright's Disease?"

ANSWER—The patient having only one kidney will usually remain as healthy as the patient with two, as the kidney which remains will have enough reserve capacity to perform the function required. It is estimated that the kidney in normal health does only about one-third as much work as it could do, if necessary. You will see from this that there is a wide margin of safety and this explains why one kidney will be able to carry on and do the work required after the other has been removed surgically. Nervous symptoms do not especially indicate the onset of Bright's Disease, and the fact that mild nervous symptoms have developed would therefore not be conclusive evidence of a tendency to nephritis.

QUESTION—Mr. E. L. F. wants to know: "Can tuberculosis be inherited? If the mother has it, will the child develop it?"

ANSWER—Tuberculosis is not inherited, but the predisposition to it may be transmitted. That is, the child may be born with a tendency to this particular disease. Usually, when the child becomes tubercular it is likely to be due to exposure, which exposure would necessarily be most frequent when the child lives with a patient having the disease. Children do not seem to develop a particular resistance as much as adults and for this reason are in greater need of protection against it where there exists a continual danger of contracting the disease. The child born of a tubercular parent, especially the weakly and poorly developed child, should be trained in that way of living which will develop the fullest resistance and at the same time should be given special exercises to bring about a better chest development.

SIDE GLANCES—By George Clark

"I told him if he ever kept me waiting again I'd do something horrible. What do you think it ought to be?"

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date in 1874 the very young metropolis of Winnipeg had a real sensation. Up Main street came a covered sleigh; that was not unusual, but what made this out of the ordinary was that it had a stove pipe protruding and smoke was issuing from it as the oxen pulled the sleigh northward. The driver was an enterprising chap who had left Moorhead, Minn., laden with delicacies for New Year's celebration at the 'Peg; but going had been hard, the weather had been severe, and he arrived just four days too late.

But when the contents of his "covered wagon" on runners became known there was another New Year's celebration right there and then for will it be believed among the cargo of that travelling store was "fresh Californian fruit and other tropical delicacies, guaranteed free from frost and in the primest condition."

Did that fruit sell? Well, you can imagine what the real estate sharks, waiting for customers and the mail from the east with money to carry on, did to that fruit. It was not long before this pioneer "refrigerator car" was empty and the importer safely installed within the chief hotel, making up for lost time in lost drinks before making up for lost sleep, in a warm bed.

This date is also memorable in Winnipeg history since it was on January 4 in 1872 that Gilbert McMicken opened the first private bank at Fort Garry. The first chartered bank (The Merchants) did not commence business until November 6 following.

The Mail Bag

THE WHEAT NIGHTMARE

Editor Bulletin: The wheat situation should not be regarded alone. It is part of a much larger question viz. the debt problem. In the past, Great Britain lent money to Canada, Australia and Argentina, nominally, she got cash or gold. Actually, she sent rails, equipment, machinery, etc. Naturally, each of them imagined that the loan would be repaid, as well as the interest, in the form of their own products—wheat, for example. Vainest of hopes! For the British wheat market, as Sir Francis Floud pointed out the other day, is a limited if not actually a diminishing one. What has happened? In order to stimulate exports, Australia first devalued her currency substantially. Later she gave her wheat-growers a bounty to the tune of $10,000,000, on the basis of a price of three shillings a bushel. Canada first gave her farmers an export bonus of five cents a bushel. Now she is providing them with subsidized labor, after the worst British tradition. "A record number of men are being placed on farms in Alberta under the settlement scheme, by which the government pays them $5 for the first month, and finally $10 monthly, in addition to what they get from the farmers."

It is now apparently Argentina's turn. The price of wheat has been pegged at a high level., but it is rumored that the peg is to be devalued shortly. Where is the insane competition to end? Is the Canadian standard of living to be ground down to a peon level, or is wheat-growing to become a parasite upon the community? Is it not time that a "Peace-Debts and Liquidations conference" was convened? Shall we not, sooner or later, be driven to adopt the just and rational course, viz., pay Canada's debts with Canadian dollars, and allow the foreign exchanges to find their natural level, conformably with the economic facts; in the meantime, making the stabilization of our own internal price-level the first and supreme object of the nation's monetary policy; and continuing to pay off our debts so long as we have idle hands and unutilized natural resources available?

MAKE LESS NOISE

Editor Bulletin: New Year resolutions, like other holiday festivities, die with the debauch. Smokers are woke no more throughout a smokeless eternity, for three days. Gossipers gossip no more for a week, and yarners yarn no more till next yarn. Virtuous gestures cease when normalcy returns. Our effort merely makes the victim miserable when he should be joyous. It's a case of a drunken man signing a contract. Better wait till you're sober, then you know what you're doing—either in energy or taxes. Here it is: Make less noise. Edmonton makes more racket, than any other known city of its size. On that you can bet the basic dividend, you won't get against Aberhart's promise to give it, and that's giving big odds. When a street car passes one thinks of crashing empires, and when it rounds a curve, one is sure they are on the crash. Can't their under-pinning be silenced? The motor cars, in daytime, are bearable, but when night comes, more cars come, all speeding to nowhere, all tooting to all others, to let the tooters get there first. At midnight this racket dies away; the street cars are run in, and the motor cars are run out—of gas.

Now the dogs begin. Edmonton's human population is 80,000. Speak up, commercials, you would say her dog population can't be more, though it sounds like it, and taxpayers feed 'em all. Everybody loves a dog, but all things have their places, for the Lord so decreed. Dogs like the open country, for that's their place. Edmonton dingoes howl from midnight to zero hour, then go over the top, and bloody carnage ensues. Dog licenses should be $100 per doggie, and when he wanders, fine the owner an unthinkable sum, and jail him till he pays up. On second conviction, let him be shot; we mean the man, not the dog. Wonder just how many people become nervous wrecks, or go insane through living in such never ending inferno?

CHRISTMAS BROADCAST

Editor Bulletin: I have been somewhat surprised that your musical critic has not made some mention of the singing of the chain-of-choirs in the Christmas afternoon broadcast. In conversation with him I found that he has the same idea that a good many others have.

He was under the impression that these choirs were chosen to sing a couple of Christmas carols. This was not so. Each choir sang only what was heard of them, each coming in on the best of their respective leaders and not singing a word more than was heard.

I should like to congratulate our own leader, our Church choir, and Mr. Atack, their leader, and the rest of the choirs taking part in the broadcast.

The popular opinion was that all choirs just sang the carols and then the director at Montreal plugged in to each in turn.

This was the procedure last year when through the failure of either the telephone or the radio connection, the local band was blackened out.

I think I am expressing the opinion of all listeners to the broadcast that the local director of the Canadian National Broadcasting Commission made no mistake in selecting for this event a choir so well balanced and in tune as the one at the Robertson Church choir to represent Alberta.

Give honor where honor is due.

Mrs. Newrich insisted in bringing her visitor over to see Elsyre. They stood at a safe distance while Elsyne swung murderously, time after time, at the little white ball on the first tee.

After five minutes Mrs. Newrich turned to her guest saying: "I'm so sorry you weren't here Tuesday. She hit it Tuesday."

He—"Why, I'll betcha a buck you won't even marry me."

She—"I'll take ya, and raise ya five."

Then there was the absent-minded motorist who changed his oil every day—and his shirt every 500 miles.

COMEDY RULES CONSULATE WHEN ENGLISH IS UNSPOKEN BUT IS WRITTEN FLUENTLY

governor, get permission to invade Ogaden by way of Berbera in Brtish Somaliland and, if possible, go on night manoeuvres with the British fleet, which had 16 ships in harbor.

While waiting for answers (all requests were finally granted) I wandered in to see the Italian consul and get his views of the goings-on. At the moment three Italian steamships were loading cotton, peanuts, hides and oil in the harbor while a fourth was picking up every new and used truck Aden could spare.

PALE AT WORD "REPORTER"

The consulate was a beautifully furnished and well built office with a well dressed staff who turned pale when I said I was a reporter. "The consul is very busy," they said to my request for palavar. "He is far too busy."

"Well send him in this note." I sent in something about my coming trip to the so-called "Yellow Hell of Ogaden" and waited. Scrawled over my own writing bounced back the answer: "Sorry, I don't speak English."

EQUALLY NAIVE

The Italian consul in Djibouti was equally naive. He was a huge joyful fellow afraid of few things on earth except reporters.

He had powerful radio sets which, at certain times of day, we were free to use and through these the reporters got "war news" preceded by the boom of London's Big Ben and followed by optimistic dispatches from Rome sent out by a female announcer who must have got her training in opera.

One day a strongly anti-Italian story was cabled from Djibouti. It turned out to be one more bazaar rumor entirely inaccurate—but for which the rumor-monger was paid $50—and caused Rome to sizzle the wires demanding explanations.

THOUGHT IT WAS TEA

The consul sent for all the reporters. Unluckily his messenger was a Greek from some obscure paper in Bucharest who got himself all mixed up by saying the consul was giving a tea and we were all expected to dress in cutaways and striped pants.

This let me out because I'd never worn such kit in my life but I went down anyhow (wearing shorts) and found about 10 reporters being viewed with alarm by a guard.

This fellow, visibly upset, said we could not sit in the well furnished waiting room but must stand in the hot corridor. This didn't ease his worries either so he shoved us all out into the blazing sun where some of us stood about for 40 minutes. The others chucked this game and hiked for a cooler spot.

BAWLED 'EM OUT

The consul arrived and proceeded to bawl us all out. He said we were unfair to Mussolini and himself and all Italians and this was a downright mean thing to do.

"Henceforth, gentlemen, I will be here every afternoon at five. I will speak to you first in Italian, then in French, then in English.

"There will be no more of these false rumors. That is all, gentlemen."

This, of course, made no sense whatever. The man was going to be there and talk to us at five, so what?

PREFERS WINE TO NEWS

The British consul stood up to his job as best he could and truthfully answered all queries with the stock reply: "Sorry, I don't know." In this he closely resembled the French governor who would politely listen to all queries and say: "Dash it all, gentlemen, I've neglected to read today's dispatches, but you'll find them on the bulletin board. But don't bother now. The wine is cool . . . the day is hot."

The U.S. consul was a busy Greek happily coining money while the boom lasted and people could pay for things, while Ethiopia was represented by a bargainer.

For instance there was no set rate of visa fees or head taxes for travellers trying to go in and observe the war. You might pay as low as $3.50 or as high as $500 depending on the state of somebody's liver.

If you had landed in Djibouti with no Ethiopian visa you were red meat to this chap. He found out all about you, then set the rates. But if you came already armed with a visa it was his unhappy duty to advise that a departure tax had been instituted, a mere $10.

GIVE HALF RATES

If you were travelling up and down the line frequently he'd give half rates and if you put up a howl and kept it going long enough the departure tax was only $3.50 but you were pretty certain to be a marked man when the frontier guards reached for your kit at Diredawa.

The Ethiopian consul was also as high a powered press agent as any living human ever had, even the Conquering Lion of Judah. He would send us despatches about the slaughter of 3,000 Italians near Harar, the capture of 50 tanks near Makale and other gory conquests. We figured out one week that 30,000 Italians had lain down their lives in a vain attempt to capture a village.

But this consul's crowning achievement, one of the few souvenirs I brought home, was an announcement that Italy had that day attacked the British fleet and sunk six ships headed by the famed Renown.

Bringing Wealth to Children

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

Unemployment must be dealt with along a new line of attack in North America unless we are content to have with us large numbers of people whose earning power will be insufficient to sustain life—leaving a great deficit to be made up out of taxation on those who are able to make good earnings.

The answer is to bring wealth to children by teaching them in school to use their hands as well as their heads. There should be no school which is not a technical school. School periods should be equally divided between mental work, and a combination of manual and mental work aided by efficient tools and machines and industrial materials and production areas.

Most of those who fall into hopeless unemployment are destitute of practical knowledge; they can only do what they are told to do and shown how to do from day to day; and they are shut out from the higher earning averages by competent people.

Boys who are taught in school how to use tools and how to make the necessary primary measurements and calculations as to industrial materials in wood and metal; and are carried on through the elementary stages into practical woodworking and metal-working—will have acquired real wealth by an addition of several years to useful life.

Girls who are taught in school practical designing, cutting and fitting of textiles into finished products whether it be for clothing or for house furnishings or for hospital, hotel and institutional uses; and who are taught the working chemistry of selecting, preparing and making foodstuffs fit for safe use, will also have acquired real wealth by an addition of several years to useful life.

Carried on into high schools and colleges where the work can for all practical purposes be co-educational, the students can be equipped with practical working knowledge of electricity and its installations; photography and its finished development; chemistry in its elementary combinations; the various types of machinery in elementary form in steam and internal combustion, and any combinations of machinery for production of electricity.

With knowledge of this kind under their respective hats, giving them power to use their heads and hands in efficient combination based on calculations for which they know the reasons, pupils will come out of schools, high schools and colleges with a confidence based on the actual results of trial and error and accomplishment.

These are the kind of people who succeed in life; and by bringing wealth to children in the form of ability to get practical results, there will be a great decrease in unemployment.

There would not be any dangerous increase in costs of our educational system, because it would be in substantial degree a transfer of average present expenditures into the technical side of education and every education should include technical results.

Contract Bridge

By E. V. Shepard

MASTERING BRIDGE (29)

To probably do well, and to enable partner to know what he requires to take-out a no trump into his best suit, the opening no trump bidder should have at least three reasonably well guarded suits, containing not less than two and one-half quick tricks and a total of at least five probable tricks.

To shift a sound 1-No Trump into a suit, with expectations of doing well, the one taking out should hold an absolute minimum of four probable tricks, including one quick trick and be able to win at least three trump tricks, presuming that the no trump bidder holds at least three trumps and that the remaining three trumps are held 3-2. A hand no stronger than the foregoing cannot expect to go game unless partner strongly supports the suit call. A four-trick hand has no rebid, but a five-trick hand may rebid once. If partner bids 2-No Trumps over the first showing of the suit, its holder may bid 3 of the suit. If the no trump bidder at once bids 3 of partner's suit, its holder may bid 4.

The following holdings are worth an overcall of partner's 1-No Trump, but whether he bids 2-No Trumps or makes a minimum assist of the unit call, the holding is not worth a rebid:

A-10-7-6-2, with not less than a side K.

K-Q-7-6-2, with not less than a side K.

K-Q-J-6-2, with not less than a side K.

A-Q-J-6-2, even without side strength.

K-Q-J-10-2, even without side strength.

A-9-6-4-3-2, even without side strength.

Add a single probable side trick to any one of the above holdings and the hand is worth a single rebid. Add two probable side tricks, instead of one, and each of the above holdings is worth two rebids.

A six-trick hand, with ability to win four or five trump tricks, had better take out with a three-bid, instead of a two-bid, to disclose game expectations at once. Probably the no trump bidder will bid 2-No Trumps over an attempted take-out of 2-odd. Unless you can jump to game in the suit he may bid 3-No Trumps, over a second minimum suit rebid. Usually his reason is to insure the opening lead coming up to his hand instead of going through it.

A solid minor suit, unless able to go game, justifies jumping partner's 1-No Trump to 3-No Trumps.

HAVANA, Jan. 4.—Two British seamen charged with mutiny aboard the British freighter Baron Graham were sentenced to 31 days in jail Friday and ordered deported to England after completion of the sentences. They were William Morris and Robert M. Jones.

The captain of the vessel, who returned to harbor last night, said shortly after the ship sailed Thursday, Morris and Jones appeared on the bridge and tried to take over the vessel. He said the two were intoxicated.

OUR OLD COUNTRY LETTER—By J. Edward Norcross

MANCHESTER, Eng.—(By Mail)—Judging by the highly-colored contents of the shelves of the "twopenny libraries" (four cents per week per borrowed volume) which have brought really popular fiction, such as the public institutions never stock, to the masses all over the country, detective stories are by long odds first favorites with their patrons.

And it must be admitted that on these long, dark December evenings it is pleasant to settle down before a bright cheerful fire, one's slippered feet on the fender, and enjoy a good murder mystery with a reasonable amount of blood in it.

During the last few weeks, however, we have not had to go to the "tuppenies" for our thrills. They have been supplied day after day by the newspapers in the form of reports of the preliminary hearing, the longest ever known in England, of a charge of double murder brought against a medical man, a leading practitioner in the ancient town of Lancaster.

It will be recalled that late in September, as mentioned in this correspondence at the time, a number of parcels, thirty or more, containing human remains, were found in a ravine near Moffet in Scotland. They appeared to be fragments of two bodies that had been skilfully and scientifically mutilated with the object, apparently, of making identification impossible. The sex of one of the victims of what was obviously murder was in doubt at first but eventually it was established that they were both women.

About the same time people in Lancaster were beginning to talk about the prolonged absence from home of the wife of Dr. Buck Ruxton and of the nursemaid who looked after their three little children, Mary Rogerson, the doctor having said in answer to inquiries that Mrs. Ruxton had gone away and had taken the girl with her.

DR. RUXTON occupied a large house in Dalton Square which is in the very heart of Lancaster. On the opposite side of the square stand the town hall, the police court and the police station—all in plain view of the Ruxton residence which, according to the police, a frightful tragedy was enacted in mid-September.

J. E. Norcross

Mrs. Ruxton had often left home for days at a time to visit relatives. But weeks now went by and still she did not return nor could the doctor give any news of her or of the maid. He hinted that the latter was in trouble and that his wife had taken her away. He professed that he did not know where his wife was but suggested that a young man with whom she had been friendly probably was in touch with her.

Now Lancaster is a long way from Moffet and for some time nobody connected the horrible discovery in Scotland with the disappearance of the two women from the county town. Tongues by and by began to wag in Lancaster but the outside world heard nothing until big headlines in the newspapers announced the arrest of Dr. Ruxton and the linking together by the police of the two mysteries.

Even then, however, no information was vouchsafed as to where and how it was alleged the crime had been committed, whether the women had been murdered in Scotland or elsewhere, and where the dissection and mutilation had been carried out.

As may be imagined public curiosity was keen but it was to be a a long time before the curtain was raised and the facts, as the police conceived them, were made known to the world at large. For remand followed remand. No evidence was offered and the defence protested that although Dr. Ruxton was being held a close prisoner week after week it had not even been shown that the remains found at Moffet were those of Isabella Ruxton and Mary Rogerson.

MEANWHILE, Lancaster was crowded with newspaper correspondents who doubtless knew a good deal about what was going on behind the scenes. Whatever they knew or surmised, however, they wrote nothing that threw any light on the mystery.

For trial by newspaper is unknown in this country. The police give out no advance stories of what they expect to prove and the newspapers would not print them if they did. Only evidence sworn to in court is used and nothing is anticipated as to the course a case will take. The lack of color in the reports as they appear would astound an American news editor. But then an English newspaper that published anything but a plain unvarnished report of criminal proceedings would speedily find itself in very serious trouble with His Majesty's judges.

The police were ready at last, however, and the preliminary hearing was begun. Day after day, for twelve days, the newspapers printed whole pages of the testimony and by this means consumers of detective fiction have been able to watch the development of a real murder mystery as fascinating as any that ever engaged the attention of a Sherlock Holmes.

In brief, the crown seeks to prove that Dr. Ruxton killed the two women in the house across from the police station, probably by strangulation, dissected the bodies, burned up some parts by which they could be identified and mutilated others, removing teeth, hair and the skin of the faces, parcelled up the fragments and took them in his car to Moffet. Jealousy is the motive attributed in the case of Mrs. Ruxton but there has been no intimation so far of that for murder of the maid.

THE evidence is entirely circumstantial. Proof does not depend on a few outstanding direct facts but on the cumulative inferences to be drawn from a multitude of small ones, many of them at first sight, and taken individually, apparently trivial, the fitting together of which is not unlike the reconstruction from a great number of pieces, many of them seemingly unrelated, of a grim and sinister jig-saw puzzle.

Day after day the testimony ran on. Charwomen and others told of traces of blood in the doctor's house, of the burning up of debris of some sort in his backyard at night, of parcels being taken from two locked rooms to his car at the back door.

It took four or five witnesses—there are 115 altogether, a number unparalleled in British criminal annals—to prove that a newspaper in which a part of the remains was found was one of a special issue distributed only in Lancaster and vicinity, and that a copy had been delivered at the doctor's home about the time of the assumed murder.

Circumstantial evidence all of it, and much of it in the form of 209 exhibits, another record-breaking number, among which were bloodstained garments and wrappings and jars the contents of which made one shudder.

Ten magistrates, two of them women, have sat on the bench under the Royal Arms throughout the 67 hours, spread over three weeks, of the hearing. These receive no remuneration; they are the "great unpaid," members of a body of lay persons who administer much of the justice of the country, stipendiary magistrates being employed in the large centres of population only. Lancaster, with but 45,000 inhabitants, cannot qualify for a full-time police court.

The hearing might have taken much less time but for the archaic arrangements for recording the evidence. Every word of it, and there were about 120,000 words altogether, had to be taken down slowly in long hand by the magistrate's clerk and then read over to each witness in turn.

Nor were there any of the amenities one is accustomed to in Canadian courts. The defendant was not permitted to sit beside his lawyer; he remained in the dock throughout the proceedings. The witnesses stood while giving their evidence no matter how long they were in the box. One of them was under examination for eight hours during which in cross-examination he was called upon to account for his movements both before and after the murder day after day for 63 days.

Finally Dr. Ruxton was called upon to plead.

"I firmly plead not guilty," the tortured man sobbed out, tears streaming down his face. "I will prove it to the hilt . . . It is too much." Dr. Ruxton has contended all along that his wife is still alive.

The defendant was committed for trial at the Manchester assizes a few weeks hence. It will be a cause celebre. The case for the crown will be presented by one of the ablest criminal lawyers on the northern circuit and he will be assisted by a junior. Two counsel will appear for the defendant.

It is estimated that the case will cost the authorities between $30,000 and $35,000.

NO political crisis of the first magnitude ever came so suddenly and unexpectedly out of the blue as that which has arisen over the peace terms to be submitted at Geneva as the suggestion of Great Britain and France.

Things had been running along very smoothly on the whole. It was expected that by this time the screw would have been given another turn and oil sanctions would be in force.

Then came a story out of France that the peace plan put forward by M. Laval and Sir Samuel Hoare proposed the transfer of about half of Abyssinia to Italy. Everywhere arose cries that both the League of Nations and Abyssinia had been betrayed. The House of Commons was in a state of excitement which ministerial explanations did not do much to allay.

At this time of writing the country awaits the full statement of the situation promised for a later day in the week. On that statement depends whether or not there will be a break-up of a government which a week ago seemed firm in the saddle with the country giving full support to its foreign policy.

The outcome will be known before this appears in print and it may then be interesting to read the view of the situation as it stands now presented by one of the clearest heads in the country. It may be prophetic.

PREACHING in Manchester Cathedral, the Dean, Dr. Garfield Williams, said on the Sunday evening preceding the assembling of the council of the League of Nations to consider the peace proposals:

"There is an ominous calm about our people this week-end like the calm before a thunderstorm.

"We must not prejudge the government but we shall judge them this week on the evidence they put before us.

"Until the foreign affairs debate on Thursday I shall continue to believe what Mr. Baldwin said in the House of Commons—that every member of every party, when the facts were known, would approve the government's action.

"Every single member of the British Commonwealth of Nations will expect that statement to be substantiated.

"If it is so substantiated we shall have witnessed an extraordinarily brave situation on the part of this government.

"It will mean that in the pursuit of right our leaders were prepared to risk the misunderstanding of the whole nation. Nothing could be braver than that.

"If it is not so substantiated we shall have witnessed a dereliction of duty on the part of our political leaders unparalleled in recent times.

"I bid you reserve your judgment absolutely until the government submits its case on Thursday . . . at the bar of public opinion. It is bound to be one of most important and spectacular trials in our long island story.

"I believe this moment to be one of the great moments in the history of the British people."

THANKS to Social Credit no Canadian province has in years obtained as much free publicity in the British press as Alberta has been given in the last few months.

According to a financial correspondent in the Daily Herald this is how the City of London is reacting at the moment:

"The world's first Social Credit government in our brighter Canada does not seem to be getting much credit nowadays. Nor is it regarded as exactly social.

"That, at least, seems to be the impression in the City of London, where I tried to find out yesterday what they think about Alberta.

"Obviously they must think about it, for Mr. Aberhart, Social Credit Premier, has lately announced his intention of speaking to foreign bondholders to accept a voluntary scheme for a reduction in the interest payments of the province's $160,000,000 floating debt.

"I asked the Council of Foreign Bondholders what they felt about the Alberta premier's proposal for a 2 per cent reduction in interest rates. The Council of Foreign Bondholders smiled.

"I asked the London agent of a bank with large bondholdings in Alberta how they felt about it. The London agent smiled too.

"The fact is that the city is either laughing at Alberta or doesn't know where it is. And it is certainly not as wise about Social Credit as it should be.

"All of which is very confusing. Either Mr. Aberhart is going to change things, when his will not be a Social Credit policy, or he isn't going to change things, when his will be a Social Credit policy. Or will it?

From the last paragraph of which, if from no other, it may be inferred that the writer is not very well informed himself on either Alberta or Social Credit.

THE administration of Unemployment Insurance is no simple matter as will be discovered in Canada when it is introduced there.

It is one of the principles of administration in this country that the benefits received by unemployed persons shall not be in any sense a wage subsidy. A man may be employed part of a week and out of work for the rest of it. He will receive only enough money from the unemployment office to make his total receipts for the week, and benefit, equal to what he would have been granted had he been out of work during the whole week.

But now comes up the case of the cotton weavers. Ordinarily a weaver runs four looms. Owing to the depression, however, hundreds of weavers are working only two or three looms and being paid for a full week's work half or three-quarters of their normal wage, the amount being less than they would receive as unemployment benefit were they not working at all. Weekly earnings in many cases are only $3.75 to $4.25 a week, considerably less than the "dole" given men who are altogether idle.

The poor weavers have no choice; if offered work, though only on two looms, they must accept it and with it the accompanying financial hardship.

Representations have been made to the Minister of Labor asking for a change in the law that would permit the deficiency to be made up.

This technically, means subsidizing wages and the minister, Mr. Ernest Brown, emphasized that that was an infringement of one of the basic principles of unemployment insurance.

He undertook to see if it were possible to afford any relief to the weavers without letting in the thin edge of a very awkward wedge.

O-O-Oh SO Big

It's Shirley Temple in the shadow, gazing at her silhouette which on the screen has reached such proportions that seasoned adult troupers are reluctant to appear in the same film with the scene stealer. Shirley in her latest picture with John Boles, Karen Morley and Bill Robinson, "The Littlest Rebel," opens today at the Capitol.

RIALTO BOOKS TWO FEATURES IN NEXT WEEK

Bill Boyd is Starred in Drama of Race Tracks

Bill Boyd, popular "action-feature" star, provides another red-blooded characterization as Dan Morgan in Winchester's "Racing Luck," being presented at the Rialto theatre Monday. Boyd is at his best in this type of screen role—a hard-hitting, two-fisted hero, always on the side of justice and a square deal, who emerges triumphant in every encounter with the forces of dishonesty and cowardice.

"In 'Racing Luck' Boyd enacts the role of Dan Morgan, popular turf figure, whose horse wins the big race. An unscrupulous sportsman, certain that Morgan's horse will win, causes the animal to be stimulated. At the conclusion of the race, a test is made of the winner's saliva—and Morgan is ruled off for a year.

Anxious to clear his name, Morgan is on the alert to prove his innocence. He encounters his former rival in another track—and this time refuses to sell out his excellent chance of winning. The dishonest sportsman, having staked a fortune on his entry, resorts to a novel scheme to win the race—substituting another horse for the original entry. When the substitute horse wins, Morgan discloses the plot and is adjudged the winner.

"Film-goers are always looking for that 'something different' in screen entertainment. Next week we promise to satisfy the demands of the most difficult to please. We are showing from Monday next, 'Scrooge,' the fi'm version of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol,' with that fine actor, Seymour Hicks, in the title role," said Manager Long.

All the players have been well cast, and each part is a perfect cameo of characterization. In addition to Seymour Hicks and Donald Calthrop, the cast includes Philip Frost (a charming youngster new to the screen,) Mary Glynne, Hugh E. Wright, Margaret Yarde, Barbara Everst and C. V. France. Come and see "Scrooge"—you will feel proud that it is a British film.

As usual, "Breath of Spring" dinnerware will be given away free to the ladies the first three days of the week.

Here's A Little Fast Action At A Hollywood Cocktail Party!

By PAUL HARRISON
Bulletin Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4.—Cocktail party.

You ring the bell, and in his own good time a butler opens the door; opens it just wide enough to take a long, searching survey of you while you give your name. Obviously the butler is wondering whether you are a process server, an autograph hunter, a rum-spoiling gate-crasher, or possibly a bona fide guest.

Just as you are about to writ under his scrutiny and say that you came to read the gas meter, the hostess happens by and says: "Oh hel-LO how ARE you how NICE of you to come isn't it CHILLY tonight we're all downstairs in the BAR toasting marshmallows or SOMEthing ha-ha."

So you go down to what has been described as a cozy little playroom, but which reminds you of the Sert Room in the Waldorf-Astoria. As at most Hollywood parties, there is an astonishing number of people who don't know one another.

The rather painfully complicated introductions include a lawyer from Philadelphia, an artist from Milwaukee, a very young Englishman who is whispered to be a talent scout for a London studio, an exhibitor from Honolulu, a nice little bewildered old lady who is the mother of a former classmate of the Cagney Dancehostess, a New York writer who never has written anything, a fashion designer who already has had too many Martinis and insists she's part Eskimo—people like that.

WAITING FOR THE STARS

IT IS 6 o'clock, but not many top-notch stars have arrived. The bigger a star thinks he is, the later he comes—which may be the reason some stars never do get around to parties.

You stand around on one foot, and then the other, chatting with people and being a little vexed because somebody always interrupts the instant a conversation threatens to become interesting. You find yourself trying to listen to everyone at once.

"Do get me another Scotch. My dear, I'm so tired . . . get a divorce. Jealous? Boy, that woman's so jealous that in Technicolor she'd photograph jade green."

. . . . and he walked in, and there was Charlie Chaplin playing on a saw."

CONFIDENTIAL STUFF

A MAN who turns out to be a press agent comes over and says: "This may sound like press agent stuff, but did you know that Lucille LaRue has the biggest collection of miniature penguins in the world?"

". . . and he said, 'Now please—you're acting like a prima donna!' And Grace Moore said, 'You nit-wit, I AM a prima donna!' "

. . . positively never goes out, except to fights and wrestling matches. Went to just one concert, when Paderewski was here. But that was because she told him Paderewski was the Polish champ."

"There's Gable. Great guy. Hey, Clark! Hello, Clark . . . Oh, sure, you must remember Marty Murkin. Met you last week at Grace Bradley's . . ."

SAME FORMULA

"OH hel-LO how ARE you NICE of you to come isn't it CHILLY tonight my DEAR you're not LATE we're just getting STAR-ted . . . That would be the hostess.

". . . That is Gloria Swanson. Doesn't she look DAR-ling . . . and so the reason he became Tarzan was that Lupe told him to go climb a tree!"

Arlen Starts Out

. . . Can you use Tarzan in a sentence? Let's sing "Tarzan Stripes Forever. Haw! howat!"

. . . . most graceful dancer you ever saw. And yet Draper went rollerskating the other night and fell all over himself, and Paula Stone, too."

MOVIE PLANS

WERE thinking about doing "What Price Glory" again. Great idea for the part of Captain Flagg; you'd never guess—Gen. Hugh Johnson."

"Bing's so cute, really. Everywhere he goes he puts his head in first and says, 'Can I come in?' or, did you see "Two for Tonight?" I just adore Bing—and Dixie too, of course."

BOWED OUT

THE hostess: "Oh, you're not GOing already? why we're just getting STARTed so NICE to have seen you so GOOD of you to come."

The press agent bowling into his 16th highball waves adieu: "Think's not press agent stuff, but did know Lucille LaRue shtands out from th' crowd like a walrus in a goldfish bowl!"

SENSATION OF MOVIELAND IS CAPITOL STAR

Shirley Temple, the Child Wonder of Films, in New Role

When a little girl and her happiness are involved, the Blue and Gray are all friends—and no foes, as Shirley Temple's "The Littlest Rebel," proves.

The picture, adapted from that immortal play of the Civil War, is now playing at the Capitol theatre.

As the tiniest Confederate in Virginia, the dimpled darling of the screen plays her first big dramatic role in "The Littlest Rebel."

John Boles and Karen Morley are her parents. Separated by the war, they are rejoined just before Miss Morley succumbs to the rigors. Boles, though he fears apprehension as a spy, undertakes to deliver the child to her aunt in Richmond.

He is trapped by a Yankee officer, Jack Holt. But Holt surrenders to Shirley's charms, and tries to help them through the line. When their plot fails, both Holt and Boles are in hot water.

How the little girl uses her charms on the President of the Union to save her daddy and her dearest friend, is revealed in the tender dramatic climax of "The Littlest Rebel."

The songs Shirley sings during the picture include "Polly Wolly Doodle," especially composed by B. G. DeSylva and Sidney Clare, and "If All Thy Endearing Young Charms."

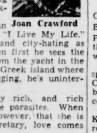
Bill Robinson, the colored genius of tap dancing, is again Shirley's inseparable companion in the picture. Between them they manage some deft and charming exhibitions of footwork.

Prominent in the supporting cast are Guinn Williams as a Yankee soldier, Willie Best as a faithful retainer, and Frank McGlynn.

JOAN CRAWFORD HEADS CAST OF EMPRESS FILM

Joan Crawford brings a new kind of picture as well as a new leading man to the Empress theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with her new production, "I Live My Life."

The story is novel, dramatic and at times uproariously funny. The leading man is Brian Aherne, the distinguished English actor, who with this picture comes into his own as a leading man to be reckoned with.



Joan Crawford

Aherne is an archaeologist in "I Live My Life," as handsome and city-hating as they come. When first he sees the beautiful girl from the yacht in the quiet bay of the Greek island where he has been digging, he's uninterested.

She's obviously rich, and rich girls, to him, are parasites. When she tells him, however, that she is the owner's secretary, love comes in a rush.

When, however, the archaeologist follows the girl to New York, discovers that she is in reality the rich man's spoiled daughter, trouble—and laughter—begin.

Miss Crawford has never been more glamorous than in this sprightly, magnificently mounted production.

CAST STAGE ACTRESS

Bonita Dex Londes, featured as the evangelist in the stage production of "Tobacco Road," has been given an important role in Harold Lloyd's film, "The Milky Way."

Ned Sparks To Sing Song In Penner Movie

It had to happen some time. Ned Sparks is going to sing.

The man with the saddest face in America is going to warble in "College Ate," his current assignment. Just what he will sing has not yet been decided, but it probably will be something along the lines of "Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile."

Mack Gordon and Harry Revel are concocting the tune.

Clark Gable At Princess

Compared to the pirates of 1935, Captain Kidd was a "sissy"!

That's the decision of Clark Gable, Jean Harlow and Wallace Beery, currently starred at the Princess theatre in "China Seas," a thrilling story of adventure off the wild southeast coast of Asia.

And Captain John Kelly, who has spent twenty-five years in the China coast trade and has had many brushes with the pirates, heartily concurs in their judgment.

"I never met Captain Kidd," said Kelly, "but I understand he was a reliable sort of fellow who never pretended to be anything but a pirate. It's not the way with those wild men in the China seas, a skipper never knows where he stands with those fellows. They're sneaky.

"Many a time I've found them masquerading as women in the forecastle of my ship, and had them clapped in irons just in time to avert a general raid."

Civil War Antiques Rescued From Fire

Following pleas from members of the American Historical society that no Civil War antiques be destroyed in the fire that was to raze a colonial mansion for a motion picture scene, Paramount rearranged the shooting of its pretentious "So Red the Rose."

The rearranging was done to permit the property department to duplicate antique tables which were to have been destroyed in pillaging scenes in which Margaret Sullavan, Walter Connelly, Randolph Scott and soldiers of two armies appear.

"It would have been a glorious death for them," declared Director King Vidor, "since they will eventually crumble to dust. But persons interested in preserving historical mementoes regardless of ownership convinced me they were right in pleading for a reprieve for the tables.

Willie Howard Plans Return To Broadway

He came west for one week's work in "Rose of the Rancho," but Willie Howard, Broadway favorite, is this week celebrating his sixth month in Hollywood.

Willie, prominently cast in "Millions in the Air," will finally get off for his beloved east next week, he has announced. With his equally famous brother, Eugene, Willie has been starred in the New York musical comedy, "Saratoga Chips," which Damon Runyon and Irving Caesare wrote for the duo. The musical is expected to be Willie's swan-song to Broadway, however, for following it he returns to Hollywood and Paramount as a permanent fixture.

LYNNE PREFERS CHICKENS

Lynne Overman, working with Bing Crosby in "Two For Tonight," has a chicken ranch at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., to which he plans to retire as soon as he leaves the screen.

Fall is a good time to adjust the brakes, which have been given hard usage during the summer.

MAJOR AND MINOR NOTES

The 1936 musical season will be set in motion here on Saturday when the Women's Musical Club holds its annual guest recital at the Masonic Temple. The guests will be Winnifred Elliston, soprano and Noel Cook, cellist, of Calgary. Miss Elliston captivated hearers here at the last musical festival when she won the Stutchbury cup. Mr. Cook is regarded as a cellist of exceptional ability and has been warmly praised by all who have heard him. Mrs. Cook will act as accompanist. The three arrived from Calgary on Friday and are staying at the Corona hotel.

On Friday, Jan. 17, the Musical Club will conclude its series of three celebrity concerts by bringing Ruggiero Ricci, sensational boy violinist, to the New Empire theatre. The success of the series was assured with the first concert.

Richard Crooks was the artist of the first concert and packed the Empire theatre. The second concert was given by the Moscow Cathedral choir and also proved highly popular. That the Ricci concert will be an outstanding success goes without saying, as the young artist has won acclaim in the best musical circles.

Leopold Stokowski, for 23 years conductor of the Philadelphia symphony orchestra is retiring as conductor of the organization and will be succeeded by Eugene Ormandy, conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony. Stokowski, however, will conduct 20 concerts next season. Ormandy is a Hungarian, who started his career as a European concert violinist. He migrated to the U.S., did considerable playing and then graduated into the conducting field, in which his progress has been rapid. Stokowski plans to devote his major energies to scientific research.

On Monday, Jan. 13, music lovers will have the opportunity of hearing the Hart House Quartet at Convocation Hall, University of Alberta. James Levey, former first violin of the London String Quartet has taken the place vacated by Geza de Kresz, who has returned to Europe to take over important teaching duties there. Mr. Levey already has firmly entrenched himself in the affections of Hart House Quartet admirers.

The Quartet will play the following program here:
1. Mozart. Quartet in D Minor. No. 13.
2. Mendelssohn. Canzonetta.
Joseph Spector. The Lonely Shepherd.
J. B. McEwen. Red Murdock.
3. Beethoven. Quartet in E. Minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Mae Pokes Fun At Threatening Letter Arrests

Despite her courageous but nerve-wracking assistance in the capturing of a man suspected of sending her threatening and extortion letters, Mae West was on hand at the studio the following day.

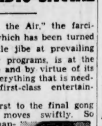
On her arrival at the "Klondike Lou" set, Miss West was greeted with cheers from the persons connected with the production.

"Nothing to it," said Mae, "I always get my man."

NEW PICTURE AT STRAND, A RADIO SATIRE

"Millions in the Air," the farcical romance which has been turned out as a gentle jibe at prevailing radio amateur programs, is at the Strand theatre and by virtue of its variety, has everything that is needed to make first-class entertainment.

From the first to the final gong this picture moves swiftly. So many things happen that it is useless for a reviewer to attempt to tell it all. The amateur hour theme makes it possible for the producers to introduce about a dozen different acts, all suitably fused into the main story, which concerns the romance of a young saxophone player and the daughter of the radio program's sponsor.



Wendy Barrie

Wendy Barrie, the talented British actress, and John Howard, a new and refreshing screen personality, have the romantic leads in "Millions in the Air." George Barbier, unquestionably one of the finest character actors on stage or screen, is the spasm-selling sponsor. And there is no end of comedy in the picture, contributed mainly by Willie Howard, Dave Chasen and Benny Baker.

Willie Howard is exceptionally well cast as an Italian vegetable peddler with a yearning to sing "Rigoletto" while Chasen brings one of the stage's funniest episodes—his one-man orchestra—to the picture.

Sizzling Heat Delays Start Of West Film

California's summer weather is delaying the start of Mae West's next picture.

The blonde star is writing the screen play for "Klondike Lou," her next, which Raoul Walsh will direct. It takes place in Alaska.

"But how can I write hot love scenes about a cold country when the thermometer is hitting 86?" queries Mae.

Blonde Star Offers Ermine Coat Advice

Carole Lombard, enjoying a brief holiday after "Hands Across the Table," her newest picture, calls attention to the fact that there are ermine coats and ermine coats. But the thing which makes an ermine coat really smart is the manner in which one wears it, according to this very fashionable feminine star. One method Carole resorts to is pinning a corsage of brilliant red roses against the dead white ermine scarf which loops over itself very close to her intentionally pallid face. The contrast is breathtaking.

Action Romance For Dreamland

Cary Grant, Claude Rains, of "The Invisible Man" fame, Gertrude Michael, Kathleen Burke and Colin Tapley head the cast of the film, "The Last Outpost," which comes to the Dreamland theatre Monday.

It is a story of a handful of men who control the destines of millions of people in the fierce, mysterious deserts and jungles of Arabia. Filmed by the same company that made "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," this film tells of the three-cornered romance between two officers and a nurse in a behind-the-lines hospital.

Fast friends, inseparable, the two have been through many dangers together. Grant's life is saved by his brother officer, who in turn, because of the girl, goes through a million hells to kill him. How these two friends are reunited is told in an exciting climax.

Former Western Star Signs For New Movie

The old west met the new when William Duncan, veteran actor of silent days, was assigned to the cast of "Nevada," in which Larry "Buster" Crabbe has the leading male role.

Retired from the screen for the past 11 years, Duncan, reputed to have received the record "silent" days salary of $5000 a week, has been living on his ranch in the hills near Hollywood.

The temptation to appear in the Zane Grey film proved too much for the veteran. With Duncan and Larry in "Nevada" are Kathleen Burke, Raymond Hatton, Monte Blue and Sid Saylor.

Art Weibe Rises From Country Boy To Grand Star In Major Hockey

Acquires Original Style in Prominent Steps To Top of Hockey Ladder After Tortuous Battle

By TOMMY GRAHAM

From a country boy to a star performer in the National hockey league is the brief summary of the tortuous struggle that Art. Weibe fought successfully in realizing his boyhood ambition. . . . Determination and perseverance have been the watch words in the colorful career this stalwart, dark-thatched youth has carved for himself in the sporting world.

WEIBE GOT THERE THE HARD WAY

Fame in any vocation in life usually comes after a long uphill fight . . . some of the more fortunate, however, rise to reach the top with almost ridiculous ease, but it was not so in the case with Weibe . . . He got there the hard way. The story of his rise up the ladder to fame can probably be compared with an episode in the writings of the famed author, Horatio Alger.

While he has only just passed his 23rd birthday, Art has encountered many a trial and hardship since he left his home town and started out in quest of a hockey career.

STYLE OF OWN

But through it all he plugged steadily on, until today he is one of the "top-notchers" in the big show. It took plenty of fight, and Art, although he was never very shifty nor particularly fast, has developed a style of his own, which makes him highly thought of by his teammates and officials of the Chicago Black Hawks, where he performs on defence.

Physically, Weibe is constructed in a robust manner, his shoulders are reasonably compact but no one would ever believe that he tips the scales at 192 pounds. That is because he carries most of his weight in his legs. They are tremendously large in fact they give him a rather undersiding appearance. But they are mighty powerful and undoubtedly account for his durability and rugged style of play while in action. It takes plenty to knock Art off his pins . . . and when he hits you be sure jars you with a powerful jolt that isn't easy to get over in a hurry.

VERMILION FIRST

Art started playing hockey at an early age and played around with school and town hockey teams at Vermilion until he was 17 yrs. old then that he really began his hockey career.

Barney Stanley, a former National league hockey star himself, and who has done considerable in sending up several Edmonton puckchasers, gave Weibe his first big chance when he took him to Vermilion. He gave him a defence berth with his team in the Edmonton junior hockey league.

CHARGE DEFENCE

Art's peculiar style of play proved exceptional to the fans almost overnight, and it was not long before he was one of the most popular players in the junior ranks. His style to wow 'em with his rushes which reminded you of a charging bull ready to bite his horns into the victim. He would just plow down the ice as fast as his sturdy legs would carry him, and although this was not very fast, he always managed to get there and accounted for his share of goals during the season's play.

But it was on defence that Art really starred. He teamed up with Ab Menielly as the first string rearguard. Then duo gave Gordie McClintock in the nets plenty of protection. Bob Gillies, who is starring with the Dominion seniors was the third defenceman of the club and it took quite of flight to break through the Pooler defence. Probably this was a big reason why they won the league title. Other reasons might have been the fact that Neil Colville, Louis Trudel, Harry Walker, Howard Smith, Ab Darkes, Andy and Harry Maloney were also members of the club.

HAD HARD LUCK

Poolers entered provincial finals against Calgary Jimmies but old Dame Fortune shifted gears on them right at the climax of a successful year. George McClintock suffered a fractured jaw and had to be replaced in goal. Bob Gillies went into the net and the Poolers won the first game 5-1 on Calgary ice. They came back to lose the second and title 3-1 on their home rink.

Art enjoyed another season in the junior loop as a defenceman before he was given a tryout with Chicago Black Hawks along with Louis Trudel. Both were unsuccessful but were sent to minor league clubs. They first played with Tulsa where Art really gained a reputation for himself as a defenceman. He also played with Kansas City before being given his second trial with the Hawks. This time he stuck, and has been going great guns ever since.

HAVE CONFIDENCE

Clem Loughlin, coach of the Chicago club has great confidence in Weibe. He rates him highly despite his original style of play. Bill Tobin, a former Edmonton lad, who was largely responsible for getting the Chicago team as well as the owner Major McLaughlin, has great faith in his ability as a defenceman.

While Weibe is not an Edmonton boy, and only played a few years in the junior ranks here, this city nevertheless claims him as one of her many products.

OVERCOME HANDICAP

Weibe had to overcome quite a handicap in order to make the grade. He had to develop a style of his own, and had he not, there is little doubt that he would have made the big show. He first started his type of play on local ice ponds

JUST AMONG OURSELVES

This, as we all know, is the season for New Year's resolutions. . . . But let us learn the making of these resolutions to each individual and delve for a moment or two into a shadowy philosophy of our everyday business and social life. I say shadowy because with many of us to surrender too deeply into an analysis of our week spots, actions and general condition of lassitude, might bring a realization that easily to be shaken off or forgotten.

Of course, there is no limit to the alibis and excuses which we can very easily use to save our faces, but these are nothing but an admission of our own weakness and defeat. . . . Furthermore, if we were as proficient and adept in our work as in making alibi's the world would be filled with nothing but geniuses.

The truth remains, however, that everyone makes mistakes—and to stretch it a little further let us say that the more a man accomplishes the more mistakes he makes. This albeit is not a commendable one mistake, for mistakes are better made—but the next important thing when in error is the prompt acknowledgement by the one who United church has made a mistake was of the hand and not of the heart.

Then, too, are we the ones who are continually putting up the wail and plaint that we do not get the "breaks?" If we are, we had better change our tunes, for what we are trying to say is that opportunity never comes our way. That, too, is ridiculous because our chances are strewn and no better than those which surround every individual today. Opportunity is always present in our affairs, regardless of position or circumstances. Certainly true ambition is not just to sit and idly dream about the marvelous powers that are holding us back.

One with this attitude is suffering from a clouded vision and a mind poisoned with false imagination that the world is not giving him a square deal. One good line of words is worth 10,000 wishes in the way of success, for if we remember correctly there are several laws of life that we get according to proportion to what we give in service.

Surely there is no fixed formula to success but in the attainment of our desires but at least we should learn all we can about individual selves each day we live, to do as we do and thus become an expert in our line. And this done, at last we have a real foundation on which to build our next and all future steps towards our goal.

From the writing of Confucius comes this proverb, "One feels himself most dejected when he realizes his efforts have been handicapped by his own deceit."

Let's get together in the new year and start off with a clean slate, make an effort to build up that foundation and really start off on our trip to success.

BOY LEGISLATORS ARE ENTERTAINED BY C. G. I. T. GIRLS

Entertaining the solons of the 16th Alberta Tuxis Boys' Parliament, the Edmonton Girls' Council of the Canadian Girls in Training held a social in the basement of Wesley United church last Tuesday.

In the evening the girls were entertained by the stormy debates at the Parliament Buildings, when the youth legislature had the privilege of displaying its oratorical ability before the entire Girls' Council, who were present in a body.

The games played Saturday afternoon were under the direction of Betty Farley, who was assisted by Mary Alexander, Pauline Sellers and Joan Lovette as committee members.

In charge of refreshments were: Margaret Hughes, Margaret Mackenzie, Grace McClinton and Marion Cooper. Premier Charles K. Hurst and Cabinet Minister Roger Flummerfelt assisted in the celebration by leading the singing.

Visiting radio station CJCA and returning to the church for a supper meeting, members of the Chimbers' Senior C.G.I.T. of Avonmore United church had a busy time on Monday of this week. Games and songs followed the supper.

All C.G.I.T. of Metropolitan church united last Monday for a big Christmas party in the church, when each girl received a Christmas present from the tree.

Boy Parliamentarians Hold Successful Meet During Holiday Season

Co-ordination and Enthusiasm for Tuxis Work are Keynote in Sessions of 16th Annual Alberta Boys' Parliament

"The 16th Alberta Tuxis Boys' Parliament concluded this week struck a new high note by virtue of its smooth co-ordination and vigorous spirit of enthusiasm for the Tuxis movement," states Matt Davis, premier of the next parliament, which is to be held in Calgary.

A third year student in Arts and Law, Davis, who has long been a Tuxis promoter at Eastwood United church, and who has been mayor of the Edmonton Tuxis Council, was elected to this office immediately following prorogation Monday night.

TO ENFORCE LEGISLATION

"All the legislation of this year's parliament will be carried out," states the premier-elect, "and the fact that it has been enacted so as to employ the Tuxis population in publishing "Tuxis Tales," in gaining the co-operation of the churches, and in promoting finances, will mean that every Tuxis boy will have a personal interest in parliament and in the movement of which he is a member."

Davis predicts a great increase in the strength of the Tuxis movement, and greater active co-operation can be obtained from the churches. He hopes to see the installation of the commissioner type of organization, as he believes this will be a vital factor in bringing about greater centralization to badly needed to replace the present loose knit of the Tuxis movement.

"To help establish national Tuxis unity will be one aim of the new parliament," states its premier-elect. "This can be accomplished by greater co-operation, first with each group, then among the groups of the province, and finally interprovincially, possibly by means of a summer meeting of all Boys' parliament premiers."

DR. WALLACE SPEAKS

"The greatest advance in the next 50 years will be in the political realm," stated Dr. R. C. Wallace, president of the University of Alberta, who headed the list of speakers addressing the recent Tuxis Boys' parliament.

Speaking on "Education and Vocations," he proclaimed that there was a great need for true statesmanship and in these fast-changing times saw this as opening up practically a new vocational field.

The university president saw social sciences, international relations and human nature as new vocational fields, claiming that in these lay the great need for men of vision.

"The thing you want most to do is the thing you will do most successfully," stated Dr. Wallace, who told his listeners that many who take a university degree will never be educated. "Education comes through a cultivation of the working of other people's minds, through reflection and reasoning. It should stimulate. My education has come to me since I left university.

"A teacher must be a clear thinker, able to forget himself, and able to impress his personality upon his students. There are teachers who are not those who harp on morals but those who live a life," stated Dr. Wallace, who concluded by urging youth to take a broad view of education and cultivate a wide knowledge of many fields beside the chosen vocation.

A. E. OTTEWELL IS SPEAKER

Tracing the growth of love within individual nations and showing how people had come to accept policing within their own nation, A. E. Ottewell expressed the hope that this principle could be applied to an international police force under the direction of the League of Nations.

Mr. Ottewell was speaking before the recent Tuxis Boys' parliament on "World Trends."

"Only fools feel cramped by laws," stated Mr. Ottewell, "because laws restricting our individual liberty are necessary for the greater liberty of the community, as our traffic regulations for our highways well show."

Mr. Ottewell doubted if armament manufacturers were a great factor in the present state of affairs, expressing his belief that patriotism and racial prejudices were greater factors.

He hoped that much good would come of the principle of sanctions as a method of preventing wars, and stated he believed Italy was judging by old standards when she reproached England for her present stand with the taunt that Britain had won her empire by conquest. "There are new times today and we must judge 'by today's standards,' " said the speaker.

OTHER SPEECHES HEARD

Vocational guidance talks were heard from Dick Johnson, Morley Tuttle and Ed. Jordan, on law, medicine and engineering.

"There is a great field for the lawyer today in the realm of comparative jurisprudence," stated the first speaker, who saw the possible solution of many international problems by the application of scientific legal principles.

He dealt with the training of a law student, and was closely followed by his year's articles in a law office, before admission to the bar, and pointed out that these are the alternative method of five year's articles. He suggested that the so-called "one law for the rich and one law for the poor problem," was a social problem having to do with distribution of wealth, rather than a legal problem.

"The doctor works with God, nature and man," stated Morley Tuttle. "Although medicine is not a financial success it is a success from the standpoint of alleviation of human suffering." He dealth with various phases of the study of medicine: Psychological cases, mental, surgical, etc. He pointed out that study does not cease with college, and made reference to the great advances being made in the science of medicine at the present time.

ENGINEERING ESSENTIAL

"Engineering profession is indispensable to modern civilization," stated Ed. Jordan, who traced the history of this science from the pyramids to the present and pointed out what a vast field it is. "Vision, creative instinct and an analytical mind were described as essential characteristics of an engineer.

The fields of chemical and electrical engineering were discussed and the wide possibilities of the future in these fields was suggested.

Y.W.C.A. CLUBS PLAN PROGRAMS FOR NEW YEAR

"Toy Orchestra", "Dramatics" and "Homecraft" are new interests of "Y" Quando Quo Club. For six weeks the club will pursue these interests with competent leadership. Once a week discussions on subjects of vital interest to high school girls will take the place of the interest groups throughout the year. The "Y" Quando Quo Club of fifty high school girls meets Fridays from five to seven thirty.

From a variety of intensely interesting suggestions, members of the Cheery Chums Club of the Y.W.C.A. will select their program for the coming term. Friendship evenings will be held monthly and will be a new and interesting venture. All household assistants who are free Thursday evenings are invited to join the club and help plan interesting things to do.

The first venture of the Beta Pi Gamma Club for the New Year will be an "International Night". Special music and a special speaker is the main feature of the evening. Later, interest groups will meet to outline their courses. Business and professional girls meet in the Beta Pi Gamma Club of the Y.W.C.A. for friendship, music, a bite to eat and interesting things.

Among the new program plans of the Gay League Club is the plan of "making a movie" of the club members, possibly taking the form of a fashion show. Other adventuresome plans are being made Monday night, when the Gay League Club of the Y.W.C.A. will hold their weekly meeting at the supper hour.

Many stories have been current about animals that used intelligence and reasoning in solving problems and rescuing individuals, but no one has ever yet proved that any living being other than man is able to reason. Physiologists explain the apparent cases of reasoning as "conditioning" and habit formation, along with natural instincts. Many animals show remarkable response in unusual situations, but it has never been proved that they can reason.

A.W.I.G.C. Completes Successful Year In 22 Alberta Centres

Interesting Programs of an Educational Nature Held by Branches of the Alberta Women's Institute Girls' Club

To start the New year Miss Betty Thompson of Coalbale has an inspiring message to one and all.

"Another year has passed. A great deal has been accomplished and much has been left undone, but as we stand on the threshold of a new year, our interests and enthusiasms awake to the new possibilities that lie before us.

"Let us not be afraid to venture into new fields, for fear is the one quality in human weakness that will, possibly, more than any other, keep us from going forward.

"To the members and supervisors of the Alberta Women's Institute Girls' Club, I extend greetings, and trust that 1936 will be exceedingly happy for everyone, and one of the most successful of our club years."

SCOUT GROUPS ACTIVE DURING HOLIDAY SEASON

Boy Scouts of the 14th (Riverside) troop had good reason to celebrate the holiday season at their Christmas party held last Saturday as it marked the occasion of the presentation of their colors and troop flag.

The presentation was made by Col. R. H. Palmer, D.S.O., who formerly Scoutmastered the 14th when it was called in a different section of the city. Col. Palmer told the interesting story of how the Union Jack colors had been presented to the original 14th by the British naval officer. The officer was so imbued with the ideal of love of country that during his retirement at an advanced age he continued to serve in the navy in a very minor position because of his desire to do so as long as his health would permit.

Acting as flag-bearers and guard of honor, assistant Rover Leader P. D. Fowler and Rover Scout Harry Holloway were also present. Moving pictures were shown to the troop by Executive Commissioner W. S. Backman. Several Scouts of Scoutmaster,

The troop flag which was presented was one made by the Mothers' Association of the Sixth troop of Holy Trinity church.

Honorary Rover Scouts Percy Cooper, Rover commissioner, Verdun Rover Scout Mount of the district association, and Col. R. H. Palmer, Rover leader, were among the guests at the dinner last Saturday. The Sixth will be hosts at the regular meeting of the Rovers' meeting to be held within the near future.

The local troop at Grande Prairie completed its first Boy Scout troop at that point during Christmas week. Reports received from Scoutmaster G. I. Card indicate that the venture was a complete success, and executive commissioner W. S. Backman, who is highly pleased that this popular form of social service is working its way into the north country under auspices of the Boy Scouts.

Over 175 toys were repaired and painted by the Grande Prairie Scouts, who were assisted in the work of distribution by the local Central Relief Committee. The toys were gathered by a house canvass and by a toy realizer, the theatre for which was donated by Frank Donald. Boy Scouts collecting the toys at the door.

Women, Too, Steer Ship Of State

The gentle hand of woman is taking a firmer grip on the tiller of the ship of state. Two women senators, two women members in the House of Commons and a gradual intrusion of women into municipal council chambers evidence increasing interest of Canadian women in government of their country.

Senator Cairine Wilson of Ottawa and Senator Iva Fallis of Peterborough represent Canadian womanhood in the Upper House. Mrs. George Black of the Yukon and Agnes MacPhail, member for Grey-Bruce, are the only women members of the House of Commons.

Canadian electors have seen nine women aldermen and two councillors to municipal council chambers. Nora Frances Henderson is on the executive Board of Control of Hamilton, Ont. Six women are serving on public school boards throughout the Dominion.

LISTENER—FOR A WHILE

"I'm going to sit and listen for a time. I realize I have to learn how things work," said Mrs. Adelaide Plumptre, newly-elected member of Toronto city council, indicating of the spirit of women in this new work.

Clara Twidale of Niagara Falls, Olive Jane Whyte of Windsor, Mrs. Agnes Sharpe of Hamilton are the other Ontario women aldermen. Hallam township near Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., welcomes Mrs. E. McKie and Mrs. George Hicks as township councillors.

AS CITY FATHERS

Western women are just as determined to take part in the government of their cities. Mrs. Margaret McWilliams is an alderman of Winnipeg and Mrs. Brandon is an alderman in nearby Brandon. Mrs. H. D. Heaslip sits as alderman in Moose Jaw, Sask., Mrs. R. Dinson is alderman in Calgary, while 25-year-old Margaret Crang is in her third year as alderman in Edmonton.

Women are without representation of their sex on municipal councils of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Quebec, British Columbia or the Yukon, but hold some offices on school boards.

Mrs. H. R. Stewart is a member of the Halifax school board. In Ontario Mrs. W. Douglas has been elected to the school board of Webbwood near Sault Ste. Marie. Mrs. Nellie Howard is on Fort William board of education, and Mrs. Emily Carson is a member of Port Arthur's school board. In the west, Amelia Turner and Mrs. D. A. Anderson have earned places on the school board of Calgary.

Veteran of aldermanic council and the school board, Mrs. Joseph Hanley is candidate for the mayoralty in Webbwood, Ont., and may be Canada's first woman mayor. Her opponent in the forthcoming election is a man, R. E. Streich.

Weddings

GRADEN—McKINLAY

STONY PLAIN, Jan. 4.—Streamers of silver ribbon, festoons of tinsel, and huge bells were used decorative notes at the wedding of Florence Ethel, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murdock McKinlay, and Gordon Allan, son of Mr. Thomas Graden and the late Mrs. Graden, which was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents on Saturday.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in a floor length gown of French blue crepe with matching jacket. Presiding at the bride's table, which was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, flanked on either side by tall white tapers in silver candelabra, were Miss Donald and Mrs. Mrs. George Powell. Boy Virtuoso Will Play Here

RUGGIERO RICCI.

14-year-old boy violinist, of New York, whose genius has been acclaimed by the most eminent critics, will be heard in Edmonton on the evening of Friday, January 17. The Ricci violin recital is the third of the series arranged by the Women's Musical Club in Edmonton, who sponsor the Celebrity Concert Series. Ruggiero Ricci came to New York five years ago from his home in San Francisco, and astounded the musical world with the breath-taking beauty of tone in his playing, the extraordinary feeling and musicianship of the nine-year-old wonder. He is allowed to give only 12 recitals each year, so the opportunity given Edmonton audiences to hear him is the more to be appreciated.

Always a stimulus to the artistic talents of handicraft workers is the announcement of an exhibition, and the plans of the provincial branch of the Canadian Handicraft Guild to hold an exhibition in January, between the dates of Wednesday and Saturday, January 23-25, is of particular interest to workers throughout the province. There will be four divisions in the exhibition rugs, in which original or traditional designs may be followed; articles made from Alberta grown wool, furcraft, and Indian work.

Rugs may be woven, hooked, braided, crocheted or knitted, and may be made of wool, silk or cotton, old or new material . . . except in the case of braided rugs. There are also classes for fluffy knitted, cross stitch, binder twine or rope rugs, quilted rugs; rugs made of sheepskin, with the wool on, undyed; rugs made of sheepskin with the wool on, dyed; rugs made from calf or other skin, home-tanned.

Articles made from Alberta wool may include blankets, woven, knitted or crocheted, also a vat blanket, sweater or jumper, stockings, socks, mittens, gloves, scarf, children's set of clothing, overalls, coat or jersey and cap. Articles made from Alberta grown Angora wool will also be judged.

The furcraft class is open for rabbit skin home cured; skin of any other animal, home cured; article made from home-cured skins.

Indian work, moccasins, gloves, purse, bag; any other article in leather, beadwork, bone or other medium.

Judging will be on the A. B. C. basis, with class A including work receiving 75 points or more; class B, 60 and less than 75 in the B group, and between 50 and 60 in C class. Societies and institutions submitting articles will be limited to two articles in each class and the committee, although guaranteeing utmost care, can not be responsible for loss or damage to articles.

It is hoped that owners of rare old hand made rugs or Indian work will exhibit them, and that boys and girls under the age of 14 will exhibit articles in all classes. The age of the worker should be stated on the card or label.

To be eligible for competition, all articles must be the actual handwork of the competitor, and must have been completed within the last two years. Articles for exhibition only are not subject to this rule. No competitor may enter more than one article in any one class.

COMPETITION RULES

Each article must have a card or label attached to it with the full name and address of the competitor on the under side and the class number on the upper side. The name of the competitor should not be visible anywhere on the article. In the case of a piece work that has been the joint work of two or more persons, the names of all the workers must be written on the card or label or on a separate sheet of paper. Any article not so labelled may be disqualified from competition.

All work for competition must be sent, transport paid, by sender, or delivered in person, to the Provincial Bay Company store, Jasper avenue, Edmonton, not later than Tuesday, January 21. It should be marked on the outside: "Prize Competition, Exhibition, afternoon, January 23," with full name and address of sender.

Return transport of entries from outside of Edmonton, must be provided for by exhibitors, will be paid by the committee.

If a box or parcel is sent in by an organization, containing several articles made by members of the organization, the name and address of the secretary of the organization must be attached to the box or parcel. A list of the articles in the contains must be included.

Where competitors desire to have their work placed for sale, the price should be clearly marked and must not be prohibitive. The purchaser will be charged the worker's price, plus a commission added to that price by the Guild to help pay expenses.

BIGGER and bigger stars, at least where Hollywood is concerned, is the order of the day, for one learns that the second generation in the great cinema capital averages one inch taller and several pounds heavier per man than the parent. The larger stars are the brighter ones, is logical enough, judging the heavenly constellations, but in this case, too, it probably signifies that the brighter they shine, because they are heavier. "Seven Sons of Seven Famous Film Stars" sounds like the title of an exciting new novel, but is the unique personnel chosen by Director Henry MacRae for a late production. Tallest in this unusual cast, to each member of which has been given a featured role, is Houpe Peters, Jr., who is 6 feet, 2½ inches taller than his father. A two-listed star of many memorable silent films. Next in line is Wallace Reid, Jr., six feet two, or one inch taller than the handsome Wallace Reid, most romantic of American silent screen stars. Bryant Washburn, Jr., is an inch taller than his dad as is also Harold Mayall, Jr., son of a former stage and screen leading man. Edward Arnold, Jr., is pounds lighter than his father, "Diamond Jim", but exactly the same height, and Alan Hershott has grown so rapidly in the past summer that he is now taller than his father, Jean Hersholt. Peter Goodland is a half inch taller than his father, Gibson Gowland, well known character star now appearing in European films following a trip to Greenland for "S. O. S. Iceberg."

Leader In Temperance Gives Review

Gradually and carefully by alteration and moderation and by scientific anti-alcohol education, the fingers of legalized liquor traffic are being released, stated Mrs. Moffat Clow of Ulster, Ireland, in a comprehensive address under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and Missionary Societies in First Baptist church on Friday afternoon. Mrs. Clow is past president of Ulster W.C.T.U. and a member of the executive of the world organization, as editor of "The Endeavor," as a tourist whose extensive travels have afforded her opportunity to study peace and temperance movements in many countries, and as an enthusiast whose vital interest in the question has led her, in eleven weeks of a holiday tour to speak 79 times and to cover over 5,000 miles, to do so.

Mrs. Clow was an extremely authoritative and engaging lecturer.

From notable world conventions of the W.C.T.U. Mrs. Clow brought encouraging reports of definite progress. At a memorable gathering in London, 18 out of the 27 countries represented had been the occasion of enough importance to pay expenses for official government delegates. An important step had been made in the use of alcohol in hospitals for medicinal cases is being drastically limited.

Thus, Mrs. Clow informed her White Ribbon sisters that the liquor menace has been driven from another stronghold. Another major step was effected some four months ago, when the British minister of transport, realizing the great proportion of deaths and accidents on the annual road toll that could be attributed to intoxication, issued to every licensed driver in Great Britain stressing the advisability for total abstinence, especially on the part of motorists.

Wine and effective has been the "counter attractions" method following prohibition in countries, for instance, in Denmark, a typical dairying country, the use of milk has been so encouraged, with prizes for its sale in parks and on street corners and by the issuing of cards for expression from friend to friend. "Come and have a white," is quite common! Similar practice is followed lishes in Australian railway stations.

In Switzerland and Germany a vast campaign has been encouraged to manufacture raisins from their grapes, and the industry has turned such a profitable one that last year the month of May is set aside as a "raisin month."

Miss T. B. McMormand, president of the Associated Temperance Forces of Alberta, was chairman for the meeting, and Miss Alice Knight, Provincial president of the W. C. T. U., and Mrs. S. M. Bolton, president of the Edmonton Presbyterial of the Missionary Societies were honored guests.

Selections by the McDonald Baptist Church Male Quartette and vocal solos by Mrs. Brooi were greatly enjoyed.

Sponging Relatives Curse Of Newlyweds

DEAR MISS DIX.—How much do we owe to our relatives? My husband is a man on a small salary. It takes a lot of managing for our own family to live on what he makes, but ever since we have been married we have had relatives who came uninvited to plant themselves down on us for support. Often they brought their whole families with them. During the depression we have had just a procession of these relatives who said they would rather starve than ask for relief, and as the result, we have all come near starving. We are in rags, behind on our rent and groceries, and it will take months of scrimping to catch up, if we ever do.

Dorothy Dix

Yesterday my youngest brother quit his job, which he always does every winter, and came here, bag and baggage, with the intention of spending the winter with us. When I told him he would have to try to find some other place to park, as I couldn't afford to support him, he got perfectly furious with me. None of these relatives who sponge on us even offered us a crust of bread when my husband was sick and down and out, but as soon as he was able to work again they descended on us. Don't you think I am right to turn the welcome sign down on the doormat? WORRIED WIFE.

Answer: Indeed I do, and as grafting relatives have no fine sensibilities that make them take a gentle hint, you will do well if you will double padlock your door as well. Your first duty is to your own family, and you fail in that when you work your poor husband to death in order to support your kinspeople. He didn't marry your family when he married you, and there is no more reason why he should provide for them than any other strangers.

Hospitality is one of the most beautiful of the virtues, but it becomes a vice when you let deadbeats make it the screen for a hold-up, and that is what is only too often done. All of us have relatives or so-called friends who use our houses to save themselves from paying hotel bills and who wish themselves upon us for interminable visits whenever they lose a job or feel as if they would like to have a little rest and change, or a vacation that costs them nothing.

That they come uninvited, that they put us to trouble and inconvenience and force us to spend money on them that we cannot afford, is nothing to them. They are getting what they want and they should worry. If they are despicable parasites, we are contemptible softies and fools for putting up with it.

We should have enough courage to say to them that we are not running free hotels, that we have all that we can do to support our own families and that they will have to find shelter elsewhere. If this makes them angry, as it probably will, so much the better. It will keep us from being eaten out of house and home.

Many women who are cursed with sponging relatives are cruelly unjust to their husbands, for they take all their husbands make to spend on their own people. There is always a horde of hungry aunts and uncles and cousins at the table and camping all over the house. There is always a sister with a hard-luck story and a brother who is borrowing money that he never returns. Mother is always needing a nice warm coat and father a new suit. The little nieces and nephews have to have their adenoids out, the boys and girls must be sent off to college, and the poor husband has to foot the bills. Many a man is sold into slavery to his wife's people on his wedding day.

I think that the wife who does this gives her husband a rotten deal and one that he is foolish not to resent.

DOROTHY DIX.

Mothers Approve Guide to Better Control of Colds

Simple Plan Helps Them to Gain Greater Freedom from Colds for Their Families.

EASY TO FOLLOW IN THE HOME

Mothers throughout Canada are now helping their families to have fewer, milder and shorter colds—by following the famous Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds.

Developed especially for mothers, this practical Plan represents the 30 years' experience of Vicks Chemists and Medical Consultants in studying colds. It has been tested in extensive clinics by practicing physicians—further proved in everyday home use from coast to coast.

Here, briefly, are its three simple steps:

1. To Help Build Resistance to Colds Live normally—avoid excesses. Eat simple food and keep elimination regular. Drink plenty of water. Take some exercise daily—outdoors preferably. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

2. To Help Prevent Many Colds At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off head colds in the early stages.

3. To Help End a Cold Sooner If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, rub throat and chest at bedtime with Vicks VapoRub. VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

What Vicks Plan can do for you and your family can be proved only by trying it. You'll find full directions for following the Plan in any package of Vicks Va-tro-nol or Vicks VapoRub.

Your Children - By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

On New Year's day, children, it used to be a binding matter if you made a "promise" or "pledge" to yourself. If you said you were going to stop kicking the door open, it meant that exactly, and not just maybe. If you did not keep your New Year's resolution, particularly if you had let it be known, it showed that you weren't as good as your word. And that was bad.

O. R. Barton

At present this resolution business is considered a sort of joke. Mr. Smith says, "I'm not going to smoke another cigarette," then in the next hour buys a pack. Mrs. Smith says she isn't going to eat a single piece of pie for a year, then eats two pieces for dinner that night.

So you cannot go by the old folks—that is, if you think you'd like to make a New Year's promise to yourself. You see, older people haven't any too much "will power" sometimes. It takes children from four to twenty (oh yes, to me twenty is still fresh, rosy youth) to do things they say, and say what they mean.

SOME IDEAS LISTED

Now I'm not preaching or asking or suggesting. But if you run your eye over this list, maybe something will strike you that fits your case. For instance you might:

Try to see your mother's or father's side when they seem to be too strict. They know so many things about life and people that you don't. Actually, parents are very smart. Even the dumbest. They worry because they know you don't know danger when you see it.

Try very hard not to compare your mother to other mothers, or your father to other fathers. You may think Mrs. Smith's house lovelier and find Mrs. Smith merrier and prettier and wish your mother was like that. But her home isn't yours and your mother has problems Mrs. Smith hasn't. Don't criticize her and make it harder. Love and respect her and HELP her. Don't get it into your head, either, please, that dad could be a millionaire if he tried. Maybe he would be set up all sorts of ways, and have more courage, if his family made him feel important. Between you aand me, children, fathers are very funny. Some are even AFRAID of their sons and daughters and have to bark a lot, like whistling to keep up your courage.

Try hard to obey. Oh, yes, it sounds foolish, I know, when some of the things you are told to do bore you to death almost. But it happens that obedience to orders is good for all of us. It builds up character, even though we cannot see the reason at the time. Don't be afraid to obey. You won't become a sissy or a mamby-pamby. It's just the other way around.

Keep neat and clean. It is odd how people just give us one look and decide INSTANTLY by our appearance exactly what we are. They might be wrong but they think they are right. And that's the danger.

Do a lot of stooping around the house. Someone has to pick up and put away. It isn't fair for mother to be forever clearing up your mess, is it?

Tell somebody in the house where you are going. That is only right.

Don't be a tease or a grouch or a goop. One kidder, or kill-joy or smart aleck can ruin the day for everybody.

Learn to save your clothes. It's so hard to get out spots and mud and stains.

Tell the truth. This is a real art fellows—and girls. Young people can make truth fashionable and smart just as some of the up-and-coming young people recently have decided that milk at parties is far snappier than cocktails, if you know what I mean. There is something about truth, (the harder the better); that makes a pillow feel good. And gives you a grand appetite.

Beauty Seeks Aid In Facial Preparation

By GLADYS GLAD

"Dear Miss Glad: I hate to reveal my colossal ignorance to you, but—could you tell me just what the difference is between a cold cream and a cleansing cream? I should know, I suppose, but I really don't. Are both these preparations used for the same purpose, or do their uses differ? I shall be ever so grateful if you will give me this information. BETSY."

There really isn't a great deal of difference between cold creams and cleansing creams. Cleansing creams are usually light in texture and melt to an oil at body temperature. And while cold creams are, as a rule, of a stiffer consistency, there are also a number of light, fluffy cold creams. Both types of creams may be used for cleansing the skin. However, cleansing cream is generally used for this purpose only, while cold cream may also be employed for nourishing and softening the skin, and for protecting it against the rigors of the elements.

"Dear Miss Glad: About two months ago I started the reducing course in your 'New Figure' booklet, and—well, here I am, 29 pounds lighter and ever so much happier. Too bad more women don't get wise to how much your booklet can do for a poorly-shaped figure. However, that's beside the point. You say that, among other things, a girl should consume about eight to ten glasses of water a day, to keep her weight normal. And what I want to know is whether there are any precautions to observe in the daily consumption of this amount of water. "JUDY."

There are indeed several precautions to observe in the daily consumption of those eight to ten glasses of water. In the first place, you should drink at least one of them, preferably warm, as soon as you arise in the morning. In the second place, you should do most of your water-drinking between meals. You shouldn't drink more than one glass of water with each meal. For too much water with your meals will dilute the gastric juices in your stomach, and thus retard the digestion of the food you eat. Moreover, you should never wash down a mouthful of food with a drink of water, for then the food will reach your stomach without having been adequately chewed. The last precaution to observe is not to drink large quantities of ice cold water. For the icy temperature of the water will chill your stomach and interfere with proper digestion.

What To Do

By Francine Markel

I am asking a few friends to my home for dinner. This is the first time they have been to my home and because they entertain so beautifully, I want to do everything correctly, too. I am in doubt about one thing—just how do I convey to my guests that I am ready to leave the dinner table. MRS. D. E. S.

Answer—When to leave the dinner table should be the least of your worries. There is generally a steady flow of conversation by the end of dinner and when you notice a lull catch the eye of the most important woman guest, push back your chair and rise. This is a signal to the guests to follow. In leaving the dining room allow your guests to precede you into the living room. Very often the men prefer to remain at the table for half an hour or so while they smoke their after-dinner cigars—but they may leave at the same time as the women if they prefer.

Pork Tastes Best If Cooked Slowly

By MARY E. DAGUE

The loin is the choicest, containing, as it does, the tenderloin on the underside of the bone. Not only is it juicy, tender and of excellent flavor, but there's less waste in bone and fat than in other pork chop cuts. For these reasons, loin chops usually are somewhat higher in price than the rib and shoulder chops.

Sister Mary

Next in desirability is the rib chop, juicy and of good flavor, but minus the tenderloin on one side of the bone.

Then comes the shoulder chop, which is larger but of darker-colored meat and with more bone.

The rib and loin chop can be cut single or double. Double chops are especially nice for stuffing and baking. On account of the thickness of the meat, they take longer to cook than single chops.

Always cook all pork products at a low temperature.

Panned chops are cooked in the frying pan on top of the stove. Trim off enough fat from the edges of the chops to lightly oil the frying pan. In other words, rub the bit of fat over the surface of the pan until it looks very shiny but there is no surplus of fat. Add chops and sear lightly first on one side and then on the other. Sprinkle salt and pepper on both sides, after searing, allowing about ¼ teaspoon salt for each chop—⅛ teaspoon to a side. Now cover the spider, reduce heat and cook slowly until done, about twenty minutes for single chops and thirty minutes for double ones.

When a meal is built around pork chops, it's a good idea to include one vegetable in a cream sauce unless there is milk gravy. Creamed celery is a good vegetable to serve with pork. Use the coarse outer stalks for cooking and save the tender hearts for relish next day.

Choose double chops for stuffing and make a slit through the centre, toward the bone, with a sharp knife. Rub each chop with ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper and ⅛ teaspoon mustard thoroughly mixed. Place 2 tablespoons sage stuffing in each chop and fasten cut edges with wooden toothpicks if tiny skewers are not at hand. Sear in a hot frying pan for ten minutes. Cover closely and bake in a moderate oven for one hour, 350 degrees F. is a good temperature to maintain during the baking.

Add to this twice baked sweet potatoes, creamed celery, jellied tomato salad and apple snow with custard sauce some cold January evening.

For twice baked sweet potatoes scrub and bake in their skins as usual. Then cut in halves lengthwise and scoop out pulp. Mash and season well with salt and pepper and lots of butter, adding cream if too dry. Beat until very light and fluffy and beat in 1 tablespoon sherry to 2 cups of mashed potato. Fill shells with mixture and return to oven to make very hot.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL. COCHRANE Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

"Gee, but we're glad that you have come. Now we are sure that we'll have some real sport in your balloon," said little Dotty to Jack Frost.

"This strange place is deserted and we wish to go to some new land. Say, are you sure that, while in the air, we will not all get lost?"

"Of course I am," said Jack. "Why I know all the stars up in the sky. They'll guide this big balloon until it reaches some fine place.

"One time I hopped a shooting star. It took me for a ride, real far." The Tots knew he was fooling, from the smile upon his face.

Just then the moon rose overhead and Dotty to old Jack Frost said, "Do you know that strange fellow, too? Is he a real good friend?"

"Of course he is, and he's all right," said Jack. "I wave to him each night. He often lights the way for me. On him I can depend.

"But, come let's start off on our trip. Climb in, you tots, but do not slip. Just stand real still till I'm aboard. There's room enough for all."

The Tinies did as they were told. "I'll bet it's going to be real cold," said Goldy, "but I do not mind, as long as we don't fall."

Then came a very funny noise. Jack Frost exclaimed, "Look, girls and boys. My little friend, the pelican. I call him Pel, for short.

"I guess he wants to go along and in that there is nothing wrong." "Of course not," shouted Windy. "Having him will be real sport."

At last, with everyone aboard, Jack waved his hat and loudly roared, "All right, my fine balloon, please take us up into the air."

Then Scouty shouted, "Here we go! The land, right now, is far below. I hope no wild birds peck the big gas bag and make it tear."

(Jack Frost deserts the Tinies in the next story.)

its private ownership and control. Liberals joined with the third group in the last house to oppose the bill on this point.

As presently constituted the Bank of Canada has a capital stock issue of 100,000 shares at $50 par value which were held, at the time of issue, by over 12,000 subscribers. Not more than 50 shares may be held by any one person but when the allocation was made at time of issue the distribution was in a much lower ratio because of the wide subscriptions.

SEVEN DIRECTORS

Supreme control of the bank is vested in a board of seven directors elected for varying terms. A wide measure of government control was retained in that appointments of the governor, deputy governor and assistant deputy governor must be approved by the Governor-General in Council, and the governor has veto powers over any action of the board of directors.

On night of October 14 last, when returns from the general election had disclosed the return of a Liberal administration, Mr. King issued a statement in which he said, in part:

"The election is an endorsation of the Liberal view that credit is a public matter, not of interest to bankers only, but of direct concern to every citizen. It is a verdict against a privately owned and controlled central bank and in favor of a properly constituted national bank to perform the functions of rediscount and the control of currency issue considered in terms of public need.

MINISTRY TO CONTROL

"There can be no mistaking," continued the prime minister's statement, "the demand for restoration to the government of Canada of control over credit and currency issue. The electorate has declared that a responsible ministry, not organized finance and international money power, is to control in all matters of state."

During the campaign, Conservative Leader R. B. Bennett, who established the central bank, repeatedly declared that if, after a trial, it appeared the Bank of Canada would function more efficiently as a nationally owned institution, he would agree to the change to public ownership.

NO CHANGE IN PERSONNEL

No change in the personnel of the bank executive is necessarily contemplated in the change proposed by the Liberal government. The high officials were appointed for varying terms, Mr. Towers for seven years, and J. A. C. Osborne, deputy governor who was formally with the Bank of England, for a term of five years.

The bank opened March 11 last and has already declared the maximum dividend under the state, 4½ per cent per annum.

ROME DENIES REPORT ITALY SHIP MUTINY

Declares Trouble Aboard Oil Tanker Corona Ferrea Negligible

Copyright 1936, by Havas News Agency

ROME Jan. 4—The foreign office last night denied reports of a mutiny aboard an Italian ship. It said trouble which occurred on the ship was "negligible."

The disturbance on the oil tanker Corona Ferrea, occurred among a motley crew of Russians, Rumanians and Greeks, it was understood.

VIOLENT TRIP

The story of the Corona Ferrea's violent trip was told by the skipper when the tanker arrived at Navarre from Constantza carrying Rumanian oil. He said he had been forced to hold the crew at bay with the aid of one of the engineers. The crew he said, had refused to go to their posts when a storm arose.

The foreign office also denied reports that Ras Gugsa, the deserter son-in-law of Emperor Haile Selassie, and puppet governor of Tigre province, had been shot by an Italian firing squad. Ras Gugsa is officially installed at Makale, his temporary provincial headquarters awaiting complete subjugation of the district.

LOST FOUR PLANES

Italy has lost four airplanes in the last 72 hours, it was reported unofficially. Three of them were said to have crashed when their motors failed. A fourth, flying over the Trambien mountains yesterday to scout enemy camps west of Makale, was shot down by Ethiopians, it was feared.

Details were received here for the first time of an encounter on Christmas day, on the Webbe Shibeli river 150 miles north-north-east of Dolo, in which 5 000 Ethiopian soldiers were reported driven back by 1,000 natives in the Italian army under Ian Olo Dinle.

ETHIOPIANS DEFEATED

The attacking troops defeated the Ethiopians at Gabba, driving them across the Webbe Shibeli, the report said. Airplanes sped after the retreating tribesmen, inflicting heavy losses in their ranks. Every plane which took part in the clash was reported hit by enemy bullets, but none was brought down. Afterwards Olo Dinle withdrew his men to the main Italian lines.

MYSTERIOUS FLAMES TO BE PROBED

RHEIN, Sask., Jan. 4—They've been noticed frequently for years, two mysterious flames each about six feet in height and half as much in diameter, and now Rhein residents are attempting to have something done to explain the phenomenon.

Professors of the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon have been asked to investigate and to explain the Jack o'lanterns that most frequently appear between 11 p.m. and midnight south of here.

Witnesses describe the flames as being always two reddish-yellow flares and always close together, blazing for but a few seconds at a time a short distance above the ground. No traces are left in the snow when the flames are seen.

ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH MAKES U.S. HISTORY

Never Before Had President Delivered Message At Night Session

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. — An historic legislative assembly, recalling in some respects the patriotism-stirred sessions of Great War days, last night gathered in the chamber of the House of Representatives as an audience for President Roosevelt's delivery of his annual message.

Congress, formally opened at noon amid some political tension and with a promise of more partisan fireworks to come, already had started its skirmishing on the headline issues of neutrality and the soldiers' bonus before convening to hear the president.

CONVENED SEPARATELY

Beneath a capitol dome bathed by flood lights, the two houses convened separately shortly before nine p.m. Never before had a president delivered his annual message on the "state of the union" at a joint evening session. Only Woodrow Wilson, back in April, 1917, had availed himself of this time to ask congress to declare war against Germany.

As he spoke, Mr. Roosevelt was flanked with microphones which carried his words far past the 1,200 of Washington's official and social elite who jammed into the house chamber for the joint session.

SPONTANEOUS APPLAUSE

The audience punctuated his address with applause. Earlier, as he entered, the applause, punctuated by shouts and stamping, lasted two minutes.

The President spoke from the reading clerk's desk below the dais of Speaker Joseph Byrns. Grouped in front of him were the members of his cabinet, and behind them the members of the Senate. House members filled the rest of the chamber.

In the galleries, crowded to overflowing, sat only those fortunate enough to obtain tickets for admission to the glittering event.

DRESS IS PUZZLING

Wearing formal morning attire—cutaway coat and striped trousers—Mr. Roosevelt found some in his audience similarly attired, but others were plainly puzzled as to the correct dress. Some wore formal white ties, some black ties, some formal morning coats and others just plain sack suits.

There was a minor riot in the main capitol corridor as senate officials, newspaper men and others attempted to follow the senators into the house chamber to the house chamber to hear the president.

PASSAGEWAY CLOSED

Capitol police cut off some of the followers, and closed the passageway. There was a short tug-of-war between the police and those who wanted to go through, in which there was considerable slugging. Finally, cooler heads selected those who had a right to go through and let them climb over a blockade the police had erected.

In 17th century London, tea was recommended as a means of reducing.

A Mother's Song

Illustrated Sunday School Lesson

Scripture—Luke 1:1-80.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

Copyright, 1936, by Central Press Association, Inc.

St. Luke, whose gospel we study in our lessons for the next six months, was a physician and a scholar. He was interested in folk of all nations and tells his story of Jesus as Saviour of all races.

He begins his story with a group of songs. One of these we call, "The Magnificent." Mary sang it to praise the Lord when the angel of God told her she was to be the Saviour's mother.

About the same time Mary went to visit her cousin Elizabeth, who was to have a child, whose name was to be John. He was to go before the Saviour and prepare the people for Jesus' coming.

When John was born to Zacharias and Elizabeth his father sang in praise to God. We call his song, "The Benedictus."

LINDY FAMILY TO RETURN IN THREE MONTHS

Will Not Remain in England After Hauptmann Case Closed

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LLANDAFF, Wales, Jan. 4—A spokesman for the Morgan family here, related by marriage to the Charles A. Lindberghs, said last night, the flier expects to return to the United States with his family within about three months.

"There is no question of them remaining after the Hauptmann case is disposed of and the publicity dies down," the spokesman asserted.

"They intend to come here today or Sunday and remain for about six weeks. Then they will go on to London, then to the south of France and Sweden and return to the United States."

(When the Lindberghs sailed secretly for England nearly two weeks ago there were reports that they would take up permanent residence in England because of fear of American crime).

It was learned that a Welsh girl has been engaged as a nurse for three-year-old Jon, child of the famous couple, during their stay in Wales.

Lindys Start Auto Tour

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 4—Refreshed by a four-day rest after an Atlantic crossing, the Charles A. Lindbergh started a leisurely automobile trip Friday through the Welsh mountains.

They are en route to the home of J. L. Morgan, outside Cardiff, Wales, said the manager of the hotel Adelphi, where the Lindberghs stayed here. It was the first time they had ventured from the hotel.

At the Morgan home the famous flier and his wife hope to find "quiet and rest" and safety for their three-year-old son Jon.

They were accompanied by Aubrey Morgan, brother-in-law of Mrs. Lindbergh and son of J. L. Morgan. The party planned to stop for the night at an undisclosed inn en route, arriving in Cardiff Saturday morning.

Tweedsmuirs See Motion Picture

OTTAWA, Jan. 4.—The Governor-General and Lady Tweedsmuir last night attended a motion picture presentation of one of His Excellency's novels. The production was shown in a local movie theatre. Government house officials said this was not the first occasion on which Lord Tweedsmuir had seen this particular picture.

GANG LEADER WILL RECOVER

CHICAGO, Jan. 4. — Fear that death would interrupt the United States government's efforts to imprison Tommy Touhy as a mail robber was dispelled Friday.

Dr. Meyer Cook county jail physician, examined the erstwhile gang boss and announced he was in no danger of dying.

He was only a pale shadow of the man who fled Alcatraz Island prison when he was brought before U. S. Commissioner Edwin Walker. He sat—meek and shaking—while his attorney entered a plea of not guilty to charges of participating in the Minneapolis mail robbery exactly three years ago.

A delay until Jan. 10 was granted in the hearing on the government's attempt to send him to Minnesota for trial.

FORMER CITY PASTOR FETED

Dr. Andrew B. Baird, Winnipeg, is one of the Grand Old Men of Canada. On his eightieth birthday a group of his former students of Manitoba College and other friends honored him with a banquet. There was a delightful time recounting some of the events of his very active and successful life. It has been a model for all "the Canadian-born" of this country. He was raised in the home of a Scottish pioneer and was taught in a rural school near St. Mary's, Ontario; took high and worthy honors at Toronto University and Knox College; broadened out his ideas under the best teachers in Scotland and Germany; did the gallant thing on being licensed by his church and carried the torch of Presbyterianism to an outpost of civilization, now Edmonton; called to a charge in Winnipeg where he still shines in beautiful retirement; and was moderator of the General Assembly in 1916. He is now in the United Church.

Annual Sermon Proves Unusual

In Kingsgate Chapel, London, the annual sermon was delivered by Rev. A. L. Morris to commemorate the day of humiliation and prayer appointed by Queen Anne in 1703, after a great storm which did much damage on sea and land. A small sum of money was devoted to the end that such a service might be kept up from year to year. "A Baptist College in Oxford" is the aim of the Baptists of England. There is an appeal for £50,000 to erect buildings on the site already secured which will be the pride of the denomination. Such a centre will stop the drift of many of the students who are attracted into other religious bodies.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"God" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon at the local Christian Science church as well as all Christian Science churches tomorrow. Among the citations from the Bible is (Psalms 89:15, 16): "Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound: they shall walk, O Lord, in the light of thy countenance . . . For the Lord is our defence; and the Holy One of Israel is our king." One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is as follows (page 330): "God is infinite, the only Life, substance, Spirit, or Soul, the only intelligence of the universe, including man . . . The individuality of Spirit, or the infinite, is unknown, and thus a knowledge of it is left either to human conjecture or to the revelation of divine Science."

DR. A. R. OSBORN PREACHES TWICE

Rev. Andrew R. Osborn, minister of First Presbyterian church will occupy the pulpit at both services on Sunday, in the morning dealing with the topic "The Horizon of Christian Service," and at the evening service speaking on "The Imprisoned Splendor of Life." During the morning service he will deliver a special children's address on "The Boy Who Wouldn't Go To Church."

At both services there will be special music by the choir, under the direction of Carman H. Milligan, organist and choirmaster.

At 3 p.m. on Sunday Dr. Osborn will deliver a New Year's message to the Regnal Circle in the social room. The young people of the church will hold their regular social hour after the Sunday evening service.

Commencing on Sunday, Jan. 12, Dr. Osborn will give a series of three Sunday evening addresses with explanatory lantern slides, on the recent work by Alexis Carrel on "Man the Unknown." The theme of these three addresses will be "Our Civilization Will Collapse Unless" "Man's Unrealized Powers," and "The Re-Making of Man."

LIBERALS SHIFT TO OPPOSITION

MONTREAL, Jan. 4.—Opposition members in the Quebec legislature were told here Monday that the government of Premier Taschereau will be reversed on the occasion of the first vote when the legislature meets, this being brought about by a shift of Liberal members to opposition ranks, the Gazette says today.

The newspaper adds: "The members of the opposition present at the caucus, according to the same source of information, were given a list of six Liberal members whom they were informed were ready to leave Premier Taschereau and join in voting the government out o' office.

"From what is learned neither Maurice Duplessis, Conservative leader, nor Paul Gouin, Action Libérale Nationale head, was present at the caucus."

Paul Gouin at his Montreal home declined comment on the reported caucus, while at Quebec Mr. Drouin also would not discuss the matter.

Of the seating space available in airline craft during scheduled trips in the period of January-June, 1935, 56 per cent was occupied.

PLAN SALARY FOR ALDERMEN; 2-YEAR TERM FOR MAYOR

Proposals Placed Before Committee For Consideration

Edmonton Bulletin
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER IN PUBLIC SERVICE

View Taken by Several Aldermen is That Charter Should be Amended to Provide Annual Stipend of $500.

Salary of $500 a year for aldermen and the election of the mayor for a two-year period rather than for one year, as at present, were two of the proposals placed before the charter amendment (bylaws) committee, Friday. The several amendments to the charter suggested were referred to City Solicitor Thos. Garside for legal drafting and will then be presented to city council for consideration.

All amendments to the city charter this year must be obtained through the provincial legislature at the forthcoming session.

$500 STIPEND

Recently, through notice of motion, Ald. Jas. East said it would bring the question of payment for aldermen before council at its next regular meeting on January 13. At present the charter provides that aldermen may be paid up to $1,000 a year but that burgesses must support such a proposal through the medium of a plebiscite before the payment can be made. The view taken by several aldermen is that the charter could be amended to provide an annual stipend of $500 and reference to the burgesses unnecessary.

TWO-YEAR TERM

Introducing her idea that the mayor be elected to hold office for two years instead of one year, as at present, Ald. Margaret Crang argued that one year in office did not give the chief magistrate enough time to gain a thorough knowledge of civic affairs. In Calgary the mayor is given office for two years, while in Lethbridge he is chosen from the aldermanic board.

Discussing the question of sinking fund payments, the committee was of the opinion that council should consider the advisability of securing a charter amendment which would give the city the power to either equate payments over a period of years or give council the power to suspend them in any one year. Under an equalization plan, payments would be the same, say, over a 20-year period, thus obviating the necessity of paying a large sum into the fund one year and a comparatively small amount the next year.

TAX CANCELLATION

Cancellation of back taxes owed by unemployed home-owners, as proposed by Ald. Hugh John Mc-Donald was also dealt with by the committee, the plan being referred to the city solicitor for drafting.

Other changes in the charter recommended by the civic executive include: (1) that the question of property qualification for candidates be made clear in the charter; and (2) that regulations be altered to provide that a bona fide elector may vote on a vote despite the fact that through some mistake a person voted in his name before he arrived at the polls. The solicitor explained that the Dominion Election Act gives a voter this privilege, but that the Edmonton charter prevents such a person voting if it is discovered somebody also cast his vote by mistake.

REDUCE PERIOD

The city solicitor also urged that the period of 21 days allowed persons to file notice of action against the city in connection with injuries sustained on city sidewalks and streets be reduced to 10 days through a charter amendment.

Referring to the existing charter provision under which a candidate in the civic election must possess property to the value of $500 or pay taxes on a business assessed on not less than that amount, Mayor Clarke suggested that the figure be reduced to $300.

Informed that civic election day in 1936 fell on Wednesday, November 11, which is Armistice Day and a Dominion statutory holiday, the committee recommended that the charter be amended to provide that in such a case election day be set for the day following the holiday.

DELAY START MASTER CODES

Proclamation of the master codes governing the wholesale and retail trades will not be possible by the middle of this month as at first thought would be the case, Acting Premier Hon. Ernest C. Manning declared on Saturday.

"We are receiving so many suggestions that it will be now impossible to bring the codes into effect this month," he said. "In any case we want all concerned to know that nothing will be proclaimed along this line without giving wholesalers and retailers every opportunity of expressing their views and to make any representations they desire. We want suggestions to come from them and we desire only to act in the capacity of referee."

SKIDDING TRUCK STRIKES VICTIM

Victim of a motor accident, when he was knocked down on 99 street, near 75 avenue, about 8 p.m. Friday, Ludwig Kablick of 8013 Cooking Lake was taken to the University hospital in an unconscious condition, suffering head injuries. He recovered consciousness shortly after midnight and his condition on Saturday morning was pronounced satisfactory.

Kablick was knocked to the ground when his body in the rack of a skidding cattle truck, which contained one of its way without stopping, according to August Kalin, living at 97 avenue and 98 street, who was walking with him.

Kalin told south side police that he and Kablick were walking south on 99 street when the truck passed north at a high rate of speed, skidded across the road, striking Kablick. "I could say the truck was coming 50 miles an hour," he reported.

Several children, who were playing on the street, were questioned but had not been able to get the truck's license number. A passing motorist took Kablick to hospital.

CHILLY BLASTS TO CONTINUE

Swooping down from the icy polar regions on Friday with a devastating blast, the Weather Man continued his bearish tune on Saturday, with probabilities that throughout the province there would be "strong cast and northeast winds with some snow and continuing cold, except in extreme southern districts".

The chill winds swept down city streets during the morning and sent good burghers scurrying for their furs, balaclava caps, and other guards against cold.

The highest temperature reached on Friday was 18 above, and by 10 a.m. on Saturday this had changed to 15 below.

Friday's mean temperature was 1.5, exactly the same as for the corresponding day of 1935.

On Sunday the sun will rise at 8:50 a.m. and will set at 4:29 p.m. and on Monday it will rise at 8:50 a.m. and will set at 4:30 p.m.

From 3 p.m. Friday until midnight, hourly readings were 16, 15, 13, 12, 9, 3, 3, 0, 0, and from 1 a.m. until 9 a.m. were +1, -3, -4, -7, -9, -9, -10, -11, -13, -15.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

This is the time of year that everybody is supposed to travel around with set brows and a look of grim determination on their faces. This is the time of year when the strong-willed are making more new year resolutions and keeping them and the weak-willed are wavering between their desires and their decisions to turn over a new leaf.

What do you think about this business of making resolutions and have you broken any that you've made yet? The I.R. asked a few citizens today.

JOHN WILSON, motorman: "No, I'm afraid I've not made any this year because the job of keeping them is too hard. Of course, I believe that if a person makes a sensible resolution and sticks to it his or her character is strengthened. But what's the good of making them if you know you're not going to keep them?"

GEORGE DOCHERTY, clerk: "Yes, I've made a few that won't be hard to keep. For instance, I'm going to eat more fruit each day and get eight hours sleep and shave every day. Those are the only kind of resolutions to make."

* * *

ERNIE JOHNSTON, businessman: "Well, I suppose I'll be trying to save a little more money in 1936. Boy, how the shekeles roll away from you and another thing—I've decided to play more and better golf when summer rolls around."

* * *

BILL COTTON, man-about-town: "I may say for your edification that I'm sticking to a resolution made last year to forego smoking. So far I've been successful and hope that my will is strong enough to forget fags. No, I don't plan on making any more good resolutions for the time being—one thing at a time, you know."

Military Orders

19TH ALBERTA DRAGOONS
Sergeants' mess, 19th Alberta Dragoons, meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in Connaught armouries—Mess Sergt.

Donald Cameron, Edmonton, sails Saturday, January 4, from Halifax on the Duchess of Bedford for Glasgow, England.

Graveling of the highway from Rimbey to Bentley was requested by a Rimbey delegation that interviewed Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works on Friday afternoon. The delegation was well received and consideration of the representation was promised.

Pilot Matt Berry was reported northbound out of Fort Mac Saturday morning on his charter fur flight for Northern Traders, Limited. Art Rankin was reported at Goldfields, while all other Canadian Airways pilots were weathers bound at Fort McMurray.

All snow removal equipment of the public works department is engaged in clearing snow from the highways, Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works stated on Saturday. However, owing to the high wind and drifting snowfall, there is a serious danger of a general blockade by morning if the drifting continues as the available equipment is insufficient to cope with the conditions.

PROWLER MEN RIGHT ON JOB

Spotting skulduggery afoot as they cruised along 104 avenue about 11:30 p.m. Friday, prowler car Constables Art Johnson and Albert Woodward swung into a swift game of auto tag, headed off a car in a two-block chase and made an arrest a short time after.

Seeing a man carry a cardboard carton and place it in a car parked with its motor running on 104 avenue, between 103 and 104 streets, the prowler car kept him under observation. When the car started off, leaping into high speed, the police car gave chase and soon stopped it at the lane west of 101 street. A man jumped out and ran down the lane but the driver, now gave his name as Charles Carle, Acme taxi driver, stayed in the car. Taxes still on the above carriage and place the city in funds to carry on normally for two or three months, and put us in the position which as home owners we should all strive to attain.

Taxes are the duty to caution others, as I have concluded myself that no payment is too small to grade into a handsome total. In other words, salaried men and home owners of every kind should make a special effort to protect their home by supplementing the amounts that will be paid by the large taxpayers, and when you write a cheque in order to meet the levy upon their property. If all who are able will undertake to pull together, Edmonton will carry on as one big good fellowship coming back in a way that will make all the envy of all cities of similar size in Canada and the United States.

"In thanking the taxpayers for what they have done in 1935, as chief magistrate I want to request the co-operation and support for 1936 which Edmonton citizens have shown they are so well able to give."

Three Districts Ask Bus Service

Requesting a bus service for the Forest Heights, Riverdale and Cloverdale districts, a delegation representing these areas has suggested to commissioners that an intermittent schedule be put into operation as soon as possible. The question has been referred to Thomas Ferrier, acting superintendent of the street railway department for a report.

The three districts ask the following service: 6:30 a.m. to 9 a.m., half-hour service; 9 a.m. to 12 noon, one hour service; 12 noon to 2 p.m., half-hour service; 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., one hour service; 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., half-hour service; 7 p.m. to 11 p.m., one hour service.

Caught by prowler car constables after a swift, short chase in the residential district, Friday night a man giving the name of Sawchuk appeared charged with retaining possession of stolen tobacco in a confectionery. The case was adjourned a week.

Charged with vagrancy, John Kowpak was remanded in custody to Monday. When a Salvation Army officer stated he believed accused had a place to go to near Daysland, the prosecutor said, "His criminal record may indicate his state of mind and he may be a menace to the people he goes to. The public must be protected." He will be further investigated.

MAYOR THANKS HOME-OWNERS FOR PAST AID

Co-Operation Led to 104 Per Cent. Collection of Taxes

Urging taxpayers to take advantage of interest of 4½ per cent allowed on prepayments of taxes made before January 15, and congratulating home-owners for co-operation which led to a 104 per cent collection of taxes on the 1935 levy, Mayor Jos. A. Clarke Saturday thanked property-holders and solicited their continued financial support.

In his statement, the mayor points out that early this year the bank overdraft will total $709,500 but "needless to say, the prepayment of taxes will meet the above shortage."

The statement follows in full:

PAY ARREARS

"It affords me much pleasure to congratulate the property owners of the City of Edmonton on the magnificent way in which the expenses of the city for 1935 have been met. The payment of 104 per cent of the current levy, however, should not mislead us to any undue security as to our position. This magnificent showing was brought about by reason of the fact that so many were able to take up such a substantial portion of their arrears, which unfortunately were not able to meet the current taxes. To this extent, therefore, the overdraft at the bank has been added to.

"The overdraft as at December 31st, 1935, amounted to $600,000. In addition, the school appropriation has been met by the city giving notes which add to the amount that must be taken care of early in this year by approximately $400,000. These would make the total actual overdraft $709,500.00.

"The city council has renewed the arrangements made last year providing for a prepayment of taxes during January, and the advertisement to that effect will be issued by the city assessor shortly. Needless to say, the prepayment of which was taken advantage of last year and place the city in funds to carry on normally for two or three months, and put us in the position which as home owners we should all strive to attain.

BOOST TOTAL

"I feel it my duty to caution others, as I have concluded myself that no payment is too small to grade into a handsome total. In other words, salaried men and home owners of every kind should make a special effort to protect their home by supplementing the amounts that will be paid by the large taxpayers, and when you write a cheque in order to meet the levy upon their property. If all who are able will undertake to pull together, Edmonton will carry on as one big good fellowship coming back in a way that will make all the envy of all cities of similar size in Canada and the United States.

"In thanking the taxpayers for what they have done in 1935, as chief magistrate I want to request the co-operation and support for 1936 which Edmonton citizens have shown they are so well able to give."

Three Districts Ask Bus Service

Requesting a bus service for the Forest Heights, Riverdale and Cloverdale districts, a delegation representing these areas has suggested to commissioners that an intermittent schedule be put into operation as soon as possible. The question has been referred to Thomas Ferrier, acting superintendent of the street railway department for a report.

The three districts ask the following service: 6:30 a.m. to 9 a.m., half-hour service; 9 a.m. to 12 noon, one hour service; 12 noon to 2 p.m., half-hour service; 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., one hour service; 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., half-hour service; 7 p.m. to 11 p.m., one hour service.

BIG TELEPHONE HOOK-UP BRINGS GOODWILL WORDS

One of the largest hook-ups ever engineered in Canada by the Bell Telephone Company was made the afternoon of December 31, when all branches of Barber-Ellis plugged in to hear messages of good will from factory heads in the east.

Three phones were in the head office and one in each of the branches from coast-to-coast, engineered so that every person in each room was able to hear the words coming over the wires.

Plugged in on the big hook-up were Barber-Ellis men in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Brantford, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Frank Simmonds, with Barber-Ellis the past 24 years and located in Edmonton the past six years, was in charge of operations at the Alberta end. Mr. Simmonds is manager of Barber-Ellis of Alberta, Limited.

Provincial members are also asked to have a representation.

LEWIS LEIGH, PILOT, RAISED TO INSTRUCTOR

Northern Birdman Will Take Special Course at Oakland

Canada's northern birdmen, world-famous for their pioneering of the skyways, will soon be equipped with licenses indicating that they have complied with the very highest international aeronautic regulations.

Lewis Leigh, Canadian Airways pilot and central figure in this latest phase of flying history, rumbled into Edmonton Saturday afternoon aboard Northern Alberta Railways passenger train.

Earlier in the day C. H. "Punch" Dickins, new superintendent of northern flying for Canadian Airways, announced that the pilot that Leigh is being sent to Boeing School of Aeronautics at Oakland where, for the next two months, he will study the very latest technique in blind flying. He will also familiarize himself with the most modern aviation instruments.

GOES TO WINNIPEG

When he returns from Oakland he will move to headquarters at Winnipeg where Canadian Airways are planning to equip one of their planes with so many new-fangled gidgets that the instrument panel will look like the switch board in a power house.

His subsequent duties will consist of instructing all other Canadian Airways pilots in the gentle art of landing on a plane under conditions that would make a strong man blanch. When Leigh is through with them they will be able to comply with the world's most rigid flying restrictions.

LEFT IMMEDIATELY

Leigh left Edmonton directly, travelling to Vancouver by train and then south to Oakland over United Air Lines.

His indefinite absence from Fort McMurray makes it necessary for the company to bring Pilot Rudy Hucss from Northern Manitoba. Hucss is well known to Fort McMurrayites, as he spent two years in the Mackenzie district flying for Canadian Airways. Now that "Wop" May has moved to Edmonton and Arnold McMullen is absent in Calgary, the company is short-handed at McMurray, but Mr. Dickins has not announced any further changes.

Chickenpox Now Increases Here

Chickenpox leads the list with 69 cases recorded this week as against 30 for the week preceding.

Other diseases reported follow, totals for this week and last week given in brackets: Scarlet fever, 15, 10; measles, 5, 2; mumps, 28, 16; whooping cough, 26, 7; erysipelas, 0, 1; tuberculosis (pulmonary), 2, 0.

FLIER TELLS STORY RESCUE FROM DESERT

Found by Bedouin Tribesmen After Plane Had Crashed

Copyright 1936, by Hawes News Agency

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 4—Antoine De Saint-Exupery, French novelist and f ier, Friday recounted his experiences while marooned for three days in the desert after his plane had crashed up on a projected flight from Paris to French Indo-China.

He and his co-pilot, Provost, were rescued finally by Bedouin tribesmen, after they were nearly exhausted from their wander ngs.

Exhausted by their privations but unhurt otherwise, e ie pair reached here last night by automobile after the Bedouins had taken them to Wady Mekrum.

SKIRTING DESERT EDGE

Taking off from Bingshai, Tripoli, late Sunday night, the two chose a route along the edge of the Sahara, skirting the coastal zone over which air traffic is forbidden.

Thick clouds forced them to climb, they explained. Saint-Exupery lost his bearings and decided to fly under the cloud-blanket, hoping to sight Cairo and the river Nile.

"The clouds were so low I decided to descend still more," Saint-Exupery said, "in hopes of finding the river, but the moment the plane slipped below the clouds there was a violent and prolonged crash. The plane was wrecked."

WATER BOTTLE BROKE!

When dawn came they found their water container had been broken.

"The desert spread out all around us to the horizon," Saint-Exupery went on. "We did not dare leave to turn without provisions, having only a vacuum bottle of Turkish coffee."

They passed all day reconnoitering, slept in the wrecked plane, and the next day, having drunk all the coffee, collected dew from the plane wings to quench their thirst.

"We gave up hope on the third morning when we could hardly struggle on.

"Suddenly we saw oases, indicating an oasis, camels, and then men who ground to be Bedouins. They brought us fresh water and food."

Lesser Slave Area Has Active Season

FAUST, Jan. 4—Though not absorbing all unemployment yet, the activity in Lesser Slave Lake districts in northern Alberta has markedly increased.

The seasonal ice harvest has started. Exceptional success has been had by fishermen at some of the district lakes. Trappers report average success and fur farmers are all doing well.

Adding a night shift this week the largest mill, the Canyon Creek Lumber Company, is running double time with other mills more or less active. Teaming, some hay baling, fish packing, wood chopping with other things add to the bustle of this area.

Church At Rimbey Has Novel Service

RIMBEY, Jan. 4—The watch-night service held on F Year's eve in the Church of the Nazarene in Rimbey was well attended and this year took on a novel form. In addition to the offering of prayers and the singing of hymns in the customary manner, the program was varied by the rendering of Yuletide hymns in the languages of various old land countries. The Norwegian numbers sung by Mr. and Mrs. T. Thorvaldson; the Holland by Rev. and Mrs. Swarth, theFresian by Mr. and Mrs. G. De Boer and the Scottish by Ben Gunn.

Barrhead Wins Over Westlock

BARRHEAD, Jan. 4.—The first game in the Pembina hockey league schedule was played on Barrhead ice on New Year's day, with the home team entertaining Westlock.

As neither team has got into their full stride yet the play was not up to the major amateur class, but what the players lacked in artistic execution was amply made up for by strenuous effort to win which was sustained till the final whistle blew. Netting two goals in the last period the home team made it a 4-2 victory, Barrhead plays at Clyde next Saturday.

Barrhead—J. Rutledge, Bill Bette, Harry Phelan; 2nd line, Lewis Brant, Johnny Fridell, Frank Gauchie, Fred Brant and Cliff. Dahl, defence; Wayne Hockey, goal.

Native Askari Troops Lead Italy's Uphill Fight in Ethiopia

The hills around Makale were quickly converted into natural fortresses by the Italian forces after its capture. Some of the field guns mounted on the firing line and ready to give Ethiopian troops a scorching welcome in case of counter-attack are pictured here. They are manned by Askaris, Fascist native troops, who led the advance on Makale.

In the van of the troops sent to Africa from Italy to conquer Ethiopia are the native Eritrean Askaris. Innured to the high altitude and relentless heat, they led the way across the bleak, almost desert mountain country that proved the most serious obstacle to the capture of Makale. Here you see Askaris scrambling up a captured ridge during the advance on Makale.

With the opening of NBC's new coast-to-coast network, built to cover the inter-mountain and Pacific coast territories, program schedules on both the Red and Blue webs will be slightly hay-wire Sunday pm. Up to this week-end, NBC's best programs have been re-broadcast for the far west following the eastern originations, due to lack of facilities on the coast. Purchase of a string of stations enables NBC to serve the west with both WEAF and WJZ programs at the same time.

For this reason, followers of theo Jack Benny hour are advised to tune in at 5:00 p.m. Sunday for the suave jester may or may not be on the air at the usual 9:30 p.m. rebroadcast hour.

Benny's program Sunday is one that just can't be missed, as radio's best funnyman is staging his much announced and equally postponed "Mutiny on the Benny", a satire on the Gable - Laughton - Tone film. Jack will play the role of the racing sea-dog, Captain Fry, while Mary Livingston in the part of three sailor girls stirring considerable pitter-patter in the hearts of the crew, invites the sailors to mutiny by reading one of her famed poems.

Kenny Baker, radio's timid soul, will appear as the hard boiled leader of the mutiny and his co-conspirator Long John Green, a scheming orchestra leader. Don Wilson, the six-delicious-flavors man, will be heard as the foghorn on the S.S. Benny.

Morton Downey, the crooning tenor, returns to the CBS fold Monday night to open a twice-a-week, 30 minute contract. . . . Alexander Woollcott, the Town Crier, has been shelved from the CBS airlanes because his sponsor objected to political comment. The Woollcott hour is being filled by the Buck Rogers kid serial. . . . Dropped from the NBC Music Hall spot, Paul Whiteman and his crew of the King's Men, Ramona and the girl trio open up at 7:45 p.m. M.S.T., Sunday in a new program on the Blue network. The first of a string of guest artists will be Harry Richman. . . . Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians are airing on NBC for the first time January 17 to inaugurate a series of Friday broadcasts on the Red net to be identical with the present Tuesday night show on CBS.

Now that 1935 has become the past tense, the choosing of the year's best this and that is still prevalent. NBC's corps of publicity men buzzed themselves this week putting the buzz on "name" dance maestros for the three top songs, 'Cheek to Cheek" from "Top Hat" received the most nods.

Lombardo, who has just signed into the NBC camp, selected: "I'm In the Mood for Love", "Cheek to Cheek" and "In a Little Gypsy Tearoom".

Ray Noble preferred: "Cheek to Cheek", "Chasing Shadows" and "I'n't This a Lovely Day."

Billy Bissett who airs from the Royal York to NBC Fridays named "Clouds", "Every Day" and "Love and a Dime".

Leo Reisman liked: "Solitude", "Everything's Been Done Before" and "Cheek to Cheek".

Clyde Lucas favored: "I Was Lucky", "You're the Top" and "Clouds".

Variety, which makes it a regular service to know exactly, by tabulation along with ASCAP, the number of plugs each song gets on WEAF, WJZ and WABC, the NBC and CBS basic stations, will release the official list of the ten smash song hits of the year in an early issue. Listen Inn will follow next week.

GREAT BEAR LAKE RADIUM IS DELIVERED

TORONTO, Jan. 4—Thirty-five little wooden boxes each containing about $4,400 worth of the world's most precious element were piled up in the Ontario department of health laboratories Friday as delivery was made of the largest single shipment of radium ever produced in Canada.

The boxes contained a total of 3,500 milligrams of radium, which will coat the Ontario government approximately $155,000. The supply will go to the Toronto General hospital to replace 3½ grams which have been rented from a New York firm.

The radium was produced at Great Bear Lake.

POLICE QUELL VILLE MARIE JAIL REVOLT

Quebec Constables Rushed To Scene By Airplane Friday

VILLE MARIE, Que., Jan. 4—Order was restored last night in the Temiscamingue district jail here following arrival of provincial police by air from Rouyn. They brought under control 23 prisoners who, in a revolt against discipline, took complete charge of three floors of the jail building.

FOUR RINGLEADERS

Sergt.-Major Turnbull, in command of provincial police for the Abitibi district, advised his Quebec superiors that with the revolt settled it had been decided to send four men, regarded as ringleaders, to Bordeaux jail, near Montreal. Jail authorities declined to name the men.

No injuries resulted from the disorder which raged all day, Sergt.-Major Trunbull stated, nor was jail property damaged. Officials blamed the outbreak on the refusal of the four leaders to obey orders. They stirred up 19 other men confined in the jail. Seven women, completed the jail's total list of 30 prisoners. did not take any part in the disturbance.

When the revolting prisoners gave way before authority last night they had been without food 24 hours, it was believed. They had not gained possession of the kitchen and jail heads stated no meals had been served since the disturbance started.

The revolt, not participated in by seven women prisoners, began late yesterday. Complaining about the food, the 23 male prisoners fed, it was believed, by some of their numbers who have served penitentiary terms, refused to work and to be confined to their cells.

YOUNG SKIERS IN MOUNTAINS AT NEW YEAR

JASPER, Jan. 4—Snug in the Memorial Hut of the Edmonton Alpine Club, on Penstock Creek in the Tonquin Valley, Jasper Park, a party of Edmonton lads lustily greeted the New Year with "Auld Lang Syne," probably the highest celebration held in Canada. In the party led by Capt. Rex. Gibson of Edmonton and Winterburn, were John Bulyea, Tindall Madill, Frank Methuen, Bob Hines, Cameron Hall, Bob Mewburn, Cameron Steer and Bill Watson. Joe Weiss of Jasper also accompanied the party.

On Sunday they made the ascent of Mt. McDonell, 10,500 feet high. They made all except the final climb on skis and only used crampons on the icy windswept rocks of the peak. Joe Weiss led one party and Capt. Gibson the other, and the summit was reached at 1:30 p.m. This was the youngest party of boys to have ever made a major winter ascent in the Rockies, as the average age was sixteen years.

Monday they explored the Eremite Valley which has much to attract the ski-er, and made the ascent of the Angle Glacier to the Angle Pinnacle, altitude 8,600 feet. The run down over the glacier to the valley floor was one of the finest on the trip.

U.S. CONGRESS HEADING INTO HOT DISPUTE

Question Of President's Authority on War Materials Embargo

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—With three differing neutrality proposals already before it, the United States Congress last night headed into a heated dispute over the extent of discretionary authority that should be given the President in embargoing war materials.

All the measures proposed a permanent mandatory prohibition against shipments of arms and munitions to warring nations to replace the existing temporary ban, but there the agreement ended.

PROPOSE WIDE AUTHORITY

Chairman McReynolds (D. Tenn.), of the house foreign affairs committee, asserting his bill was "satisfactory to the administration," proposed giving the President the widest authority in deciding under what conditions the shipment of abnormal quantities of non-munition materials should be restricted.

A short time later Chairman Pittman of the senate foreign relations committee, offered a bill also tagged as having administration backing which he said would require the executive to impose normal quota shipments on all belligerents if it was found that non-munitions purchases were being diverted to military uses.

ORDER MANDATORY

Upon such a discovery, the quota order would become mandatory, Pittman said. However, other students of the measure said they felt it would give the president far greater leeway in imposing export quotas than Pittman contended.

Later in the afternoon Representative Ludlow (D. Ind.) introduced the most drastic bill of all. Upon the outbreak of war between foreign nations it would forbid United States exports or loans of any kind to them and, like the rest, would impose restrictions upon Americans travelling on foreign vessels.

RIGID PROVISIONS

Still another bill will be introduced Monday. This one—drafted by Senators Nye (R. N. D.) and Clark (D. Mo.)—would impose rigid mandatory provisions on the executive. Under its provisions, when the president discovered increasing exports of war materials, such as steel, copper and oil, to belligerents, he would be required to prohibit all but normal shipments, as determined by a five or 10 year average.

Almost a million and a half of the 125 million French-born persons in the U.S. are illiterate.

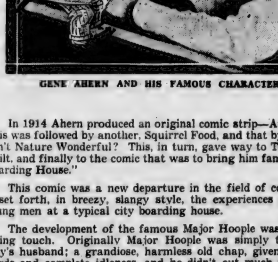
Gene Ahern and His Prince of All Liars

'Major Amos Hoople'



GENE AHERN AND HIS FAMOUS CHARACTER

IF Gene Ahern had been a really first-class butcher's helper, he might not be a topnotch comic artist today.

It was along about 1912 that Gene was working in a meat market, in Cleveland, Ohio.

He was a good enough worker, at that; but he'd been to art school and liked to draw, so he filled in a lot of time at work by sketching little figures—girls, cows, steamboats and what not—on the long rolls of brown paper in which the shop's meat was wrapped.

One day a man connected with a large fashion house came into the market.

"Six pork chops," said the man.

"Forty-eight cents," replied Gene, as he handed the meat over. On the brown wrapping paper were some sketches Gene had made.

"Who drew these?" asked the customer.

"Oh, I did—just for the fun of it," said Gene.

"It'd be even more fun if you got paid for it, wouldn't it?" asked the man.

Gene admitted that it would. The conversation continued. Gene told of his studies at art school and of his fondness for sketching. The stranger expressed interest, and wound up by offering Gene a job in his fashion art department.

This was better than wrapping up link sausages, so Gene took it. He hardly set the world on fire in his new job, but he learned a lot about drawing, and that's what counts.

In 1914 Ahern produced an original comic strip—Auto Otto. This was followed by another, Squirrel Food, and that by a third, Ain't Nature Wonderful? This, in turn, gave way to The Crazy Quilt, and finally to the comic that was to bring him fame—"Our Boarding House."

This comic was a new departure in the field of comic art. It set forth, in breezy, slangy style, the experiences of three young men at a typical city boarding house.

The development of the famous Major Hoople was the finishing touch. Originally Major Hoople was simply the landlady's husband; a grandiose, harmless old chap, given to long words and complete idleness, and he didn't cut much figure in the proceedings.

But he began to grow. As Gene grew more experienced and skilled, he found Major Hoople the outstanding character of the comic. The other characters were interesting; but Major Hoople was head and shoulders above them all—a kind of Falstaffian giant, moving serene and carefree in a world of his own devising, a world of bombast and pomposity, a world in which the hard facts of ordinary existence were never permitted to cut through the wrappings of bluff and nonsense in which an old campaigner had managed to encase himself.

Today Gene Ahern finds himself one of the most famous comic artists in the land. In any world city, if you walk into a company of people and say, "Egad!" everyone thinks of Major Hoople. You couldn't ask for fame to go much further.

Ahern produces his comic in his beautiful Hollywood home.

The Amusing Romance Of a Lovely Young Dancer and a Hopelessly Awkward Romeo, Which Comes To a Most Hilarious Climax.

BRET McCASKELL sat breathless in his seat in the front row—the inside seat next to the boxes—and Linda Nay moved as softly as a sunbeam, as gracefully as a reed in the wind, through the routine of her dance upon the stage. Behind her the chorus melted from one harmonious pattern into another, as the scenes in a kaleidoscope shift and change; and against this bright background her slim young figure moved and swayed, one perfect posture merging indistinguishably into the next. She was young, well trained in a good school. The tips of her toes no more than touched the boards; she moved as lightly as thistledown, like some imagined vision of beauty without flesh or substance, enchanting every eye.

Enchanting, in particular, the eye of Bret McCaskell. That young man sat in an incredulous and wondering admiration; a mysterious awe. His dress tie was awry, his shirtbosom bulged, the left side of his coat was bunched awkwardly on the arm of the seat, his hair was disordered. A while ago he had been conscious of these things, of his own discomfort and of the fact that the attractive girl in the seat beside him was watching him in covert amusement. But now, absorbed in watching Linda, he forgot his hair, his shirt front, and all else but her.

Even when her smiling glance touched him it awoke in him no sense of his own disarray, yet it was not like Bret to be unconscious of the amused glances of strangers. He had all his life received such glances and winced under them, for he was one of those large boned, heavy bodied young men who are constitutionally clumsy, forever involving themselves in terrible embarrassments. His hands and feet were gifted with an incredible ineptitude. His Aunt Sarah—who had been mother and father to him these twenty years—was fond of saying, "Bret's so clumsy he couldn't milk a cow without breaking off her horns." She had adopted the jest from a Gibson cartoon which had touched her sense of humor before Bret was born; used it as freely now as though it were her own. She was a sharp tongued old aristocrat, afraid of no one, feared by most people, as famous for her scalding wit as Bret was for his helpless awkwardnesses.

But Bret, who knew he was clumsy, who had demonstrated that fact a thousand times, who in his right mind was always oppressed by a hideous dread of his next piece of blundering and crushed beneath the sense of his own inferiority, forgot these things in the delight of watching Linda Nay. He forgot this hulking body of his with its brutal trick of betraying him into crushing embarrassment, in the holy, wondering delight of watching Linda Nay's body there before him on the stage.

And not because her body was revealed and beautiful, though this might have been reason enough for any man to watch Linda, but because all the physical parts of her were so miraculously graceful and controlled. It was incredible to him whose little finger could perform miracles of clumsiness, that any one could, like Linda, maintain over all her members such complete and harmonious control. He looked on her as one looks upon a miracle.

He had discovered Linda a fortnight before when this particular revue opened. Her ballet numbers—one in the first act and one in the second—seemed to him to gleam with pure beauty, like a diamond bedded in ashes and in mire. He came again, and then again; and for this last week he had come every night, alone, to occupy the same seat in the front row and yet at the side, so that he huddled under the swelling front of the box as inconspicuously as possible.

Sometimes Linda, smiling, looked at him but he was scarce conscious of this fact. She looked at every one, her smile, embracing the whole audience.

Bret did not think of Linda as a girl of flesh and blood who might be presumed to eat and drink and laugh and talk like other girls. She was remote and lovely as a dream. When tonight her dance ended he sat for a while still under the spell, till realization that the girl at his side was watching him with a covert smile brought him back to sanity again. He pretended to be amused by the laborious antics of the comedian upon the stage, but the remaining ten or fifteen minutes of the performance had not the least interest for him. He would have been glad to escape, but to do so meant rising, passing the knees of half a dozen people between him and the aisle, ascending the aisle in the face of the whole audience. This was an adventure he could not contemplate. To attempt it might lead to any catastrophe. He would probably trip over some one's feet and fall over the rail into the orchestra pit, perhaps even fall through one of the drums!

So he stayed where he was and presently the curtain fell. Linda, in street clothes, came with the other principals to take her encores, and then the lights rose and the audience began to flow slowly up the aisles.

It was October, but warm. Bret did not put on his coat. The girl beside him struggled into hers and he wished to help her but dared not, knowing that in the attempt he was sure to blunder into error. She turned away from him toward the aisle and Bret came behind her.

But before she reached the aisle she swung about with an exclamation of dismay, her hand at her throat, and so faced Bret and said in deep distress:

"I've lost my pendant!"

"Eh?" Bret stammered.

"My pendant! Diamonds and turquoises!" she cried. "It was my mother's. O, help me find it. Do!"

So Bret McCaskell found himself turning up seats, climbing down into the orchestra pit, crawling here and there on his hands and knees. He was still thus engaged when some one came from behind the stage boxes to join them. Bret's head was under a seat, so he had no warning till this some one said:

"Hello, darling! Thanks for waiting."

And the girl cried, "Linda, I've lost my pendant!"

Bret's head snapped up at that name and his heart raced. For—here was Linda Nay! He scrambled to his feet and Linda looked at him calmly and the other girl explained:

"This gentleman's trying to find it for me!"

She was standing in the aisle. Linda stepped toward Bret, between the seats, looking at the floor.

"Why here it is!" she said.

She and Bret stooped together to recover the jewel, but he was the quicker to stoop and to rise. The back of his rising head struck her fairly in the nose and the world was full of blinding stars!

"O gosh!" Bret cried hopelessly. "That's awful! Blast it. I'm so sorry . . ."

"Golly, what stars!" Linda exclaimed, and laughed through tears and touched her nose and looked at her fingers. "It's bleeding!" she discovered.

"Here take this," he urged, and fumbled for a handkerchief and somehow thrust the recovered pendant into her hand instead.

"I can't staunch the gore with diamonds," she protested, amused and he set the error right.

The other girl recovered her pendant. "But I can't stay, Linda," she said quickly. "Father's going to pick me up at eleven so I must run. I'll come back tomorrow night and we can have our visit then."

While Bret stood by dumb with contrition, they exchanged a word or two. Then she fled away and Linda turned to Bret again

She had stood between him and the aisle so that he could not have escaped if he would. Her nose was still bleeding a little, but her eyes were twinkling with mirth over the handkerchief.

"Gosh, Miss Nay," he swore fervently. "I'd like to take a good kick at myself for hurting you!"

"O, I don't mind," she said. "I'm used to it now!"

"Used to it? he echoed, bewildered.

"Why, yes. You know this is the second time," she told him.

Bret stared at her. "The second time?" he muttered dumbly.

"That you've made my nose bleed," she insisted. The nose was better now. She removed the handkerchief and fingered the hurt feature gingerly. "It's swollen," she said; and then, laughing at his perplexity, she protested, "Surely you must remember! Or do you bloody girls' noses so often that you . . ."

He stared at her, his eyes widening. "Say, listen," he cried, "you're not . . ."

"Of course I am," she assured him. "Mary Madison. You gave me a ride in your little cart one day when I was seven years old and tipped me into a telephone pole."

The wreck was complete and absolute.

"When we lived in Worcester?" he cried incredulously.

"I thought you knew," said Mary Madison, or Linda Nay. "I thought that was why you kept coming every night to see the show." And she challenged, "If that wasn't the reason . . ."

Ushers were raising seats with a loud slapping sound all over the house. Women with brooms and mops and pails appeared like shadows in the side aisles.

"That wasn't the reason,' Bret told her hastily.

"Let's go somewhere," Linda invited, "and you can tell me the reason. You must give me supper."

Halfway up the aisle he said "Honestly I'm awfully sorry I hurt you."

"It served me right," Linda admitted.

"Why?" he asked.

"For playing tricks on you," she confessed. "You see, all the first week I expected you'd come back stage to see me and when I saw you weren't coming I tried to catch you last night but you'd gone."

"So tonight I put Ruth Little in the seat beside you to keep you till I could get here so you just couldn't get away!"

The revue had opened in Boston for experiment and amendment, expecting to move to New York at the end of a fortnight. But rough spots refused to be smoothed out and the show stayed on. Thus Bret and Linda had an opportunity to see one another with a satisfying frequency. It was not necessary for her to participate in rehearsals, so from late breakfast till seven in the evening, except for matinees, her days were free.

And they lunched together, drove together, did this and that—so long as they were together. After the first day they sought seclusion, and for good reason. That day they had lunched at the Touraine, and as they ordered, Ralph Field, who carried the song numbers in the revue, and Sally Moffatt, the ingenue, came over to join them for a moment. They stayed, Sally chattering to Linda till Bret and Linda were served. The waiter set a tall glass of iced coffee at Bret's elbow. Then Sally and Ralph rose to go and Sally extended her hand across the table.

"Good-by, Mr. McCaskell," she said.

Bret took her hand, and when his own hand returned to his side it struck the glass of coffee and knocked the creamy liquid with its freight of half melted ice cubes a dozen feet across the floor. A coffee sp'attered dowager at the next table rose and marched out of the restaurant in black fury, the head waiter at her elbow in futile efforts to appease her. Sally and Ralph Field escaped. Waiters scurried to remove the debris and Linda reached across the table to touch Bret's hand reassuringly.

"Never mind," she said, "it happens to every one!"

Bret grinned ruefully and shook his head. "No," he said, "that sort of thing is a specialty of mine. I'm just naturally the clumsiest man you ever saw. Aunt Sarah always says it's lucky I'm not a farmer because I couldn't milk a cow without breaking off her horn"

Sally laughed in sympathetic amusement. "The old snake!" she protested

"O, she's grand," Bret assured her. "I've lived with her ever since I was a kid, since mother died. I'm an awful trial to her. I'm always tripping over lamp cords or knocking into chairs or something." And he said, "You know that was the reason I kept coming to watch you dance. It's so incredibly beautiful to see any one with such complete control over her body as you!"

"It's just work, long practice, drudgery," she said; and half to herself she confessed, "O, I had dreams, visions. But now I'm tired of them. I'm not—stage struck, Bret. I'm about ready to quit it, get a job as a stenographer or something. It's not all it's cracked up to be."

"Don't do that!" he urged. "Don't ever quit dancing. It's a wonderful thing to see." And he said humbly, "You cant realize what it means to a—clown like me. I've gone through life stepping on girls' feet and bumping into people and breaking things . . ."

"Like the coffee today?" she asked smilingly.

"I'm grateful it wasn't ink or glue," he said.

She made light of his mishap, nevertheless, thereafter they did more often seek places where they could go unrecognized. She began to realize that to commit herself to his charge was in fact to court mishap. For example one afternoon he proposed an expedition.

"There's a friend of Aunt Sarah's" he explained, "Mrs. Nat Pennifond. She's an old Gorgon, a great character, and she's got a house that's really a museum. It's designed like a sort of Roman villa and packed full of statues and things, and every so often she admits the public, charges a small fee. I don't know whether you'd be interested?"

"O, I would," she assured him. "Will your Aunt Sarah be there?"

"No," Bret told her, chuckling. "No, you're perfectly safe. No fear of running into her."

"That wasn't what I meant," Linda protested. "I shouldn't be in the least afraid of her!"

"No reason you should," Bret assented. "She's all right. Then we'll go!"

On the way he told her more about Mrs. Pennifond. "She's a widow, of course," he explained. "And every one likes her, but her name is really a joke on her. You see Mr. Pennifond collected all this junk, these so-called art treasures. He spent a lot of money on them. But Mrs. Pennifond squeezes every nickle till it screams. No one ever was fonder of pennies. She's rich as dirt, yet she charges admission to her house . . ."

They came presently to their destination and went in. A secretary sold tickets at the door, and inside they joined a trickling stream of curious folk. Linda was only mildly interested in these ancient things; marble fragments, bits of mosaic, nude paintings, vases, urns, statuary. But she was content to be with Bret—more and more content to be with Bret as the pleasant days went by.

They were in the great central hall when Mrs. Pennifond discovered them and recognized Bret. She called down to him from the balcony above, called his name, and Bret turned to look up toward her.

In doing so he jostled a vase which stood upon a low pedestal and Linda, though she tried, was not quick enough to catch it. It fell and shattered on the floor.

Bret stood pale with horror. He stared at the vase. He looked hopelessly at Linda. And old Mrs. Pennifond, above them, called irascibly:

"Bret, you come here to me!"

There were curious folk quick to cluster around, but they gave way before Bret. He and Linda came to the stairs and ascended, guiltily as children. Mrs. Pennifond in grim silence ushered them into the room from which she a moment before emerged, and shut the door behind them.

"Well, Bret!" she exclaimed in a fine indignation, then, "what have you to say for yourself?"

Linda colored with a quick, loyal anger, but before she could speak Bret said, "Why, I want to pay for the vase, of course. I know it can't be replaced, but if you will let me. . . ."

"It was priceless!" said Mrs. Pennifond inflexibly. "Simply priceless! But my husband paid seven hundred dollars for it in Cairo thirty years ago."

"I'll write a cheque," said Bret, "if you've a blank here."

"There at my desk,' said Mrs. Pennifond. "And don't spill the ink or break anything. I ought to charge you interest, but I won't. Seven hundred dollars."

Bret began to write, and Linda could no longer be silent. "Mrs. Pennifond," she said. "Of course I know Bret's glad to pay you. . . ."

"Who are you?" the older woman demanded.

"Linda Nay," said Linda. "A friend of Bret's. I started to say that I think you were partly to blame, leaving such a valuable vase on such a tottery pedestal. If it hadn't been Bret it would have been some one else. It was bound to get knocked over some time."

Bret finished the cheque and blotted it and handed it to Mrs. Pennifond. She scanned it carefully.

"Hm!" she said, and looked at Linda. "Maybe so. I hadn't thought of that. Maybe the reason I hadn't thought of it was because that vase had stood on that pedestal for three thousand years!"

Linda turned red as flame, and then suddenly she laughed a little at herself. "Then the joke's on me, isn't it," she said. "I just thought you were pretty hard on Bret!"

"If you're going to stand up for Bret, you'll have plenty to do!" said Mrs. Pennifond. Her old eyes were keen on the girl, and on Bret too, but she only added: "He needs some one to defend him about as often as anybody I know. Now good day to you!"

The affair of the vase had repercussions. Two or three days later Bret came to Linda with news

"Aunt Sarah wants me to bring you out to tea tomorrow, Linda," he said. "If you like!"

Linda looked at him in quick delight. "You've told her about me?" she asked eagerly.

"No," he confessed. "I haven't. But Mrs. Pennifond did. She liked you, I guess. Maybe because you had spunk enough to stand up to her! Anyway, she spoke of you to Aunt Sarah, and Aunt Sarah wants to meet you."

So Linda understood. Men may be blind in such matters, but not women. Mrs. Pennifond, when Linda came so stoutly to Bret's defense, must have made a shrewd guess at certain matters which Linda had thought were a secret known to her alone. She thought she could almost hear the old woman's crisp words:

"And Sarah, the girl's in love with him! If you don't want to see him snatched right out from under your nose, you'd better . . ."

So Aunt Sarah, to begin the campaign, was asking her to tea!

Linda began to perceive that this young man still looked upon her as remote, completely unattainable. She said to him at last, in a sprightly tone:

"O, by the way, Bret—we're moving on to New York Sunday."

"Sunday?" he echoed, and there was a hollow pain in him. "Well," he said after a moment, "I suppose you will. The show must be just about in shape. It looks all right to me!"

She laughed. "You ought to be a judge, Bret. You must know every line of it by now."

And he said: "As a matter of fact, I don't pay much attention except when you're on. It's hard to explain, in a way, Linda. But—I just go to watch you! It's just like watching a miracle!"

They were at the moment in traffic, as he brought her back to the theatre. She asked, half piqued:

"But you like me, too, don't you, Bret?" She laughed. "You daren't say no, after I practically trapped you and made you—speak to me. You see, I've been crazy about you, ever since you bloodied my nose that first time."

"Sure I like you," he told her. "You're a peach." He added quickly, as though afraid he might have alarmed her: "But don't worry. I'm not going to make love to you Linda."

She smiled. "No."

"Gosh, no," he promised humbly. "I've got too much sense—too much of a sense of humor, anyway—for that. But I can sort of sit out front and think you're a miracle, just the same."

"I should think miracles might be dull after a while," she suggested, watching him.

He shook his head. "No, sir! And you are one, you know. Your feet your hands, make exactly the same movements every night, and never change. Always so smooth, and sure."

She laughed, a sudden hard mirth in her tones. "Maybe if I fell on my—nose, once, in the middle of an arabesque, you would realize I'm human!"

He chuckled. "You couldn't," he assured her. "It just isn't in you to fall."

He turned the car into the alley by the stage door, and she alighted there. "Four tomorrow?" she said.

"Not tonight after the show?"

"No Bret. I'm tired tonight."

"Sure. Four tomorrow, then."

She disappeared indoors, and in some haste. Linda had a sudden feeling that if she did not get out of his sight as quickly as possible she would be making a spectacle of herself, there at the stage door.

Linda waited for Bret next afternoon in no patient mood. She was dressed and ready by three, and thereafter she walked to and fro about her room, pausing occasionally at the window, turning back into the room again. And she began as she moved to and fro to frown and tighten her lips and clench her hands. But later the frown of impatience gave way to a frown of reflection, and then suddenly to a half smile—that became a whole smile by and by.

Thereafter, one watching her might have supposed that she was rehearsing in slow motion the steps of a dance routine. She moved two or three steps, extended her hands, turned. She took a sort of skipping step, and two or three running steps, and another turn with outstretched arms, and swept a deep curtsy at the end. And she repeated this performance over and over, heedless now of the time.

At ten minutes of four her phone rang. It was Bret on the wire, and he had desperation in his tones.

"Linda?"

"Yes. Are you downstairs?"

"No, Linda. Listen! I've got a flat tire, having it fixed up here, and I'll come down and get you. Taxi would take too long in the traffic at this time of day, so I'll come down on the subway. Can you meet me at the top of the subway stairs, across from the hotel, right away?"

"I'll be there," Linda assured him, smiling. There was always something about Bret's eagerness which touched and pleased her. She descended in the elevator, and crossed to the Mall, and came to the kiosk and waited there at the head of the stairs.

She watched the platform below for the first sight of Bret. A woman started up the stairs toward her. A comfortably plump woman somewhat past midd'e age, dressed in the ingeniously dowdy fashion in which Bostonians know so well how to array themselves. Linda smiled secretly at the full black skirt, at that absurd hat perched so high on the woman's head.

But then she saw Bret dart across the platform below and start, three steps at a time, up the stairs.

The woman was on the right hand side of the stairs, Bret on the left, and the stairs were at least twelve feet wide. There semed no least reasonable possibility for a collision, and yet even before it happened, Linda had a shuddering premonition.

Bret and the woman would, under normal conditions, have reached the head of the stairs approximately together and side by side. But half a dozen treads below her, Bret slipped. His toe, half on and half off a tread, slid off and his foot slapped down violently on the step below. He was thrown off balance, almost falling, and he half caught himself with one hand, staggering to recover his footing.

At the same time, he veered to one side. His body fell forward faster than his feet could climb the steps, and it semed that he must inevitably fall flat on his face.

But he did not. At the last possible moment, head down, feet scrambling, he butted into the woman. The butt was distinctly below the belt, a foul butt! A goat might have administered such a butt, even a self-respecting goat. But not a man!

The woman, thus abruptly assaulted from the rear, bent backward like a bow. Her feet rose from their good solid footing on the topmost tread. She flew through the air, and alighted on her feet, as a duck lights on land with a little scuttering run.

And turned around.

The butt, checking his momentum, had saved Bret from falling As the woman turned, straightening her hat, he came erect to face her, and his countenance was a crimson cataract of shame.

She looked at him, moved toward him He tried to babble something

And suddenly she smiled reassuringly and touched his arm.

"You don't need to say a word, young man," she said. "I know exactly how you feel!"

And head high, hat still proudly in place, she marched away

Bret stood limp and paralyzed, staring after her, but Linda caught his arm. "Hooray for Boston!" she whispered. "That's a grand lady, Bret. If your Aunt Sarah's anything like that, bring her on."

He protested miserably: "After that, I should think you'd be ashamed to be seen with me!"

"Idiot!" she cried, and squeezed his arm. "Even she was so sorry for you that she loved you. Didn't you see? Women sort of like awkward men, my dear!"

But he would in no wise be comforted. Linda was almost impatient with his stubborn gloom.

Bret lived with Aunt Sarah in one of those old, formless frame houses, sprawling over a quarter acre of ground, common in some parts of Brookline. He brought Linda there today in a despondent silence and ushered her in and introduced her to Aunt Sarah. Linda, shrewdly appraising the older woman, thought there was a depth of understanding in her—and a deep love for Bret. Just now, for example, after one glance at him, she said acutely:

"What's the matter with you, Bret? What mess have you got into now?"

So Bret made a confession, and Linda watched Aunt Sarah and saw something like rueful tears in the older woman's eyes. But Aunt Sarah's tone was all exasperation.

"I declare, Bret, I don't know how I've raised you," she protested hopelessly. "If you can get across the room without falling over a chair, go ring for tea."

So Bret rang, and Linda said: "He didn't finish the story, though." She repeated the woman's kindly word. "Bret looked so pitifully sorry,' Linda added smilingly, "she couldn't help forgiving him!"

"He always does," Aunt Sarah agreed. "Some day he'll spill blueberry pie on some girl's white satin and look so ashamed that she'll marry him out of pity." She tossed her head. "It's the only way he'll ever get married," she predicted. "He'll never up and ask any girl. Got a complex. Thinks he's the only clumsy man in the world. Here, Hester. Put it here."

The maid set the tea tray on the low table before Aunt Sarah, and the older woman poured. "Lemon? And a bit of toast and jam? There, Miss Nay."

She handed Linda a plate laden with teacup and saucer, and bearing a slice of toast spread with jam. Bret stood by the hearth, half the room away. Aunt Sarah said to Linda:

"Bret tells me you used to live near him in Worcester."

"O, yes," said Linda, and turned to look toward Bret.

What followed was extravagantly complicated, completely catastrophic. Yet it happened—or seemed to happen—so slowly that no least detail could be missed.

When Linda thus turned, she tripped over her own feet. Her right foot caught on her left, throwing her somewhat off balance and forward. The effect of this was to make the cup and saucer slide almost off the plate. Linda tried to catch them.

In doing so, she took a step forward and stepped on a small rug. The rug immediately slid on the hardwood floor. Linda slid with it, toward the side table on which were set two alabaster lamps and some odds and ends of porcelain.

Beside the table there was also a standing lamp.

Linda, sliding on the treacherous rug, threw out her hands in a desperate effort to balance. The cup and saucer, and the toast spread with jam, slid off the plate and fell on the floor. Cup and saucer splintered, the toast fell soggily, stickily.

Linda slid into the lamp cord. The lamp twitched out of equilibrium, bowed to meet her. She embraced it, but like an actual physical opponent, it bore her backward as though to thrust her down. She tried to catch herself, her arms whirling like windmills, but the lamp was inexorable.

One of her hands made contact with the table. The table was covered with a piece of tapestry. Her fingers fastened on this fabric, clinging desperately.

At the same time, embracing the lamp and clinging to the table cover, she fell. She fell in a sitting posture, and into her lap and on the floor about her cascaded all the objects on the table, flowing over the table edge, borne by the tapestry as floating objects are waterborne over a cataract. The wreck was complete and absolute.

Linda had sat down on the toast. Instantly she tried to get up again, scrambling. Her foot caught somehow in the front breadth of her skirt, and as she straightened up the skirt ripped across and down, from right hip to left knee.

She stood there like a statue unveiled.

The thing had happened suddenly, thought slowly, too. Bret had had no time to move, but he did move now. He leaped to Linda's side and caught her in his arms and held her close, and cried:

"Linda, are you hurt? Linda are you half killed? Linda, are you all right? Arms? Legs? Broken anywhere?"

"I don't know," she whimpered. "I don't know."

"Darling!" he stammered. "Gosh, you might have killed yourself. Are you all right, dear?"

Linda, in his arms, looking past his shoulder at Aunt Sarah, was satisfied with what she saw

"Why, yes," she decided. "I think I'm all right. Yes, Bret. I'm fine!"

Aunt Sarah said crisply: "Hm! Bret, ring for Hester to bring some safety pins for that dress. Linda, have a fresh cup of tea."

"I'm so sorry," Linda protested. "I was awfully clumsy!"

Aunt Sarah nodded a dry twinkle in her eyes. "It's fortunate you're not a farmer's daughter," she said crisply. "You'd never be able to milk the cows without breaking off their horns!"

And Bret cried, in sudden illumination and delight, as though this made them suddenly akin:

"Hey, Linda! That's exactly what she always says to me!"

When Linda presently said good-by Aunt Sarah held her hand long and her eyes were amused. "You're a splendid actress, my dear," she said.

"O, I'm not an actress, only a dancer," Linda protested.

Aunt Sarah did not contest the point. "And an understanding woman, too," she concluded. "Come and see me soon again."

Bret had left his car in the garage, and they went out to get it together. But in the shadowed interior of the garage Bret caught Linda to him, held her close and hungrily.

"Gosh, darling!" he cried. "You don't know what a difference it makes in the way I feel about you, knowing you're human, after all! You've no idea!"

"Give me a rough idea!" she challenged.

His reply was rough, certainly, but it was also eloquent. Yet he felt her lips move under his, as though to escape, and he whispered:

"What is it, sweet?"

"I hate to interrupt you, darling," Linda told him, "but you're standing, all your weight, upon my toe."

Vanished Souvenirs

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 4—South African detectives have a hard case on their hands—when the foundation stone of the General hospital being demolished here was removed it was found the newspapers and coins cemented therein in 1889 had vanished.

With All My Love - - - - By Mary Raymond

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Against the wishes of her grandmother, aristocratic MRS. WILLIARD CAMERON, DANA WESTBROOK marries DR. SCOTT STANLEY, struggling young physician.

Before her marriage, RONALD MOORE had been in love with her. NANCY, Dana's half-sister, loves Ronald, but hides her feeling behind a disdainful attitude.

Both Mrs. Cameron and PAULA LONG, who has loved Scott for years, hope the marriage will not last.

Dana becomes aware of Paula's infatuation for her husband. One stormy night Paula sends for Scott. Dana waits alone all night, not knowing Paula had attempted suicide. Then she goes to her grandmother. Mrs. Cameron decides to do all she can to make the separation permanent.

Ronnie is a comforting friend, but Dana remains disconsolate, believing Scott loves Paula. Scott, meanwhile, believes Dana's real reason for leaving him is unhappiness caused by their economic struggles.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI.

IT WAS Nancy who broke the news to Dana. "Well, Scott's done it!" she said. "Landed right at the top—high, wide and handsome."

Dana's hand went to her heart. Why didn't Nancy go on? Why was she standing there, smiling so queerly?

"Scott's been taken into partnership by Dr. Osborne," Nancy continued. "He'll be doctoring all the richest patients in town. Now I guess you'll write that note and say you're sorry!"

Dana did not answer for a moment. So Nancy believed that was why she had left Scott and that now she would beg him to take her back. That would be what Scott would think, too. Sometimes lately it had been almost impossible not to write to him. But she could never write to him now.

"When has all this happened?" Dana asked.

"Just today. It's just been announced. They say Dr. Osborne has had his eyes on Scott for a long while and Scott cinched matters when he performed an operation Dr. Osborne said few surgeons could have done so well."

"Tell me about it," Dana asked.

"There's not much to tell. Dr. Osborne sprained his arm and he couldn't operate, so he turned the job over to Scott. Dr. Osborne watched him and—well it seems Scott's a sort of wizard in the operating room. That's all there is to the story, I guess."

Nancy stopped. She was suddenly sorry for Dana who looked frightfully cut up, as though she might faint. It must be pretty bad, at that, to realize you had given up an attractive husband because he didn't have any money, and then have him dip into the professional pie and draw out a plum as big as this.

Nancy was sorry for Dana, but she was glad for Scott. He deserved something extra nice after the way he had been treated.

"Aren't you glad, Dana?" Nancy asked curiously.

"Why, of course." Dana's wide gaze met her half sister's. How could Nancy doubt that she was glad for Scott? No one knew as well as she how much he deserved it. This big chance would mean other chances. Scott was going to the top. Going without her.

Dana sat down and stared, unseeing, at the magazine she held in her hand. She was glad—oh, so glad! It was strange how you could be glad and yet completely hopeless because of the same piece of news.

"I heard, too," Nancy went on, "that Scott has given up the apartment and moved back into his house. He told somebody that the people who had been living there had almost wrecked the place and he's having it done over. Everybody thinks it's queer that he'd bother unless some woman was coming there to live. There's talk that it means you and he are planning to go back together."

"No," Dana said. "It doesn't mean that."

Mrs. Cameron had come from the dining room, and stood, unobserved by the sisters, in the doorway. She spoke harshly: "Nancy, sometimes I think you haven't a grain of sense. Dana couldn't go back to Scott now if she wanted to. It's been four months and she hasn't had a word from him. He goes about making a success of himself, moving into another home and yet he hasn't time to even speak to his wife. I don't know what Dana would have done if Ronnie hadn't been here to cheer her up."

"Oh, Ronnie!" Nancy's voice flashed out like a sharp blade released from its scabbard. "I had forgotten."

"Let's hear no more of such silly chatter about Scott," Mrs. Cameron commanded. "You needn't waste any pity on him, either. Your sister is the one who should have your sympathy."

"I suspect Dana will make out pretty well in the long run." Nancy's voice had a rough, ugly note. She hoped they wouldn't suspect how hard it was for her to talk at all with that ache in her throat.

Why did her grandmother always have to bring Ronnie's name into everything? And why did she always look at Dana so significantly when she spoke of Ronnie? It was indecent. You'd think Gran would remember that Dana was still a married woman, no matter how much she wished Dana was free.

Nancy hoped Dana would stay married. Furthermore, she hoped that now, when Scott had made a soft berth for himself, Dana would find a way to bring about a reconciliation as fast as she could.

Perhaps it was fear of that very thing that prompted Mrs. Cameron to talk to Dana that afternoon. Mrs. Cameron's dislike for Scott was based on something more than his lack of money. A partnership with Dr. Osborne would mean a comfortable living for the young doctor from now on. But Scott belonged to a family that had caused Mrs. Cameron much unhappiness. His grandfather had brought her anxiety and, though she had kept Ellen from throwing herself away on him, Mrs. Cameron had always suspected that deep down in her sister's heart there was a feeling that her life had been ruined by this decision.

Then Scott had appeared, proposing to Dana one night and marrying her the next day. Making the girl unhappy, in the bargain.

No matter how wealthy he became, Scott would certainly never have the fortune Ronnie had. Ronnie was in love with Dana, and if Dana were free he'd want her to marry him. Dana must be free. She must get a divorce soon.

"But I couldn't," Dana whispered passionately. "I couldn't divorce Scott. Let him do the divorcing if that's what he wants."

"He's pretty sure to be wanting one soon, if he hasn't thought of it yet. You girls are a queer lot, I must say. You want your cake and want to eat it, too. You treat Scott like an old coat you wouldn't wear, but think too much of to give away."

Dana blazed out: "I would never, never have left Scott if he hadn't driven me to it! I could never think of him as an old coat—" her voice broke.

Mrs. Cameron watched the tears stream down Dana's cheeks, thinking, "It's good for her to cry, getting rid of some of that emotion that she's been holding back. It's high time she began thinking of a divorce. Four months, and she hasn't had a word from Scott."

Mrs. Cameron thought that possibly the letter she had written Scott might have had something to do with it, though she doubted it. Scott was the sort who did his own thinking. Evidently he had made a decision and was sticking to it. The letter, begging him to leave Dana in peace, might have helped.

Dana resented her grandmother's words. If Scott wanted to be free, he could tell her so. Nevertheless, Mrs. Cameron's suggestions that Dana was acting unfairly stayed in her mind. Scott might be waiting, in the chivalrous fashion of southern men, for her to make the first move.

That thought, during the next two months, was like the steady drip of water on stone. It made no impression at first, gradually began to have an effect

Mrs. Cameron dropped further suggestions in the subtlest fashion. "I saw Scott driving this afternoon, Dana. I couldn't help wondering how he feels about the situation. Scott's in a difficult position, you know. Embarrassing. When people ask me 'What is Dana going to do?' all I can say is 'I don't know.' What are you going to do?"

"I don't know," Dana faltered.

She had been staying at home constantly, the short drives with Ronnie the only breaks in her loneliness. And only the day before she had seen Scott. Dana had been with Ronnie and Scott, doubtless, had seen them, for he had glanced the other way as he passed. She had felt that if only she might look into his eyes, she would know better what to do. She would know then if his love for her was really dead.

Scott had been driving a new roadster, gray like the old one only darker. It was a nice-looking car. And Scott had been alone. Perhaps he didn't mind being alone since Paula was still out of town. Nancy who always knew everything that was happening brought the news that Paula was visiting friends in the east, and later was to go on a cruise. Paula, no doubt, was waiting for something definite to happen. Something as definite as a divorce. Then she'd come back.

Dana decided dully, "I'll give him the divorce. There's no use waiting any longer. He has shown in every way that when he stayed away all that night he was forcing me to leave him."

She would tell her grandmother tonight. The divorce would make four people happy—Scott, Paula, Grandmother—and Ronnie

Today's Markets

Toronto—Industrials

TORONTO, Jan. 4—British American Oil continued to climb in the short Saturday market today, touching 19, its high for some years and up ¾ for the day. Other oils were steady as were the listings in general. Heavy trading appeared in the Abitibi stocks, common and preferred, the common gaining 15 cents to $1.60 and the preferred ¾ to 8.

C. P. R. and Distillers Seagrams were also heavy traders and the big rail advanced to 12⅛ to ¾. Distillers at 3½ had a minor loss. Brazilian around 10⅛, was down ⅛.

Highs for a year or longer were registered by Consolidated Bakeries, Canadian Bakeries, Pfd., Canadian Dredge, Riverside Silks and Abitibi, Pfd. Consolidated Bakeries sold at 18, up a half point, and Canadian Bakeries, Pfd., added 2 points, selling at 45. The Loblaw issues did better and Canada Vinegars added ¼.

At Toronto—Mines

TORONTO, Jan 4—With exception of Nipissing, which pushed upward smartly on heavy turnover, trading on the mining section of the Toronto exchange today was confined chiefly to the medium-price and penny gold shares. Narrow gains and losses were spread over the board.

Nipissing advanced to $2.75 and closed at $2.70 to show a net gain of 12 to 14 cents. Castle was a cent higher and the bid was firm to strong for Eldorado.

Falconbridge at $7.10 was unchanged and Hudson Bay, Sudbury Basin and Ventures ruled steady. Sherritt was inclined to firm up

Active penny stocks were Paymaster, Red Lake, Sullivan, Kirkland Lake, Gunnar, Goldale and Chibougamau. The majority of these closed unchanged. Little Long Lac was up about 10 cents, Sylvanite was up 5 cents to $2.55, Pamour weakened a few cents and San Antonio held steady at $3.

Senior gold issues were quiet and steady. In the oil group Royalite set a new high for a year or longer at 30⅞, up⅝.

At Montreal

MONTREAL, Jan. 4—The list on Montreal stock exchange today closed with the majority of issues on the upside.

Celanese touched its highest peak in five years at 31⅛ before closing with a fractional gain. Wabasso Cotton added 2 points.

St. Lawrence Corporation, Bathurst, Dryden and Howard Smith were fractionally higher.

B. C. Power, Montreal and Brazilian Traction, were off slightly. C. P. R. was boosted ¼.

At New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—Rail stocks spurted 1 to 2 or more points in today's brief market session, but mixed price movements spotted the rest of the list.

President Roosevelt's message to the United States congress was received calmly and brokers said it was questionable as to what influence it may have on equities. The rally of the carriers put the ticker tape 3 minutes behind floor dealings and transfers approximated 1,600,000 shares. The close was irregular.

NEW YORK BONDS

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—Firmness in low-priced rail issues, many of which advanced around a point, was an outstanding feature of the corporatebond market today. U. S. Governments were steady.

The general run of industrial and utility issues edged forwerd with fractional gains.

In the foreign section Italian bonds led an upward trend.

WHEAT STEADY; DULL MARKET

WINNIPEG, Jan. 4—Wheat prices held steady in a dull session of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today and closed ¼-⅛ cent lower. The May future finished at 88¾ and July 89⅜ cents.

Firmness in outside markets imparted quiet strength to local values, with the volume of pit transactions small.

Export sales of Canadian wheat were estimated at only aproximately 300,000 bushels.

Liverpool closed unchanged to ⅛d higher, while final Buenos Aires quotations were unchanged. Chicago moved up a fraction.

Continued keen demand for all grades of wheat from No. 1 Northern to feed grades featured cashgrain trading. Spreads advanced fractionally. Coarse grain prices were quietly firm.

Reds On Parade

One does not have to be a keen student of Spanish to interpret the second word "Communista" in this banner nor to recognize the sickle and hammer of the Soviet party. In Mexico, which is not a Soviet state, Communists are officially allowed to make public demonstrations such as this one against Capitalism and Fascism. All traffic was stopped in Mexico City as this parade wended its way through the capital. It was of five hours' duration. Communism there has been the development of the "Camisas Doradas" (Golden Shirts), which is a Fascist organization. Two Communists were killed recently while breaking up a Golden Shirt meeting.

BROOMHALL

CHICAGO, Jan. 4—Larger world shipments are forecast for this week. Canada is getting rid of the accumulated wheat surplus which disproves the statement that "Europe will buy no more, even if the price is attractive." Since August 1 to the end of Dec. we reckon that Canada has shipped overseas (both coasts) of wheat and flour 62,000,000, to the U.S.A. for grinding in bond 4,500,000, to U.S.A. for consumption 19,000,000 and to U.S.A. for winter storage 27,000,000—a total of 112,500,000. Of course the quantity in store in the U.S.A. for winter storage could be re-exported to Canada in bond and should not be counted in exports until the duty is paid thereon. Nevertheless, the grand total shows what a large amount of wheat this country has got rid of in five months, with indications overseas clearances would be much heavier in the last seven months of the season.

Broomhall's last figure on Canada's likely exports was for 272,000,000 to all destinations, including exports to America. If this figure is to be attained shipments will have to average little better than 5,000,000 bushels a week, which is not unlikely. Export business in Canada was heavy again yesterday. Freight rates are firmer.

The continent continues buying and all this accumulated export business in Canadian wheat is strengthening the Canadian dollar in relation to the American dollar, temporarily. The decline in the Argentine corn prices and the advance in American is putting this Plate corn closer in line for import into the U.S. Shippers are asking 45 cents cif New York plus 25 cents import duty and unloading charges make this corn in the east about 75 cents a bushel. However, the B. A. price is within two cents of the maximum and unless Chicago continues to advance, there is little chance of any import trade for the time being.

REVOLT THREAT IN HAILE RANKS

ADDIS ABABA, Jan. 4—A threatened revolt in Gojjam province added to difficulties Friday of the Ethiopian government, already fighting Italian invasion on two borders.

Five thousand warriors were dispatched from Addis Ababa to attempt to put down the insurgents. There have already been numerous clashes in the rich northwest province.

The leader of the dissension, it was said here, is a nephew of Ras Hailu, former governor, who was removed from office and imprisoned on charges of intriguing with Italians in 1933. Hailu is now held in chains on an island prison in Lake Zwai, south of Addis Ababa.

Oil Driller Dies

SARNIA, Ont., Jan. 4.—John W. Sutherland, 70, who served as an oil driller in Alberta, British Columbia and Peru, died from a heart attack in the nearby village of Oil Springs Friday. A native of Cornwall, Ont., he was reeve of Oil Springs in 1917.

DUKE OF KENT TO GET POST

LONDON, Jan. 4—The News Chronicle said Friday it understood the Duke of Kent, youngest son of Their Majesties, was likely to be offered the post of Warden to the Cinque Ports.

The post was vacated by the death this week of the Marquis of Reading.

The Cinque Ports are an association of maritime towns in southern England, exercising a jurisdiction which dates back as far as the Norman Conquest.

GIRL PLANS LONG FLIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—Bessie Owen, Santa Barbara, Cal., flier, will leave today in the steamship Gerolstein for Antwerp on the initial stage of a journey which, she hopes, will result in the first feminine flight from Paris to Shanghai.

Aided by her pilot-mechanic, Fred Novinger, who will accompany her, the blond aviatrix was busy today storing her cabin plane aboard the vessel. She said the only difficulty she anticipates is securing a permit to fly over Libya, an Italian air base.

She explained: "I wanted to fly from Los Angeles to Shanghai but couldn't get permission."

Ship Puts About When Skipper Lost

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., Jan. 4.—A ship without a skipper, the small coastal steamship Glencoe put back into Little Bay West shortly after sailing Friday to report Captain Frank Whalen missing.

Belief was expressed by the crew that the captain had fallen overboard and an official inquiry was opened.

The Glencoe, a 767-ton steamship, is owned by the Newfoundland Railway Steamship Department. Captain Whalen, 33, was known here as one of the most capable skippers in the governmental coastal service.

Death-Bed Tale Led Nine Men On Long Search

Lure of Treasure Described by Self-Styled Former Pirate Drew Saint John Pilots to Distant Island

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Jan. 4—Much of the fiction based on buried treasure is no stranger than an actual quest undertaken by eight Saint John men under the leadership of an English skipper named Delaney, according to an article written by Vera Lyla Daye, Saint John.

The time was 83 years ago and the sequence began when a merchant vessel commanded by Captain Delaney sailed out of Halifax harbor. During the voyage one of the motley crew, an old sailor whom Delaney had befriended, became seriously ill. Realizing the end was near, he sent for the captain and told how, years ago, he had been one of a pirate gang who operated in West Indies waters. On a small, uninhabited island known as Sand Cay, he said, they had cached their booty—silver dollars, gold and jewels. The old sailor was the only survivor of the gang, he added, and the vast treasure had never been claimed.

Relinquishing his command at the first opportunity, Delaney returned to Saint John to seek companions and a vessel suitable for treasure hunting. He had little difficulty. Pilots who owned and sailed the staunch, speedy pilot boat Rechab, 41 tons, were eager to take a chance. Delaney promised good security, and after provisions for three months had been loaded at night the Rechab set out, ostensibly on one of her usual pilot trips down the Bay of Fundy.

ALL ARE PILOTS

In addition to Delaney the party comprised Price Thomas, Edward Murray, John Murray, John Haviland and William Donaghey, all well known branch pilots; Charles Daley and Samuel Rutherford, apprentices; a sailor named Redwing, who acted as cook, and Christopher Smiler, printer and publisher. Smiler owned a "divining rod" supposed to be effective only in his hands. Soon after leaving port John Murray began to have doubts about the treasure, so he left the boat at a point on the Bay of Fundy coast.

A cruise of 13 days brought the Rechab to Sand Cay, near the better known Salt Cay and about 100 miles north of Haiti. A long, narrow, sandy, uninhabited strip of land partially covered with stunted bushes, the island was well named. On a knoll in the centre was a tumbledown tower which the dying sailor said had been the pirates' lookout. Following Delaney's instructions the searchers took their bearings from the ruins and started digging at a designated spot.

Lizards and cent pedes caused the first difficulty, forcing the party to live on the Rechab. Owing to stormy weather several men had to stay aboard the boat continuously to keep her from drifting ashore. The short-handed crew continued their tedious digging, but a deep hole revealed no sign of treasure.

DIG ANOTHER HOLE

Smiler then produced his divining rod, which pointed to a spot near the old tower. Working in clay and night shifts, the men dug another hole. Day after day they labored as tempers grew shorter. They fled from the island when an official hove in sight from Salt Cay, but returned when he decided there was no cause for interference and the treasure hunters returned the next day after making sure the coast was clear.

The weary grind continued without success. Smiler's rod would point first to one place and then to another. After five months of digging the pilots gave it up as a hopeless task. They returned to Saint John with the Rechab's hold half full of ballast instead of treasure. Whether the old sailor merely had been trying to while away his dying hours with a yarn or whether booty really had been stored on the island and claimed before Delaney's visit, was never learned.

So instead of wealth and a life of ease, the pilots carried on their profession for many years. Most of them found a sailor's grave. The sturdy little Rechab sailed the Fundy waters until the night of October 4, 1869, when the historic Saxby gale pounded her to pieces against the rocky shores of Bliss Harbor, on the Fundy coast.

Ethiopians Fire On British Planes

NAIROBI, Kenya, Jan. 4—Ethiopian infantry have opened fire twice in the last 10 days on British planes patrolling the Kenya Colony border, it was reported here last night.

British authorities protested both attacks, which occurred on Dec. 24 and 28. They received assurances from the Greek officer commanding the Ethiopian troops that in future the soldiers would distinguish carefully between British and Italian planes, it was said.

None of the British planes was hit, the report said.

PRIMATE PAYS VISIT TO U. S.

Expressing doubt that the League of Nations sanctions would be carried to the ultimate force used in Italy, the Reverend William Temple, archbishop of York and Primate of England, pictured on arrival at New York for a lecture tour, saw in the application of the penalties the chief hope for peace, in that they serve to establish the authority of the League.

Dick Powell Gets Unwanted Girl Visitor

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4—Jessica Weeks, 20, a domestic reported to came all the way from England to see Dick Powell, screen actor.

Friday charges of disturbing the peace were preferred against her by W. C. Kemp, secretary to Powell. He alleged the girl came to the actor's Toluca Lake home three times, trying to force her way into the house.

Didier Fougere Finally Buried

ETANG DU NORD, Magdalen Islands, Jan. 4—Didier Fougere was buried here Friday in a grave in Lavierniere cemetery which had been prepared to receive his body 10 days ago.

The 91-year-old fishery inspector had been pronounced dead Dec. 24 but burial was postponed at the request of doubting relatives who said the body showed signs of life. The coroner-legislator ordered the body dried three days before Christmas after he had suffered an attack of indigestion. Dr. Francois Guimont, called to the Fougere home, pronounced death.

When the Fougere relatives went preparing him for burial they noticed the body had retained some of its warmth, and had not performed Mgr. J. A. H. Blacquiere of Grindstone agreed the funeral should be delayed.

Saskatoon Gets Interest Slash On Borrowings

SASKATOON, Jan. 4.—For the first time in Saskatoon's history, this city is borrowing from its bankers on current account at less than five per cent. The Bank of Montreal has reduced interest rates from five to 4½ per cent, in line with similar reductions granted Regina and Calgary.

Struck By Car

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 4.—Rather than risk the icy sidewalks and suffer a fall, Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, 70, chose the road only to be struck by a motor car. She suffered injuries to her back and knees.

Police Probing Stabbing Murder

SASKATOON, Jan. 4—Inquiries into the death of William Mulcahy's seven-year-old master tailor of Dunburn Relief Camp, who was found stabbed through the heart in his room in a local hotel shortly before noon Friday, was opened yesterday afternoon by Coroner A H. Armitage, M.D.

A jury of six went to the hotel and made a survey of the room in which the body of the young man was found lying in a pool of blood. The inquest was then adjourned to next Wednesday.

From Dunburn Relief Camp it was learned J. A. Mularchyk, 1136 Albert road, Windsor, Ontario, was a brother of the dead man. His father, Mick Mularchyk, also was believed to reside in Windsor.

Geology Spoils Radio Reception In Newfoundland

Structure Unfavorable for Receiving Sets, in the Opinion of Noted Radio Engineer.

ST. JOHN, Nfld., Jan. 4—The geological structure of Newfoundland is detrimental to radio reception, in the opinion of H. W. Kitke, chief engineer of the research department of the British Broadcasting Company.

According to the noted radio engineer, strength of radio signals received in any particular locality are directly dependent on the geological strata underlying that district.

Of old formation, geologically, somewhat similar to Scotland and some parts of southern England, Newfoundland does not provide as favorable qualities for radio reception as regions of later origin.

Recently leaving the British Broadcasting Company to the Newfoundland Commission government, Mr. Kirke has been investigating receptions throughout the Old Colony with a view to selecting the most suitable location for a broadcasting station that would supply the entire island with satisfactory aerial entertainment.

His final decision will not come haphazardly. Equipped with an elaborate machine that measures strength of radio signals, he has travelled systematically throughout various peninsulas making tests every few miles and compiling results on graphs. Two different stations are used for testing and when the trials are completed, it will be possible to plot the best location for the proposed government station mathematically.

PATS PANS and PUNS
—BILL LEWIS

ESKIMOS make their second home start against Seattle Seahawks here tonight, with high hopes that they will enjoy greater success than attended their first clash with the Coast club Thursday. . . . In the first tilt, Esks looked anything but good against the opposition offered by the Seattle team, playing weak hockey both offensively and defensively. Now, Manager Ronnie Martin feels, the Igloomen have got a lot of poor hockey out of their respective systems, and are ready to go to town against the Hawks.

He is going to juggle his forward lines around and try to find a combination that can score some goals. . . . Certainly they haven't anything but scoring ability the other night and he feels that he can improve upon them by doing a little switching for this evening's enragement.

THERE is going to be a general shake-up of the Eskimos' firing lines for this second clash with Seattle. . . . Up to the present there has been no semblance of any playmaking on the part of either forward string, and Martin feels that he can do his men and the team as a whole some good by shifting the boys around to positions where they will be of some combined use on the attack.

Seahawks, naturally, are going to be going as hot as they know how, with their guns sighted on a playoff berth, but they will have to be better than they were Thursday if they hope to whip the Esks. . . . The locals just had a lot of poor hockey in their systems and, now that it's out, they figure to be a lot better.

LEFTY GROVES Dominions, unbeaten in six straight starts this winter, go south today for two of the hardest games they have had during the current season. . . . Tonight they play the Olds Elks in Olds, and then go on for a game against Drumheller Miners in the southern mining city on Monday evening.

Both Olds and Drumheller are rated plenty highly this season and, with the Dominions riding atop the crest of a league-winning streak, the games down south should be really interesting.

YOU can find any amount of money to say that Dominions will take the provincial senior championship for 1936, but that is going a little far, especially before you see the results the team obtains down south.

The Junior Hockey League race will be either tied in a knot tighter than a spinster's hair, or loosened up no little when Edmonton Athletic Club and Canadians clash tomorrow afternoon. The A.C., sitting on top of the heap, have a chance to pull well in front of the second-place South Siders by a victory, while the Canadians can tangle it all up by ringing up a win—so it should be quite a battle.

BADMINTON MEET PLANNED SHORTLY

The Inglewood Badminton Club will start its popular tournament on Jan. 11 with finals scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 18. This will be open events only, but a handicap tournament will be staged early in March.

Other popular features to be repeated at Inglewood during the second half of the season are: Round robin tournaments; men's nights; president versus vice-president match, and will be followed by beanfeast; banquet and dances.

PROLITES WIN BORDER TOWN HOCKEY GAME

Lloydminster Triumphs Over Selkirk Hotel Sextet, 5-3

LLOYDMINSTER, Jan. 4.—Bill Hoffman's Prolites ushered in the 1936 hockey season at the Lloydminster arena on New Year's day with a clean cut 5-3 victory over the celebrated Edmonton Hotel Selkirk all stars, before a crowd of 450 fans, who were kept on their toes all through the game.

A three-man play from Spencer to Sunderland to Kinney brought the first count of the game, putting Prolites in the lead and from there on they never looked back. The first string of Hoffman, Pigeon and Lameaux of the hotel gang were dangerous at all times and kept the local defence on the hop every time they came near them. Kenney broke through the entire Edmonton troupe but failed to get the goal. Geo. Mclvor sent in a hot shot from the wing which according to the numerous fans, passed the net to the right in and out again off the net, but the goal judge did not put on the light and it was not counted.

Both teams played bang up hockey through the 40 second period, each netting one goal. Salt put the Prolites two up on a pretty play from Long Lake beat all the way and Lameaux put the hotel squad in the scoring column from a pretty piece of stickhandling.

Prolites went to the circus in the third stanza, rapping in three goals in rapid succession. Rob recorded George's pass. Dempster was sent off for tripping, and the famous Edmonton defence boys Bob Mclvor beat Lang with a difficult knee high shot for the locals fourth, and Spencer took Bob's pass for a perfect count a few minutes later. Edmonton then took a prominent hand in the game taking a couple of counters. Flett shot from the blue line, the puck hitting Sunderland and then into the net, and later Smith converted Flett's pass into a goal. Brown made some sensational saves in the final five minutes of the game to keep the score at 5-3.

LINEUPS

Edmonton—Lang, Rimstad, Flett, Patrick, C. Smith, Purcell, Lameaux, Fats Hotchkiss, Mac.

Prolites—P. Brown, J. Kinney, W. Salt, J. Dempster, R. Copeland, G. McIvor, G. McIvor, W. Sabine, S. Sunderland, Spencer.

Referee—H. J. Dean.

Trochu Curlers Have Fine 'Spiel New Year's Day

TROCHU, Jan. 4—The Trochu Curling club's annual New Year's knockout competition was run off here New Year's day. The rink skipped by H. Klitzky was crowned the winners, with F. Dodd runners. The Kletzky rink played four games and the Dodd rink five games during the day. Sixteen rinks competed.

The games were as follows:—

First Round: R. H. Slipp defeated H. Snyder, J. A. Findlay defeated E. Cushing, D. Dodd defeated T. Kelly, H. McHammond defeated W. Wecker, C. McLachlan defeated G. Evans, M. McArthur defeated the Miners, Dr. J. B. Snyder defeated W. H. Anderson, H. Kletzky defeated I. E. McLea.

Second Round: H. H. Slipp defeated A. Findlay, F. Dodd defeated H. McHammond, C. McLachlan defeated M. McArthur, H. Kletzky defeated Dr. J. B. Snyder.

Semi-Finals: F. Dodd defeated R. H. Slipp and H. Kletzky defeated C. McLachlan.

H. Kletzky won the final game with his last rock after Dodd had counted a six-ender in the eleventh to tie the score.

MINER CAPTAIN MAY NOT PLAY

DRUMHELLER, Jan. 4—Suffering from a torn ligament, the result of Drumheller Miners' New Year battle against Calgary Rangers, Gus Gustason, Miner captain, is in Drumheller hospital undergoing treatment. Whether the star centre man of the coal city squad will be in fit condition to turn out against Edmonton Dominions Monday is debatable but Dr. T. R. Ross, club surgeon, is making every effort to have Gustason in shape for what is viewed as the major encounter of the season.

Coach Reg. Mackie told the Bulletin Friday that Gustason had suffered the injury early in the Jan 1st game but had remained on the ice throughout the session rather than retire for treatment.

Wilmer Allison Wins Two Games

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 4—Wilmer Allison, veteran Davis Cup star, opened his 1936 campaign here with two easy victories in the second annual Sugar Bowl tournament.

Experimenting a bit with his large repertoire of shots, the United State champion swept aside Jack Moore, Atlanta veteran and former southern champion, in straight sets, 6-2, 7-5, then came back with another straight set victory over Robert Lake of Birmingham.

WINS BATTLE

one of the most promising contenders for the lightweight boxing crown, who stepped in line for championship bout by trouncing Frankie Klick, veteran California contender, in a ten-round bout at Madison Square Gardens last night. The Herkimer, N.Y., hurricane won on decision after a tame fight.

JUNIORS PLAY IN IMPORTANT GAME SUNDAY

Important to both teams, owing to the close race of the Junior Hockey league, two of the fightingest teams in the circuit will clash on Sunday afternoon at the Arena.

Edmonton Athletic Club opposing their bitter opponents, Safeway-Canadians, will be the feature clubs, and they will be putting up a battle royal in that contest.

E. A. C's, leading by the scant margin of one point over the third team in the league—South Side A's—will be fighting hard to place themselves even higher in the standings.

However, Canadians have been showing plenty in the line of new fighting power. In their last two starts the Canucks have really turned loose the heat and came within winning distance in each instance.

Rebuilding of the Canadians has been a tedious job for Manager Bill Duff and Coach "Lefty" Grove, but during the last couple of games, these hockey wise men may probably have their lineup arranged to perfection. At least has worked the best since the start of the season.

Clarence Campbell will officiate, and will start the game at the usual time of 3:00 o'clock.

JULES HUOT TAKES LEAD IN MIAMI GOLF

MIAMI SPRINGS, Fla., Jan. 4—The stocky Jules Huot of Quebec gave top-ranking American money golfers something to ponder Friday as he breezed through the first 18 holes of the 12th annual $2,500 Miami open in 67, three under par, to lead the big pack.

Only Paul Runyan, the White Plains, N.Y., professional, came near equalling the Canadian pro's scintillating first round. Runyan, by virtue of his three under par 32 for the last nine, finished with 68.

Denny Shute, Chicago, George Smith of Chicago, and Willie MacFarlane, Tuckahoe, N.Y., managed to equal par, with 70's but other noted golfers in the field, described as the best save one in the history of the oldest of Florida open events, slipped one or many strokes over.

MONTREAL, Jan. 4.— Little or no possibility exists that Canada will be represented at the Olympic games by speed skaters, W. E. Roughton, president of the Amateur Skating Association of Canada, stated here. Funds were not available.

Increased Rasslin' Crowd Well Enjoys Four Top-Notchers

Hugh "Whiskers" Adams and Rob Roy Win Feature Events on Fine Wrestling Card at Empire

By JACK DEAKIN

Orchids of the fairest bloom to four top-notchers from o'er the line in yesterday's wrestling card at the Empire theatre, in which Promoter Mike Cutcher gave everything for the increased rasslin' crowd in attendance.

The semi-windup in the semi-windup Hugh "Whiskers" Adams with two of three falls over Horace "Horatius" Barber, while Rob Roy, a classy grappler, took a couple of falls from that eye-gouging Eddie Meyers in the final event. Giving zest to the evening's entertainment were Charlie Fraser, youthful young mat man who lost to John Bozovetsky in a curtain raiser by one fall.

FINE CARD SHOWN FOR LARGE CROWD

All in all, it was a fine wrestling card, starting out slowly to develop into a thrilling, spine-tingling battle for the semi-windup and final bouts.

Every grappler on the card gave their best. But to the white-garbed Hugh Adams let us extend our heartiest praise, although Horace Barber gave a masterful performance against the cagey whiskered fellow, who, incidentally, is a gentleman in and out of the ring, despite his healthy growth of beard.

OTHERS WHO STARRED

But there were others who starred on the card. Eddie Meyers, that often booed showman, who gave Rob Roy, the punishable Scot, every kind of mauling. This final climaxed a great show and had all standing on their feet, shouting for vengeance or continued punishment from Meyers. Both proved themselves two of the finest wrestling showmen on these here parts for many moons, and may both be grunting, groaning and intentionally panting in other special headline shows Promoter Cutcher has planned for the wrestling fraternity these next few weeks.

PRELIMINARY GOOD

Jack Buzovetsky and Charlie Fraser, both new professional stars opened the card with a good clean preliminary, with both sticking to near amateur rules, and handing out no great punishment. Fraser only a newcomer to mat mauling, gave a good performance for his first trip out and stood up well against our Buzzy pal throughout each fall, the one-fall bout with a body press.

MANY GRAND HOLDS

And then the real wrestling began. Adams and Barber, the latter a newcomer here, and the former a much-admired star to Edmonton fans, gave a fast bout in their wrestling were many clever holds, with both of them fast and cagey grapplers.

At the 15-minute mark Adams took the first fall after a series of arm twists and then intimidated his opponent with a punishing Boston crab.

Barber came back for the second fall. He handed Whiskers punishing flying tackles which sent the crowd frenzily frantic and then pinned the noble shoulders of the whiskered one to the mat with a body press.

WAS NOT TO WIN

But Barber was not to win. He gave samples of the famed O'Mahoney hold—the Irish Whip—but even that failed to humble Whiskers. But oh! that whip, it is an arm-twisting hold which would send anyone wrestling, goofed.

It was Adams' House of David special which saved the whiskered one and he tossed the burly Barber for the winning fall late in the joust. Barber, however, did last the longest any wrestler has ever shown against the dreaded special hold Adams applies to his victims.

The final event started off at a lightning-like pace and from the very start it was evident that the enthusiasts present would be treated to a somewhat rougher exhibition of the gentle wrestling art than in the two preceding bouts.

GOOD SHOWMEN

Meyers, always apt to spring a bad-boy hold on his opponent, stuck to the same rough tactics in the first round. Both grapplers rolled in and out of holds and gave and took their share of punishment. Roy, a popular man after his classy performance here in his last bout, took the worst of the first heat, absorbing in rapid succession a series of tough headlocks. Towards the end of this fall Meyers, forgetting his newly acquired gentlemanlike manners, incurred a bit of mauhandling at the hands of Maurice Debleik, who took no byways in matters to abide by the Queensrules known to exist in Australian wrestling. Meyers was awarded the first fall with an armlock.

The second round of this battle packed more action and thrills than any which was topped by Sir Meyers grabbing his towel off a corner post and trying to apply the hangman's hold on the faltering Roy. Debleik was again called into action to save Roy from the noose, which he did in no hesitating manner. During the course of this fall Roy had the opportunity Meyers tied up with the ring ropes in a series of complicated knots, which would foil the best Houdini. Roy took ten minutes of furious grappling. Referee Dunlop asserted his rights by awarding the fall to Roy, even when the inconsiderate Meyers just wouldn't stop biting, kicking and eye-gouging.

ROY CAME BACK

Roy came back after this second heat with renewed vim, pep and did that worry the worthy Meyers! This time Roy, tired of fighting a gentle man in contact with Meyers' rough-house brand of wrestling, really went after the Great Falls grappler, although always within wrestling rules.

Meyers repeatedly applied the works to Roy, but the latter was too determined to be licked and after applying the Boston crab with Meyers and the ropes, pinned him down to the mat with a series of body slams, followed by a body press.

The preliminary between John Buzovetsky and Charles Fraser gave fans a pleasing display of earnest grappling, which might be aptly described as a sample of straight amateur wrestling.

LEADING GOLF

accomplished golfer from the Quebec fairways, who breezed through the first 18 holes of the Miami open tournament ahead of the American pack of pro golfers, with a three under par score. Other pros, expected to come out on top slipped badly in this first round of the tournament. The French-Canadian golfer gave them something to ponder over.

ESK SEXTET ON WAR PATH TILT TONIGHT

Still seething from that 6-2 drubbing administered them by Frank Foyston's Sea Hawks, the Eskimos are on the war path and tonight they're aiming their tarpoons for a win when they once again meet these dashing coast Hawks.

In an effort to work up a winning combination, Coach Ronnie Martin has made a few changes in his forward lineup, hoping thus to increase the scoring punch of the team. Bill Gatze will be switched to the left wing on the second string, while Ronnie Martin will play centre on the first string with Holmes and Gagne as wings. Working with Rimstad and Wittler, Carse should bear the scoring punch of that line, while the three veterans, Holmes, Gagne, Martin on the other string should work smoothly together.

The Esks will have to be going at their best tonight if they expect to top the Hawk wings, for they really can go. Now that Red McCusker has been given a game out of his hide here Thursday, he'll probably be stopping all that comes his way tonight.

Both teams are in dire need of points to get in reach of the leading clubs, especially our Igloomen, and you can bet both will be fighting for them.

Clarence Campbell will start the game off at 9:00 o'clock.

BRIDEGROOM LONDON HERO HOCKEY TILT

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 4—The blushing bridegroom, George Lever, who was about to be an unemployed bridegroom, made a hero of himself last night by sniping an overtime goal that gave London Tecumsehs a 4-3 triumph over Pittsburgh Shamrocks and sent the Tecs shooting to the top of the International Hockey League's eastern section.

Married recently, the slender Lever impressed his owners so little on the ice that they advised him he would be released a few days ago. Suddenly George started to play hockey and he capped his comeback.

Eric Pettinger scored for London in the first period. Earl Roche tied the count in the second. Scotty Martin and Dick Benson put the Shamrocks into up in the third after which Norm Locking and Lola Couture scored the tying goals.

Inked the local National League park so much he led the loop in batting while he performed in it.

St. Albert, Hillas Electric Winners Commercial Tilts

St. Albert Tops League With 2-1 Victory Last Night

St. Albert's fast travelling bunch of rubber chasers stepped into the lead of the Commercial League last night by edging out a 2-1 verdict over Bush Mines in the first game of a double bill at the Arena.

On the face of their performance last night there wasn't much to choose between the two teams, as both played an excellent brand of hockey, the forwards hitting a fast clip throughout the encounter.

The highlight of St. Albert's win was the classy performance of Leo Barbeau, fast and cagey young player from the Jesuit College Baribeau, still of juvenile age, was the pick of the lot in the winners' team.

NO SCORING

The teams battled through the first frame without any of them registering. While many scoring chances were had by both clubs the good work of goalie Scotty Munro and Killips rendered the nets puck-proof.

Both teams scored once in the second period, Lunde on a pass from Stevens tallying for St. Albert, while Campbell evened up the count one minute later on a pass from Faulkner.

CINCHED GAME

St. Albert cinched the game a few minutes after the start of the last frame, when Lunde scored again on a pass from Muncer. From then on to the last minute of play Bush Mines put on the heat, but although they had many scoring chances they couldn't get the tying counter.

In the second game of the Commercial League last night, the Hillas Electric pucksters went to town, putting a high voltage current on the Civic Youths to score them under a 6-0 count.

The encounter was closer than the score would indicate, nevertheless it was evident that the C.Y.A. boys were having an off night while the Electricians were hitting their usual fast pace. All the Hillas players played a good game while Bill Gauff worked hard for C.Y.A. Red Mathews, Civic Youth goalie, played a nice game and it was through no fault of his if six goals were scored in his nets. Bobby Graham, Harry Walker, Hartley and McIntosh were the pick of the Hillas crew.

LINEUPS

St. Albert—Killips, Leonard, Perrin, Baribeau, Dalphond, Benoit, Lundy, Combs, Brisnd, Stevens, Ferrand, Munroe.

Bush Mines—Scotty Munro, Hanson, Mann, Innes, Smith, Esdale, Campbell, Jinks, Faulkner, White, Ferguson.

Hillas Electric—McLintosh, Hartwig, Romanuk, Kinsmen, Lucien McMillan, Graham, Walker, Hoyle, Eldridge, Knutson.

C.Y.A.—Mathews, Leitis, McGreevy, Cooper, Gauff, Gerritz, Jones, Elock, acchut, Melnyk, Askroyd.

Referee—Bill Runge.

Brace Of Games Billed Monday

Saskatoon Welders, sponsored by that ever-smiling sportsman, Bob Cramer, will be out to regain leadership of the Commercial hockey league when they play Hillas Electric in the first battle of a twin card at the Arena Monday evening.

In the second encounter which starts at 9:30 will be Bush Mines opposing Civic Youths' Association and both contests will have the ingredients which make hockey games interesting to watch.

St. Albert's "Flying Frenchmen" took the lead after Friday games, but on Monday they will be idle, and, that is just the "break" the Welders are hoping for. At least they will be out to make the best of it.

Public School Sport News

BOYS' SECTION

Public school athletes were back on the job on Friday after training all week on turkey and plum pudding. Many a new hockey stick and many a new pair of skates will twinkle on the ice as the dated schedule opens on January 10. Most coaches report a minimum of all inter-school games having been played to date while some schools report more. These games enable coaches to select the best players, and this coming week will see many adjustments before the final teams are chosen.

Billy Tallas was chosen to captain the Queen's Avenue seniors this year, while Billy McKenna will captain the juniors. A tricky left forward last year, Tallas has developed into a powerful defenseman and will be a veritable bulwark to his team this year.

GIRLS' SECTION

An indoor sport that has been taking the girls' attention is bowling. For pins, Indian clubs are used while regulation soft balls are used for bowls. On a smooth floor it is surprising just what a bang can be got from the game despite such inexpensive equipment. Besides, there is no "gutter"—a condition which would be appreciated by your reporter.

McDougall and Queen's Avenue will meet again in inter-school basketball. The games will be played at McDougall where facilities are available. Test games, on both sections, the friendly sporting rivalry keeps interest keen on the outcome of the next meeting.

Regina Aces Win Over Moose Jaw

REGINA, Jan. 4—Regina Aces defeated the reinforced Moose Jaw Millers 3-2 here last night to go into a three-way tie for second place in the Southern Saskatchewan Amateur Hockey league.

The three local teams, Aces, Vics and Caps are tied with 10 points each, two points behind Yorkton and Weyburn.

In the second encounter which starts at 9:30 will be Bush Mines opposing Civic Youths' Association and both contests will have the ingredients which make hockey games interesting to watch.

St. Albert's "Flying Frenchmen" took the lead after Friday games, but on Monday they will be idle, and, that is just the "break" the Welders are hoping for. At least they will be out to make the best of it.

Expect Connie Mack To Announce Deal Complete

Sale of Cramer, McNair Expected to Be Made Officially Tuesday

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4—Connie Mack, baseball's master auctioneer, was reported Friday as about ready to let the public officially in on the second half of the player deal which will about wreck his Athletics and may make Boston Red Sox pennant winners.

Next Tuesday was said to be the day he will formally announce that Doc Cramer, outfielder extraordinary, and infielder Eric McNair will follow Jimmy Foxx and Johnny Marcum to the Boston return for which the A's will get some players and a young fortune in Tom Yawkey's cash.

Along with this report came the rumor that the Phillies—the other local major league club—are ready to swap pitcher Curt Davis to Chicago Cubs to get back their former heavy-hitting outfielder, Chuck Klein, who

CRESCENTS CAPTURE TOPS IN BOWLING LEAGUE

Furnishers Defeat Dominion Bowlers By Three-of-Four

Have Winning Verdict in Fourth Game by Slim Margin of Pins

Crescent Furnishers, paced by a smart aggregation of 10-pin bowlers went into first place for the first half of the schedule in the Commercial 10-pin league at the Recreation Academy last night.

Crescents defeated Dominion Envelope by three-of-four games, winning the fourth contest by the slim margin of nine pins, after the Carlton co-eds had made a grand comebaek near the end of the match.

Joe Kosick was high in both single and triple scores for the losers and in the game. His single was 277 while his four-game total rang up to 828. Sam Scott, clever old timer on the alleys was second highest with a total of 821, while S. Kosick was next having 813 with "type pi-ee" Hodgins fourth having a total of 755.

In the fourth game both teams had hard luck with the Crescent team winning out finally by only nine pins.

YANKEE TEAM FOR OLYMPICS SAILS FRIDAY

Opposition Groups Have Plans For Counter Competitions

BY BOB CAVAGNARO

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—Coming as an aftermath to the bitter, unsuccessful fight to keep the United States from participating in the Olymp'c games in Germany this year, 45 athletes wearing the Olympic shield sailed in the United States liner Manhattan Friday to take part in the international winter sports program at Garmisch-Partenkirchen.

The departure of the speed skating, skiing, hockey and bob sled squads was without untoward incident. Reports of possible demonstrations by anti-Nazi and Olympic-boycott groups failed to materialize, but a movement for a counter Olympic competition was announced by Samuel K. MacCabee, chairman of the move-the-Olympics committee and organizer of "the American Goodwill Athletic Union to Preserve the Olympic Ideal Inc."

"Negotiations are under way with representatives of powerful groups, both here and abroad, who are expected to provide facilities for the international goodwill athletic carnival next summer and in the winter of 1937," said MacCabee. "The society hopes to hold such alternate games annually."

The balance of the draw for the week will be in the press on Monday, as sections will be decided.

Play or default will be the order for the balance of the season.

On Saturday evening, January 4th, (tonight), we expect all curlers, ladies and gentlemen, to take part in the mixed event to be staged at the rink. The ladies will serve refreshments. No charge.

Drumheller Junior Team Ties Medicine Hat In Hockey Tilt

DRUMHELLER, Jan. 4—Having taken their first defeat of the season New Year's day Medicine Hat Tigers, Tommy Boyes, Junion Rockets hold the Tigers to a 4-4 draw in speedy exhibition tilt on Drumheller ice Friday before a record crowd.

Rockets forged ahead in the opening frame, taking a 3-1 lead for the twenty minutes stretch, the Medicine Hat sextette tieing the score in the sandwich period 3-3. Rockets got a further goal early in the final frame when Bobroski picked up a loose puck following a goal mouth scrimmage only to see the lead again disappear when the Appleton brothers staged a pretty combination play later in the game.

Diminutive Miss Doreen Dutton recently returned from Saskatoon where she gave an exhibition of fancy skating, entertained the fans during intermissions.

South Africa Can Only Draw With Aussies

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 4.—Dealt a severe blow by the weatherman, the most that South Africa can hope for in the third cricket test match against Australia is a draw. The Springboks, after disastrous first innings collapse Friday, were forced to follow on and with all their wickets intact require 240 runs to avoid an innings defeat. The match concludes today.

Following a heavy downpour of rain Victor Richardson, the touring captain, declared Australia's innings at the overnight total of 382 for eight wickets and on a treacherous pitch the home players were skittled out for 102. With a few minutes left for play South Africa returned to the wickets and at the adjournment had made 11 runs without loss.

EX-CANADIAN BOSS ENGLISH OLYMPIC SIX

Percy Nicklin Preps English Sextet For Canadian Clash

LONDON, Jan. 4—Percy Nicklin, who learned about hockey at Port Arthur, Ont., and made his reputation with Moncton Hawks, Canadian senior champions in 1933 and 1934, is preparing a British team for the Olympic Games and Nicklin is the last person in all England to expect success. For one thing his team must face Port Arthur.

Coach of Richmond Hawks in the English national league, Nicklin has been selected to tutor the British Olympic team and ever since he became active, Olympic hopes have been rapidly dimmed. Nicklin's charges can't seem to get going.

It will be Port Arthur's Bearcats, a hustling brigade from his home town, who wear Canadian colors next month at the Garmisch-Partenkirchen games in Germany. Nicklin hasn't said he isn't confident of giving the Canadians a battle, but he scarcely needs to say anything.

LOSE TEST SERIES

England's team was beaten in a test series by various teams of selected Canadians playing this season here. One of the scores was 9-4, Wembley Lions trounced the Olympic forces 9-3.

If it hadn't been for the fine goaltending of Jimmy Foster, former Winnipeg and Moncton Star, the scores would have been much higher.

Foster, it is believed, will play goal on the British team, although he has not yet been definitely selected. He was born in this country and therefore is eligible. Jack Riddell, Kensington Corinthians goalie, is another possibility and the long-shot may be taken to Germany.

DEFENCE WEAK

But the defence in front of Foster was extremely weak in the exhibition fixtures. No Canadian-breds are available for these posts and even Nicklin feels he could be overpatsively easy to score against. He has some fine forwards, however.

Two of these are Alex. Archer, formerly of Winnipeg, and Johnny Templeton, also from the Manitoba capital.

Joe Beaton and Albert Lemay were outstanding in the test matches against the Britons. Beaton, from Charlottetown, and the fleet Lemay from Winnipeg, were altogether too good for the home players, easily slipping inside the defence for close-up shots.

Don Hodges and Johnny Acheson from Toronto, and Ken Brown from Ottawa, Jimmy Haggerty from Port Arthur and "Crash" Wilkinson from Ottawa, were other Canadians who turned in brilliant performances. The contests attracted capacity crowds to Wembley Stadium.

Edmonton Athletic And Maple Leaf Midgets Are Ahead

Both Teams Deadlocked For Leading Honors With Wins

Placing themselves in a tie for top place of the Midget League, the E. A. C. and Maple Leaf squads raced to victory last night in two scheduled midget encounters.

Both these teams have yet to be defeated during the current season, having won two games in three starts and tied another, all of which indicates that there will be a close race for the championship in the league this year. The lads are playing heads up hockey and many of them will go places if given a chance to make good their possibilities.

ROYAL CANUCKS DEFEATED

At the 112th direct rink, Maple Leafs took the Royal Canadians to the melody of a 1-1 score. The winners were well worth their victory and held a good edge of the play, while the losers put up enough of a fight to make the game an interesting one.

MacFarland of the Leafs was well rewarded for his hard work with two counters, while Frank Newsome and Walter Dutchek each tallied a well-earned goal. Some smart combination work dotted the play, while both goalies stopped some hard shots.

FALCONS FLOUNDER

In the other game, E. A. C. Midgets bettered the Falcons by a margin of two goals, winning by a 4-2 count. Throughout the first and second frames, play was very close and both teams got their share of it. E. A. C.'s got their first tally in the first period, when McGill scored unassisted. Falcons came back in the second frame to even the count on an unassisted effort by Stewart.

The third period saw the Athletics go to town and they scored three goals, while they held down the listless Falcons to a lone tallie. Collier on a pass from McGill, Tighe on a pass from McKee and Sulter unassisted, accounted for the three E. A. C. goals, while Stewart again scored unassisted for the Falcons.

New Enthusiasm Boston Baseball

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—New capital and new blood apparently did not make a new ball club for the Braves, Boston's National League club, will have a new name, too.

"Bob" Quinn, new president of the club, which finished last in the National League last season, announced the name of "Braves" will be discarded. Quinn said a contest will be run for a new name and the person whose suggestion is chosen will receive two season tickets.

Wrestler Grilled By Grand Jury Following Match

AMARILLO, Tex., Jan. 4.—To the amazement of Wrestler Danny McShain, the Potter county grand jury took seriously today the episode that had some 1,900 mat fans crying for his blood Thursday night.

Witnesses who declared McShain superheated tobacco juice in the eyes of Bob Castle, his opponent, appeared before the grand jury. The district attorney's staff said they were proceeding under a statue prohibiting any "attempt to maim."

McShain denied the accusation. "I'm not only a good wrestler," he explained, "but a fine gentleman."

Castle, who lost the third fall while writhing in apparent agony, had not been found although a subpoena was issued for him. The grand jury took no action today.

Jack Hamilton Hockey President

The Tragedy Of Sir Henry Thornton

By D'Arcy Marsh

CHAPTER VI—Continued

(During the years 1927, 1928, and 1929, competition between the C.P.R. and the C.N.R. became intense—not only as a clash between two giant railroad organizations, but also as a clash between two giant temperaments, Sir Henry, for the C.N.R. and E. W. Beatty, president of the C.P.R.)

In radio the Canadian National was supreme; indeed, as a direct result of Sir Henry's ability to see the possibilities inherent in a new medium of expression, the railway did for Canada what she was too apathetic to do for herself.

The function of radio was admirably suited to Sir Henry's temperament, and during the last five years or so of his regime he got out of it every ounce of benefit he could, both for the railway and for the country as a whole. His interest in broadcasting was not, as some of the early "boosting" speeches of his implied, merely that of the high, pressure salesman; it was something deeper and more intelligent.

It is not generally known that one of his greatest ambitions was to conduct a symphony orchestra; in the old days in London, he used to frequent the Hungarian Restaurant in Lower Regent Street, where, in recognition of his face of music and no doubt his profitable patronage, the orchestra invariably struck up the Hungarian Rhapsody on his arrival, moreover, on two or three occasions he did conduct the C.N.R. orchestra for railway functions—a gesture which provoked more enthusiasm than good music, due to his lack of practice, but which, nevertheless, showed that he had a working knowledge of his subject.

HIGHLY IMPRESSED

He was, it is true, highly impressed with the advertising possibilities of radio; Mr. Weir, who left the position of European director of publicity to become director of programs for the radio department of the railway, explained this aspect of Sir Henry's interest quite recently by saying, "I cannot help feeling that his recognition of the possibilities of radio for the C.N.R. and for Canada were simply in line with his magnificent aptitude for publicity on a grand scale and I have no doubt it brought him many cheering whose tiny minds were incapable of ever grasping anything so comprehensive." But there was, in Sir Henry's mind, a larger conception than this; he saw radio as a great unifying force in Canada; to him the political conception transcended the commercial, and he set out consciously to create a sense of nationhood through the medium of the Canadian National radio service.

The most important contributions to this work were the Sunday afternoon national symphonic concerts which the C.N.R. put on in collaboration with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, concerts in which prominent artists assisted. The response to these broadcasts from every part of Canada was noteworthy. It became a social custom for groups of neighbors and friends to gather together on Sunday afternoon and listen to the Canadian National programs. A visitor in Winnipeg commented at that time on the national appeal of these concerts: "We have never yet been accused of being a high-power patriot, but we frankly confess that we know nothing more quietly moving on the radio than the chimes at Ottawa booming out the hour of five every Sunday afternoon, followed by the strains of 'O Canada' played by the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, which precedes the Canadian National Symphony Hour.

KNITTED DOMINION

"There is something about these preliminaries that seems to knit Canada in one compact whole that is readily felt. The sprawling prairies; the great mountain ranges; the vast inland seas; the gentle Ontario or apple orchards and fat cattle; the bare Ontario of rock and muskeg; the mighty St. Lawrence journeying down to the sea; the Sunday afternoon smell of Toronto; the warm geniality of Montreal; history hurried in the Heights of Abraham; slumbering St. Boniface; the Atlantic and Pacific pounding the Atlantic and Pacific pounding both shores . . . all this greatness is grasped in one quick glimpse as the chimes at Ottawa swell out over Canada from coast to coast.

"The Canadian National radio activities resembled those of the Canadian Pacific which produced the musical festivals that the latter company, at great expense, conducted in various parts of Canada. The National, however, had secured the better medium for employing all the complex cultural forces in Canada to build national unity and an appreciation among Canadians of different racial origins of each other's accomplishments.

AMAZING FIGURES

In 1929, the Canadian National Telegraphs completed its "carrier current" installation, and the company was then in a position to clear its wire business as fast as it came in. As a result the Telegraph Department showed some amazing figures for that and the subsequent year. This enabled it to lease 7 circuits in the evenings for radio programs. And in the fall of 1929 the management commenced national broadcasts in earnest.

The Anniversary Program had been put across the year before with a great deal of special effort, and the Canadian National was the most important factor in the Confederation celebration of 1927. The first regular national broadcasts in Canada on any scale were put on by the Canadian National, the Imperial Oil Company and William Neilson Limited, and in the opinion of many these set the pace for all broadcasts which have followed. The Canadian National was the first organization to do historical broadcasts on a large scale. The idea was taken to New York a year later by the man whom Sir Henry dug out in Canada, and was reproduced for Standard Brands as "Great Moments of History"; the railway was also the first to do grand and light opera reduced to one-hour periods, four years before Chase and Sanborn obtained their music from the same people as the National had patronized and followed almost identically the same course; moreover, it was widely admitted by the most cultured French Canadians that the programs put on by the Canadian National in their language were of an unusually high standard.

The whole theory behind this was to create goodwill and to get over a certain amount of direct propaganda. The broadcasts so far as possible were made to symbolize the service given by the Canadian National Railway and all its branches; that was why they never could be cheap and why, when they were cut to pieces after 1930, it was better to let them disappear than to have them continue along the lines they were forced to follow during the last year of their existence. Sir Henry, for several years carried a special New Year's program, the notable feature of which was his personal greeting to the staff and employees of the Canadian National from one end of the country to the other. He was known as one of the best broadcasters in the country; his perfect naturalness and invariable good humor and rather good voice contributed to his success along these lines.

HORRIBLE EXAMPLE

Much later, when the famous "hanging committee" of 1931 and 1932 was sitting at Ottawa, the radio activities of the Canadian National were held up as a horrible example of what Sir Henry's railway was capable of doing. In this regard it is not unimportant to note that the Canadian Pacific, whose expenditures on music festivals were ignored by Dr. Manion and his compatriots when they talked of Canadian National radio appropriations, abandoned these festivals completely in favor of radio just as quickly as it could after it also got "carrier current" on its telegraphs.

In one respect, it is true, the Canadian National did outdo its rival in regard to radio expenditures and that was when it equipped its crack trains with radio sets. The final total of money for installation of radio on trains ran around $175,000. The department claims that careful computations show that if they obtained one additional passenger on each trip of each radio-equipped train the expenses of radio on trains was completely covered. The question is, did they? They think so, and have brought many evidences to prove their point. Frequently in Montreal they heard of people who went to Canadian Pacific windows to buy a ticket and asked if they had radio on the train, and when they were told, "No," they went down to the Canadian National.

There was the instance of two men going from Calgary to Montreal who went to Edmonton to take the Canadian National because they wanted to hear a prize fight; also there were a number of women with children who travelled Canadian National because radio was a source of entertainment and helped to destroy the monotony of the long journey for children.

Mr. Weir has since expressed the opinion that the work the Canadian National did laid the foundation for nationalization of radio. The success of the railway's experiment was one of the chief arguments used by the advocates of public ownership to impress its desirability upon Mr. Bennett. "If Sir Henry Thornton had not had the vision to encourage us in something worth while," Mr. Weir said, "the whole progress of radio in this country would never have been so rapid."

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

FOR THE THIN, ROUND, SMALL SUM OF A DIME, I'LL TELL YOUR FORTUNE.

NO SALE! IN THE FIRST PLACE I KNOW MY FORTUNE! EXACTLY TWO CENTS. AND IN THE SECOND PLACE, IT BEING TWO CENTS, I WOULDN'T HAVE ENOUGH TO PAY YOU THE DIME.

TOO BAD, OL' THING. TOO TERRIBLY BAD, OUT OF GAS I TAKE IT.

OH, NO! PLENTY OF GAS. I'M JUST AFRAID OF HITTING PEOPLE WHEN I DRIVE A CAR, SO I PUSH IT. I CAN'T GO FAST ENOUGH, THIS WAY, TO INJURE ANYBODY, IF I DO HIT 'EM.

Y'KNOW SUMPIN YOU NEVER TOLD ME ABOUT, UNCLE AMOS?—SMUGGLING! DO YOU KNOW ANY SMUGGLING STORIES?

EH, SMUGGLING?

T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

EGAD, MEAN TO SAY I NEVER TOLD YOU ABOUT THE FAMOUS McSNACKLE SMUGGLING CASE?—MY WORD!

NO—YOU NEVER DID!

I WAS WITH SCOTLAND YARD—AND WORD CAME TO US THAT A HUGE FORTUNE IN GEMS, STOLEN IN PERSIA, WOULD BE SMUGGLED INTO ENGLAND!

DROP THE TYNSWORTH CASE, HOOPLE, AND HOP OVER TO HARWICH!—"SLIP" McSNACKLE IS COMING OVER ON THE EVENING BOAT, FROM HOLLAND, AND HE MAY TRY TO RUN IN SOME OF THE HOT SWAG FROM THAT PERSIAN JOB!

RIGHTO, CHIEF!

I TOLD THE CUSTOMS BOYS I WAS LOOKING FOR A DUTCH FORGER, AS THEY ARE QUITE TOUCHY ABOUT WE MEN FROM THE YARD WORKING IN ON THEIR JOB!

I SPOTTED "SLIP" McSNACKLE THE MOMENT HE CAME IN FOR CUSTOMS INSPECTION! —THE MEN WENT THRU HIS ONE BAG WITH A FINE COMB, BUT FOUND NOTHING!

EVERYTHING IS IN ORDER, SIR!

THANK YOU!

HOLD A BIT THERE, "SLIP"!

HA—NOSEY HOOPLE, FROM THE YARD! I SUPPOSE YOU WANT ME STRIPPED? ALL RIGHT, LET 'EM SEARCH ME!

YOU SUSPECT HIM, MAJOR?

EGAD, MEN—YOU'RE LETTING THIS SMOOTH GENT WALK OUT WITH ABOUT A HUNDRED THOUSAND POUNDS STERLING, IN GEMS, RIGHT IN HIS HAND!—YES, I SAID IN HIS HAND!

YOU'RE FULL OF ALE!—THE ONLY THING IN MY HAND IS A POKE FOR YOUR JAW!

EXAMINE THE HANDLE OF HIS SUITCASE, MEN!

WELL, BASH ME SUNDAY BOWLER! IT'S FULL OF SOOLS!

AND NOW, "SLIP"—— WON'T YOU ACCOMPANY ME BACK TO THE YARD, FOR A LITTLE CHAT OVER OUR FISH AND CHIPS, EH?

BUT, HOW DID YOU GUESS, UNCLE AMOS, THAT TH' JEWELS WERE IN TH' HANDLE OF TH' SUITCASE?

I DIDN'T GUESS, LAD!

IT WAS MY GENIUS FOR DETECTION, AS A GREAT SLEUTH! I NOTICED THE HANDLE OF THE SUITCASE WAS MOIST FROM HAND PERSPIRATION, CAUSED BY HIS NERVOUSNESS!

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

by WILLIAM FERGUSON

FLYING-FISH CAN TRAVEL THROUGH THE AIR FOR LONG DISTANCES, BUT MOST SCIENTISTS AGREE THAT THE FLIGHT IS ATTAINED EXACTLY LIKE THAT OF A GLIDING MACHINE/ THE WINGS ARE BUT ENLARGED FINS.

SOME FLYING-FISH ARE "MONOPLANES," WITH A SINGLE PAIR OF WINGS/ SOME HAVE TWO PAIRS.

THE GURNARD IS THE WORLD'S MOST VERSATILE FISH/ BESIDES BEING ABLE TO SWIM WELL, IT CAN FLY THROUGH THE AIR, AND WALK ON LAND.

SAILORS HAVE BEEN SERIOUSLY INJURED BY A BLOW ON THE HEAD FROM A FLYING FISH, SAILING OVER THE SHIP'S DECK.

FLYING FISH TAKE TO THE AIR MAINLY TO ESCAPE THEIR ENEMIES, CHIEF OF WHICH ARE THE DOLPHINS, THE FASTEST OF ALL THE FISHES.

LOOKS AS IF WE'RE IN HERE FROM NOW ON!

THERE'S NO WAY OUT, NOW THAT OUR UNDER-WATER PASSAGE IS CLOSED FOREVER!

HASN'T ANYONE EVER CLIMBED INTO THIS VALLEY, SINCE YOU'VE BEEN HERE? MOUNTAIN-CLIMBERS OR HIKERS?

YOU ARE THE ONLY HUMANS I HAVE SEEN SINCE I'VE BEEN HERE!

ONLY THE HAWKS IN THE AIR HAVE LOOKED DOWN ON THIS VALLEY.... THERE IS ONE, NOW!!

IT'S CERTAINLY EASIER PATROLING THIS DISTRICT, NOW THAT WE HAVE THIS PLANE!

THE AIR IS AWFULLY BUMPY IN THIS SPOT...WE'D BETTER FLY AROUND IT!!

THAT'S NOT A HAWK.... IT'S A PLANE!

WHAT DO YOU MEAN BY "PLANE"?

IT'S A MACHINE THAT FLIES...DON'T YOU EVEN KNOW WHAT A MACHINE IS?

CERTAINLY, SON— A PRINTING PRESS IS A MACHINE

YOU DON'T MEAN TO SAY THAT A PRINTING PRESS CAN GET UP INTO THE AIR?

NO, BUT A PLANE CAN! YOU'LL UNDERSTAND ABOUT ALL THAT, LATER! LET'S TRY TO ATTRACT THAT FLYER'S ATTENTION!

WE'LL REMOVE SOME OF OUR CLOTHES AND LAY THEM ON THE GROUND, FORMING THE WORD HELP!

WE MAY NOT HAVE ENOUGH CLOTHES FOR THAT... LET'S JUST SPELL SOS!

LOOK! HE'S FLYING AWAY....HE DIDN'T SEE OUR SOS!

EVEN IF THAT HAWK UP THERE COULD READ, HOW IN TARNATION COULD HE READ THE WORD HELP, SPELLED THE WAY YOU SPELLED IT?
